THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: A Declaration of War on a Unitary Australia by Ian Wilson LL.B.

In regard to Section 18 C: I quote from a letter to the Editor (The Australian, August 2, 2016, p.13), by Geoffrey Luck: "Australia now risks descending into a state of two nations. The attacks which destroyed Brian Martin's ability to conduct the NT Royal Commission and the Pearson and Shorten demands for a treaty linked to the constitutional referendum represent a declaration of Aboriginal war on the tradition of a unitary Australia".

All I will add to this is that Shorten embracing a treaty to allegedly resolve all grievances since first settlement, is just the "logical" outcome of the present regime. It will involve a "network of deals covering large parts of the continent". If you thought native title was a threat to farms, well you ain't seen nothing yet!

Nigel Jackson (The Australian, August 2, 2016, p.13) sums it up aptly:

"There are no legal and constitutional grounds for the splitting of Australia into two for the benefit of an over-noisy minority". - True, but only if they lose the coming referendum.

THE PEDIGREE OF IDEAS BEHIND THE ABORIGINAL ISSUE - ONE WORLD GOVERNMENT

by James Reed July 2007: <http://www.alor.org/NewTimes%20Survey/The%20Pedigree%20of%20Ideas.htm>

That great writer Geoffrey Dobbs penned in the Home Journal of Spring 1989 :

"Although it is necessary to look backwards to maintain continuity with the past, this becomes urgent only with a view to carrying a living policy into the future."

It is in this context which we shall examine more deeply the Howard government's "discovery" and now "war" on Aboriginal sexual abuse.

I have written over and over again that the plight of Aboriginal children and women in these communities is shocking. But this situation has been known of for well over ten years. It has been ignored until now. One article which I received summed it all up by saying that Howard is doing a parting favour for the mining industry, having been their faithful servant. His aim is to roll back Aboriginal ownership of tribal lands, an aim hidden under the multi-coloured cloak of humanitarianism. Although the article which I received has a left-wing orientation, I cannot but agree. But one must join the dots and go further, following the trail of the one-worlders.

Red Over Black

In this process of discovery, there are many illuminating League books to help us. Geoff McDonald's "Red Over Black : Behind the Aboriginal Land Rights" is essential reading. If you have a copy of this book, you should hand it around. In clear prose Geoff McDonald explains how multiculturalism and Aboriginal land rights were used as political weapons by hard-line communists to attack traditional Australia. McDonald was a former member of the Communist Party, joining in 1948. He learned first hand that at the time the White Australia Policy was one of their main targets. Their goal, McDonald said was to change "Australia from an Anglo-Saxon country into one that would be predominately Asian." Today, that goal, once unthinkable, is almost realised.

The Fabian Socialist strategy of gradualism, of incremental change and deception, is also described by Tony McGillick in his book, "Comrade No More : The Autobiography of a Former Communist Party Leader".

Communism IS Globalism

The essence of communism is centralised control over the economy, politics and the individual. It is a mistake to see communism as primarily an economic system - what is more important are questions of power and control.

To simplify this somewhat : in both systems, despite cosmetic differences in the sphere of production, a group of technocratic elite control the fate and freedom of the individual. Just like “two prongs on the one fork”.

Another insightful book which helps to open one’s eyes to the evils of the centralised world view is “Confessions of an Economic Hit Man,”(2004) by John Perkins. Perkins describes how from 1971 to 1981 he worked as an economic hit man. Economic hit men are skilled professionals, who are like economic versions of James Bond, that cheat countries out of trillions of dollars and shovel money into the coffers of the mega-corporations, and the wealthy elite who own almost everything, and want the world plus 100%.

The economic hit men use various tools in their trade, including pay-offs, fraudulent financial reports, rigged elections, and even murder.

Perkins is careful to point out that there is no organised conspiracy for if there was the conspiracy could be uncovered and the guilty one brought to justice. Instead he points the blame at the greed/profit principle underlying modern capitalism, that more growth, more materialism is better...Perkins has many stories to tell in his book “Confessions of an Economic Hit Man”, but the fate of Panamanian president Omar Torrijos is an instructive lesson in what the elites of the new world order will do to anyone who poses a real threat to globalism/communism. Terrijos was no communist : he merely said that Panama had its own sovereign rights.

ON THE SAME-SEX MARRIAGE PLEBISCITE by Ian Wilson LL.B.

One important thing seldom discussed in the issue of the same-sex marriage plebiscite is that it is not necessary at all to permit a change to the legal definition of marriage because our High Court has already decided that the term “marriage”, “when used in section 51 (xxi),... is a term which includes a marriage of persons of the same sex”. This conclusion was reached in the High Court’s decision on the legality of the ACT’s “Marriage Equality (Same Sex) Act 2013” on December 12, 2013: Commonwealth v Australia Capital Territory (2013) HCA 55. <http://www.hcourt.gov.au/assets/publications/judgment-summaries/2013/hca55-2013-12-12.pdf>

As is common in constitutional law today, there was no concern about the intent of the original framers of the Australian Constitution and a “progressive interpretation” was adopted without any concern at all for the connection of the law to the Christian and Western tradition. Seeing the Constitution as a “living force” allows the High Court to adopt “progressive” and leftist positions on social and policy issues. This means that even if the plebiscite fails and same-sex marriage is rejected, unless a definition of Torrijos also objected to the US Southern Command’s tropical warfare training centre located in the Canal Zone. There, Latin American dictators sent their military leaders to learn interrogation and covert operational skills and military tactics to protect the assets of the dictators and US corporations and oil companies. There, death squads and torturers were trained. Torrijos refused to co-operate with the Reagan administration on a number of policies including the Canal Treaty. Torrijos died in a plane crash on 31 July 1981.

Perkins quotes famed writer Graham Greene who in his book “Getting to Know the General” says that Torrijos’ security guard Sergeant Chuchu told Greene that he knew there was a bomb on the plane. It was another CIA assassination. Torrijos had forced the US to return the Panama Canal to its rightful owners and had closed down the tropical warfare centre, which angered the military chiefs. In this case the economic hit men had failed, so the jackals of the CIA were called in. If the jackals fail, as they did in Iraq, then the military finishes the job.

marriage is placed in the Constitution of marriage being between a man and a woman, the existing or successive governments can simply legislate for it.

We may need a definition of “man” and “woman” as well.

What is needed is an addition to the Constitution severely limiting the High Court’s power of interpretation - explicitly rejecting progressive “living force” definitions and returning us to the original intentions of the constitutional framers.

The Age of Review

To restore right order, it is time to cease any further constitutional and cultural change, and review all “progressive interpretations to our constitution” that have occurred since federation.

AFTER BREXIT, CLEXIT - Harmful, Costly, Unscientific Climate Treaties should be torn up!

A new international organisation aims to prevent ratification of the costly and dangerous Paris global warming treaty which is being promoted by the EU and the present US administration.

“CLEXIT” (CLimate Exit) was inspired by the Brexit decision of the British people to withdraw from the increasingly dictatorial grasp of the EU bureaucracy. Without any publicity or serious recruiting, Clexit has attracted over 60 well-informed science, business and economic leaders from 16 countries.

The secretary of Clexit, Mr Viv Forbes from Australia, said that widespread enforcement of the Paris climate treaty would be a global tragedy. “For the EU and the rest of the Western world, ratification and enforcement of the Paris Treaty (and all the other associated decrees and Agendas) would herald the end of low-cost hydrocarbon transport and electricity, and the exit of their manufacturing, processing and refining industries to countries with low-cost energy.

“For developing countries, the Paris Treaty would deny them the benefits of reliable low-cost hydrocarbon energy, compelling them to rely on biomass heating and costly weather-dependent and unreliable power supplies, thus prolonging and increasing their dependency on international handouts. They will soon resent being told to remain forever in an energy-deprived wind/solar/wood/bicycle economy.

“Perhaps the most insidious feature of the UN climate plan is the “Green Climate Fund”. Under this scheme, selected nations (“The rich”) are marked to pour billions of dollars into a green slush fund.

THE CHAOS OF THE MULTICULTURALISM EXPERIMENT by Peter West

Today we are seeing hard-hitting articles on the race/immigration crisis in the mainstream press.

For example Gerard Henderson recently had:

"Multiculturalism has Not Worked in Europe, and It's Not Islamophobia to Discuss It", The Australian, July 30-31, 2016, p.24. <http://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/inquirer/discussing-europes-failed-multiculturalism-is-not-islamophobic/news-story/f6ccc15b84f57360df4428a7a4275086>

In the past I have generally disagreed with what Henderson has written, but now I find him saying things that I like to see published! Henderson says that "jihadists, descendants of immigrants believe that they are at war with the West". And:

"Jihadists regard themselves at war with both state and church in the West".

"The evidence suggests that, for whatever reason, multiculturalism - as proclaimed by Western governments for close to a half century - has not worked".

The funds will then be used to bribe other countries (“developing and emerging nations”) into adopting silly green energy policies...

“This UN-driven war on carbon energy has already caused massive losses and dislocation of western industry. If allowed to continue as envisaged by the Paris Treaty, this economic recession will become a world-wide depression, and all nations will suffer.

Carbon dioxide does not control the climate. It is an essential plant food and more carbon dioxide will produce more plant growth and a greener globe.”

WA Engineer Destroys Global Warming Myth

<https://cairnsnews.org/2016/08/01/wa-engineer-destroys-global-warming-myth/>

Miranda Devine writing for CairnsNews.org

Dr David Evans makes this statement in the video below that is a must view for concerned Australians – “Official climate science, which is funded and directed entirely by government, promotes a theory that is based on a guess about moist air that is now a known falsehood. Governments gleefully accept their advice, because the only way to curb emissions are to impose taxes and extend government control over all energy use. And to curb emissions on a world scale might even lead to world government — how exciting for the political class!”

Discussing Britain Henderson notes that liberal Muslims may be a "dying breed" and many "British Muslims simply do not like the secular, libertarian society that is contemporary Britain, although they are happy to live there". Then we have an article by Roger Boyes from the London Times (reprinted The Australian, July 28, 2016, p.10) with the title: "Migrant-filled Europe is Spiralling into Chaos Under Weak Leaders". <http://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/world/the-times/migrantfilled-europe-is-spiralling-into-chaos-under-weak-leaders/news-story/6535dcfbd0f1211f1bffd2c16572d4c3>

"This northern summer will be the tipping point, the moment the high-pitched anxiety about the disintegration of Europe starts to colour all political calculation. The fast tempo of the street attacks in Germany and the cumulative terror assaults in France all point in one direction: imperfectly integrated migrant communities and damaged rootless refugees are beginning to turn on their host countries". ***

TARGET FOR THE WEEK

Write and congratulate the successful candidate in your electorate. A similar message can also be sent to the successful Senate candidates, who of course represent the whole State.

The electorate must rally support around those politicians who are campaigning in the front line. Ensure in your contact with your local representative to urge 'a halt to all immigration during high unemployment and of course the social unrest'.

Queensland Senator-elect Pauline Hanson needs to be congratulated on her tenacity for the past 18 years of campaigning so that the Australian people may finally have a say on immigration. Senator-elect Malcolm Roberts needs to be encouraged to continue the campaign against the climate and carbon trading legislation.

South Australian Xenophon team expressed reservations about the TPP prior to the election so they will welcome your encouragement to vote it down or drastically amend it. Senator Bob Day previously had the highest pro-government voting record on the crossbench. Perhaps he may now view all legislation on its merits.

Victorian Senator-elect Derryn Hinch wants to completely remove Section 18C from the anti-discrimination act. He should be encouraged on this issue.

NSW Senator-elect Brian Burston is very strong on local government at a time when the NSW state government announced (May 16) further council amalgamations. Senator David Leyonhjelm is against all government waste, but harsh against anti-vaxxers.

West Australian Senator-elect Rod Culleton has been campaigning for years against the full assault of the big banks foreclosing on farmers, and wants a Royal Commission into the banks' behaviour.

Tasmania Senator Jacqui Lambie needs your support to continue the fight for national security and state's interests.

These few examples illustrate how we have lost control over our own affairs. Britain chose to "Leave" the EU because they were tied to a central bureaucracy which denied them the control of their own affairs. The public have had enough!

The current political climate is starting to see cracks on many fronts, but the major parties have played no part in this, and will only yield as they are dragged kicking and screaming in resistance.

The structure of the new Parliament could deliver the best opportunity we have had for years, to achieve some valuable changes. What we need to do now is speak up!
