THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: It is the dogma that is the drama - not beautiful phrases, nor comforting sentiments, nor vague aspirations to loving-kindness and uplift, nor the promise of something nice after death - but the terrifying assertion that the same God who made the world lived in the world and passed through the grave and gate of death. Show that to the heathen and they may not believe; but at least they may realise that there is something that a man might be glad to believe. Creed or Chaos by Dorothy L. Sayers

PUT ON THE WHOLE ARMOUR OF GOD by James Reed

The majesty and eternity of Christ contrasts sharply with the feet of clay shown by the oppressive New World Order or what is now called globalism. We have seen many victories by the little people against their oppressors, from Brexit and the US electoral victory of Trump to our own Federal Election result. Our writers have used these events to encourage Australians who are hurting – from farmers, to blue collar workers, to the homeless and unemployed, to also take action and become part of a “Western spring,” a democratic grassroots revolt against the elites. I have some articles torn from The Weekend Australian (November 26-27, 2016), on this exact theme.

One article discussing the “nation’s new fringe-dwellers,” observes that “on the urban edges and in country towns, people are feeling abandoned,” which is surely the understatement of the year. Country people are in a state of economic and social crisis, produced by a system too much devoted to inner-city political correctness issues to address their real needs. And the result of this is that Grievance politics, consuming much of the Western world, is also here in Australia. The driving forces are irresistible.

One of the popular sites that many of us draw on is the patriotic Natural News.com, which took a strong pro-Trump, anti-Clinton position during the US election. But The Washington Post has now claimed that Natural News is working with the Russians to spread lies about Hillary Clinton. And what evidence is given for this? Nothing, it is because they say it is. That is why this year, there has also been a gross loss of trust by many people of the mainstream media, and a great rise in the popularity of the alternative media, including us.

This is a time of great hope. We have seen that the people, when organised can effectively fight back. The ruling elites know this and are now planning to respond back.

We are living in revolutionary times. Survival of the individual best comes from heeding the wise words about protecting oneself from the evil which is flowing over the world like a Noachian deluge (Ephesians 6:10):

“Put on the full armor of God, so that you can take your stand against the devil’s schemes. For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms”.

Have a well earned rest over the Holy Christmas period, recharge your physical and spiritual batteries, and be ready for the battle of the millennium in 2017.

UNCLE LEN’S CHRISTMAS RENOVATIONS by Uncle Len, Home Improver

I am taking my inspiration from a highly inventive “deplorable” fellow homeless man in the United States, and will be making my oil-stained shed into a five-star homeless retreat, over the Christmas, or die trying.

The man, living in Los Angeles, lives under an underpass. From discarded junk he has salvaged, he has constructed a makeshift jacuzzi, two porcelain toilets, a bed, couches and refrigerators. (continued on next page)

See: <http://www.breitbart.com/california/2016/11/26/homeless-turns-los-angeles-underpass-compound-jacuzzi-toilets/>.

Of course the authorities have dismantled his man cave twice, but he just rebuilds it. A true hero for Uncle Len, he said: “I refuse to let the city beat me down to what they think a homeless person’s profile is.”

It is also a lesson we deplorables should all learn, because our civilisation also needs to be rebuilt. ***

EINSTEIN’S TIME MAY BE UP by Brian Simpson

Albert Einstein’s special and general theories of relativity are cornerstones of faith in Western physics. Although both theories are admitted to be logically inconsistent with quantum mechanics, physicists cling to them and via string theory are attempting the impossible of reconciling them. So far they have been unsuccessful, which may be an indication that the theories cannot be coherently brought together.

There are two postulates to the theory of relativity, the principle of relativity (that the laws of physics take the same form in all admissible frames of reference), and the postulate that the speed of light is a constant. Much of the criticism of relativity relates to the principle of relativity, but the constant speed of light postulate has also been criticised.

A paper recently published in “Physical Review D 94”, 101301(R) (2016), a journal you may consider reading for those late sleepless nights, by Niayesh Afshordi and João Magueijo, “Critical Geometry of a Thermal Big Bang,” gives one cosmological problem.

THE UN SAYS THAT WE ARE ALL RACISTS. WHO WOULD HAVE THOUGHT THAT?

by Michael Ferguson

The United Nations special rapporteur on human rights for migrants, has been to Australia. He has concluded that politicians have given people permission “to act in xenophobic ways” and that section 18 C of the Racial Discrimination Act, the darling Act of the multicult, should be retained. As well, he was concerned about the rise of nationalist populist groups: The Guardian, 18 November 2016. No mention of democracy here, just migrants, migrants, migrants.

If people have been acting in “xenophobic ways” it is because they are suffering from immigration and multiculturalism overload.

BLOOD PRESSURE, EXPLODING! POLLUTION KILLING US! by Mrs Vera West

Natural News.com, November 24, 2016, notes that the Western epidemic of high blood pressure, has now spread to the developing world, fuelled by economic globalisation. The number of people with high blood pressure in the world has doubled in the last 40 years and the biggest increases are seen in South Asia and Africa.

In 2015 there were 1.1 billion people in the world with high blood pressure, and over half of these were living in East, South East and South Asia. China alone had 226 million sufferers.

The cosmos appears to be remarkably uniform, the same over vast distances. Light then needed to have reached these regions for otherwise the most distant regions would be cooler and denser than regions closer to observers. But light travelling at a finite speed would not be able to achieve this. Orthodox cosmologists, brought up on the Einstein faith have advanced the hypothesis of inflation, where there was a massive expansion of the universe in a very brief time interval.

There is no proof that inflation is correct. Afshordi and Magueijo have proposed instead the simpler hypothesis that the speed of light as infinite in the past, but slowed down over time. Apparently there are experimental tests of both positions, and if they are correct, then they would have dented the special theory of relativity.

Ref: <http://www.techtimes.com/articles/187113/20161127/variable-not-constant-speed-of-light-theory-challenging-einstein-s-physics-can-now-be-tested.htm>.

Good for them. This is the age where the dogmas of the past need to fall, as idols come crashing down. ***

Immigration is the cause of racism; stop immigration, stop racism. It’s as simple as that.

Australia is long overdue from pulling out of the UN, and the UN itself needs to be dismantled, and along with it all of its thought control-inspired legislation. There is no better illustration of this need than UN bureaucrats coming here, calling us a pack of “racists” in their carefully worded fashion, and then going back to the New World Order beehive. It’s time to end this oppressive nonsense.

The current levels of pressure against the Racial Discrimination Act Section 18 C needs to continue unabated in the New Year. People arise! ***

Air pollution, another product of industrialisation, is killing 5.5 million people worldwide, according to the Global Burden of Disease project. Most of these deaths are in China and India. Liquid and solid particles can cause not only cancer and respiratory problems, but also heart disease. New research also indicates that pollution particles can even penetrate brain tissue, which may be a cause of neurodegenerative disease. Globalisation, economic growth and industrialisation all come with a cost and are not value neutral, and one cost is global health. Globalisation is killing the planet, and us. ***

ALL THE SECTION 18 C NEWS FIT TO REPORT by Ian Wilson LL.B.

Just in case one may think that we have been exaggerating about the desire of the ethnic multicultural lobby for preserving section 18 C, here is a direct quote, cut from “Chinese Tycoon Risks New Battle Over 18 C,” The Australian, November 29, 2016, p. 6:

“A Chinese powerbroker at the centre of a political donations scandal, Huang Xiangmo, has moved to rally ethnic community support for controversial hate speech laws, sparking a political brawl and claims he could be trying to minimise scrutiny of China in Australia.

In an opinion article titled “18C is a bedrock of society” published in Chinese-language newspaper Sydney Today, the Chinese billionaire argued against winding back section 18C of the Racial Discrimination Act, which restricts speech that insults and offends.

“If the hard-line advocates of free speech succeed in having section 18C of the act repealed major cracks could open in society,” Mr Huang said. “This is the last thing we need at a time when there is heated debate in many places around the world about such things as immigration, foreign workers and radical Islam.”

This pretty much sums up why we should abolish section 18 C. The section’s sole existence is to keep the Anglo “deplorables” in line until they can be completely demographically displaced. All challenging debate about immigration and multiculturalism must be shut down. But, common sense alone would indicate that at a time of social crisis, we need more, not less free speech, for otherwise the evils that the ethnics fear may fester underground, and produce populist revolt. It happens.

Then there is the moral panic generated by Immigration Minister Peter Dutton’s remarks on Sky News’ The Bolt Report, that former prime minister Malcolm Fraser made mistakes in bringing some refugees into Australia in the 1970s. What exactly did the minister say? I will move carefully here and quote from SBS News, which has the story: “Peter Dutton says it was a mistake bringing Lebanese refugees to Australia,” at <http://www.sbs.com.au/news/article/2016/11/21/peter-dutton-says-it-was-mistake-bringing-lebanese-refugees-australia>. Here is the story as told by SBS in their words, not mine:

“Immigration Minister Peter Dutton has said the government of Malcolm Fraser made a mistake in bringing Lebanese refugees to Australia in the 1970s, saying they formed a majority of those recently travelling overseas as foreign fighters.

“The advice I have is that out of the last 33 people who have been charged with terrorist-related offences in this country, 22 of those people are from second and third generation Lebanese-Muslim background,” he said in parliament after being pressed on the issue during Question Time.

ON TARGET

Mr Dutton said last week that many foreign fighters getting involved in conflict zones were the children or grandchildren of migrants that came during the 1970s but did not say what country he was referring to.”

Dutton went on to explain the source of the immigration mistake and its relevance to today. Once more I quote from SBS:

“In an interview with Sky News last week Mr Dutton said: “The reality is Malcolm Fraser did make mistakes in bringing some people in the 1970s and we’re seeing that today,” he told Sky News on Thursday.

“We need to be honest in having that discussion. There was a mistake made.

“Lessons from past migrant programs should be learnt for people settling in Australia today.”

At the time Mr Dutton was being asked about the recent gang activity in Victoria involving youths of African - in particular, Sudanese - background.

He attributed much of the blame to the state government, whom he labelled “weak” on law and order.

But he said his department was working with Victoria Police to try to identify people of poor character and cancel visas where necessary.

“If it can be demonstrated that we have a significant proportion of a particular community - we’re talking about the Sudanese community in this instance - then we need to work out what’s gone wrong,” he said.”

Needless to say, the Left went absolutely berserk hearing this, because the remarks constitute a rare criticism of an ethno-racial group. But the minister had his defenders, with Gerard Henderson, “Fraser’s Lebanese Concession Became a Disaster,” The Australian, November 24, 2016, p. 11, giving the historical background to Fraser’s decision. The idea was to accept Maronites fleeing the civil war, but who were not strictly refugees. Few Maronites came, but many Muslim Lebanese did instead, even though they were not affected by the civil war. Few immigrants were rejected. This is now known as the “Lebanon concession,” and Henderson says:

“The cabinet papers in the National Archives of Australia reveal that the Lebanon concession was an unmitigated disaster. In September 1976 cabinet considered a report that concluded that Immigration Department officials were “completely overstretched” and had lost control of the program.

The report expressed concern about “the possibility that the conflicts, tensions and divisions within Lebanon will be transferred to Australia”. (continued on next page)

(continued from previous page) By November 1976 the situation had deteriorated further. Immigration minister Michael MacKellar told cabinet that a high percentage of applicants under the Lebanon concession were illiterate and were being admitted to Australia without “any regard to their economic viability, personal qualities or capacity for successful settlement.”

See: <http://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/inquirer/malcolm-frasers-lebanese-concession-became-a-disaster/news-story/fcd9ac233271fa9614210ca68a8a2bd4>.

Now, it was also stated in The Australian: “The Lebanese Muslim Association has also condemned the “implicit racial vilification” in Mr Dutton’s remarks about migrants who came to Australia in the 1970s”: <http://www.theaustralian.com.au/national-affairs/immigration/peter-dutton-under-fire-over-attacks-on-lebanese-muslims/news-story/5acab9fa757bdcf96da787bad9ce6a5c>. I quoted them correctly, cut and paste from the on-line document.

So, we have members of the discussed ethnic community who claim to have been vilified. Thus, they are likely to have been offended, insulted, humiliated and perhaps even intimidated by the remarks and the public debate.

The Melbourne Office will be closed from Wednesday 7th December 2016 and will reopen Monday 9th January, 2017, thus allowing our hard-working team to have their well-earned annual break.

That would seem to enliven section 18 C of the Racial Discrimination Act. If the university student’s case and the Bill Leak section 18 C cases could get as far as these cases did, then maybe there is an even better case here to pursue a section 18 C case against the minister!

While some remarks were made under parliamentary privilege, not all were and there seems to be enough said for a complaint to be made. There is a prima facie good section 18 D defence, but the point of the debate is that the hypothetical complaint would proceed through the system. Wouldn’t that be a delicious irony, and perhaps then the Liberals will finally move to do something about the tyranny of section 18 C, if the heat of “The Law” is pursued on one of their own tribe. ***
