THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: “The more blatant recent militant effort to establish homosexuality, transgenderism, etc. as the new norm for society, of which the larger part is to be bullied by legal and administrative harassment should they prefer to distance themselves from this anomaly, has a sinister pedigree and far-reaching implications. It derives from communist revolutionary ideology promoted by organizations such as the ultra radical Marxist Frankfurt School which has, while the somnolent masses were sleeping, for decades been insinuating into the educational system its corrosive ideas and influence, so as to shape the thinking of a whole generation of young people without them even suspecting what was being done to condition their minds. The Western Nations, were considered to be incapable of making a Revolution for themselves, so it was decided to do it for them by subversive social transformation, i.e., Cultural Marxism.

“The Frankfurt School was dedicated to the utter destruction of ‘exploitative bourgeois capitalist society’. This involved establishment of a rigidly egalitarian or equalitarian social order—something which obviously could be attempted only by force, administered via the State. The Frankfurt ideologues and strategists envisaged a world of imposed ‘equality’ as a general foundational principle. Men and women were to become ‘equal’ and to this end the family would have to be destroyed as the greatest obstacle to their policy. Marriage itself, with its implied values of ‘fidelity’ had therefore to be eliminated and children were to be raised by the State which would indoctrinate them without ‘corrupting bourgeois’ parental opposition or influence.

“Such was (is) the ‘Brave New World’ envisaged by the Frankfurt School, erected upon the new Religion of Equality. Never mind that such a world would be founded on envy and create social and economic stasis, which universal equality by its intrinsic nature inevitably would produce—even if it were possible—which, of course, being an abstract Utopian conception it is not.

“Communism professes to be scientific materialism—founded on pure reason, unimpeded by ‘irrational bourgeois sentimentality’. This cold-blooded dogma permitted their fanatical leaders and indoctrinated followers to liquidate something in the order of one-hundred millions of innocent non-conformists and recalcitrants over the past century. When the new generation of radical legalists and bureaucrats come for your children, do not be surprised and do not expect any accommodation or mercy. The process is already well under way.”

SOCIETY NOW, A VAST POLITICALLY CORRECT RE-EDUCATION CAMP By Brian Simpson

Forget about “hate crimes,” for now, in communist Britain, mere ‘dislike,’ and “unfriendliness,” are crimes, according to the police: <http://www.breitbart.com/london/2017/10/25/dislike-unfriendliness-hate-crimes-uk-police-confirm/>

Cutting to the chase, the police, in pursuing hate crimes, especially in social media, do not need to even prove hate (the burden of defence is on the people offending), and there is not even a legal definition of “hate”:

“Dictionary definitions include a wide range of normal human behaviours and emotions, and images on social media suggest police officers are being told to look out for “unfriendliness” as a sign of a hate crime.

The CPS also mentions “ill-will, ill-feeling, spite, contempt, prejudice, unfriendliness, antagonism, resentment, and dislike” as examples of hostility that could be taken from a dictionary.

Many of these emotions are subjective, raising concerns police could target people inconsistently and unfairly, or due to misunderstandings and miscommunications. Others have pointed out “dislike” of immoral things is often honourable.

“Leicestershire Police refers to the College of Policing’s hate crime operational guidance. We refer to a standard English dictionary,” one force told Breitbart London.

(continued from previous page) Cheshire Police and Dorset Police forces told Breitbart London they follow “national guidance”, including the CPS, with the latter force insisting they “ensure officers and staff understand and are able to identify hate crime”. Cheshire Police has previously warned users of social media not to post “offensive” comments or you “could face a large fine or up to two years in prison” and the Glasgow force has demanded people be “kind” online.

North Yorkshire Police simply sent Breitbart London the Citizen’s Advice and Home Office definition of a hate crime, as “any criminal offence which is perceived by the victim or any other person, to be motivated by a hostility or prejudice”.

It would be easier to just put every White Britain in prison, or better yet, send them all to Australia...
...as convicts. ***

AUSTRALIA SHOULD HAVE HAD NUCLEAR WEAPONS BACK IN 1946 By James Reed

Fabian socialists in the Labor Party began the dismantling of the White Australia Policy in 1946, with a massive non-British immigration programme, under the guise of populate or perish. Even though nuclear weapons existed, and Australia cooperated with the British in the development of their nuclear weapons, Australia opted for migrants.

Back then, no doubt the elites knew that this would lead to Australia ultimately becoming Asian, but as good globalists, they just did what their masters told them.

From what I can ascertain, opposition to this program was minimal because freedom movement types were too concerned about the communist threat, even though Dr Sutton had shown that it too was part of the plan. Consequently, Australia slid down the road to Asia, and who know what else.

At this late stage, at one second to midnight, strategic experts are asking whether the present nuke stance is worth reviewing: The Australian, October 24, 2017, p. 12. Apparently, in the past our white mice politicians seriously thought that Washington would be prepared to risk a nuclear confrontation with the former USSR, if an attack was made on Australia. My God, what fools these people are! Why would America do that? Australia would be sacrificed, and still will be.

It is possible that North Korea could nuke Australia to show that it means business, without risking a full-out nuclear exchange with the US.

We are a nation of suckers not having developed nuclear weapons of our own. But, at this late date, one needs to ask, whether or not it matters, because there is not much worth defending today, because the Australia of the past has long gone.

An old digger said to me a few years ago before he died: “If I could have seen where it would have gone, there is no way I would have fought.” For a long time I asked myself, why they did not see. But, that is wrong because even today, many people still do not see, and recoil at talk about unpleasant realities. As T. S. Eliot (1888-1965) said in “Four Quartets,” “Humankind cannot bear very much reality.”

Oh, is this too pessimistic? Consider that the government is in chaos, yet Turnbull’s response is that he has never had so much fun in his life:

<http://www.theaustralian.com.au/national-affairs/foreign-affairs/embattled-malcolm-turnbull-reflects-on-strife-ive-never-had-more-fun/news-story/7abe751938ff1e7e99647a615e6285ab>

Are there any old conspiracy theorists still out there?

The first Federal Platform for the Labour Party—name changed to the french spelling Labor in 1912-ed—adopted at an Interstate Conference held in Sydney on January 24, 1900, was a model of brevity. It was the platform on which the party fought its first Federal election in the following year. There were only three planks. They were (1) Electoral Reform, providing for one adult one vote. (2) Total Exclusion of coloured and other undesirable races, and (3) Old Age Pensions.

“ZERO EMISSIONS” WILL TEST THE CONVICTIONS OF CANBERRANS By Viv Forbes

Canberra with its ‘zero emissions’ target yearns to be Australia’s greenest address. Good. Let’s use them as a full-blown test of “zero emissions” before we all jump over that cliff.

Canberra passes thousands of laws for us. If their zero emissions dream is fair dinkum, they need to pass just three laws for themselves.

First, ban all petrol, diesel and gas-powered trucks, cars, boats, generators and aeroplanes from Canberra. That should remove emissions from their atmosphere, food from their supermarket, and leave their roads free for pedestrians and bicycles. Idle airport runways would be ideal sites for solar panels and wind turbines.

Second, prohibit the importation of coal or gas-fired electricity – they can demonstrate how to survive on wind, solar, hydro, batteries and fire-wood. They should work at home by candle-light on cloudy windless days.

Third, introduce a CCT (Canberra-carbon-tax) whereby all carbon dioxide emitted elsewhere in the production and transport of their imported cement, steel, aluminium, bitumen, timber, vehicles, bicycles, solar panels, wind turbines, fire wood and food is charged to ACT end users.

If people flock into emissions-free Canberra we know that this is the way for Australia. But if there is a mass exodus, it will signal that the policy is a failure.

Let’s test the convictions of Canberrans. ***

GLOBAL ECOSYSTEM COLLAPSE...THAT MUST BE BAD By Brian Simpson

A number of sites are running the headline “the global ecosystem is rapidly collapsing”:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2017-10-19-the-global-ecosystem-is-collapsing-insect-biomass-decline-decimation-pollinators-scientists.html>

The decimation of much of the world’s ecology is not new, but certain peak events are now beginning to stand out, like a 75 percent decline in insect biomass in Germany over the last 27 years, as one recent scientific paper documents:

“Global declines in insects have sparked wide interest among scientists, politicians, and the general public. Loss of insect diversity and abundance is expected to provoke cascading effects on food webs and to jeopardize ecosystem services. Our understanding of the extent and underlying causes of this decline is based on the abundance of single species or taxonomic groups only, rather than changes in insect biomass which is more relevant for ecological functioning. Here, we used a standardized protocol to measure total insect biomass using Malaise traps, deployed over 27 years in 63 nature protection areas in Germany (96 unique location-year combinations) to infer on the status and trend of local entomofauna. Our analysis estimates a seasonal decline of 76%, and mid-summer decline of 82% in flying insect biomass over the 27 years of study. We show that this decline is apparent regardless of habitat type, while changes in weather, land use, and habitat characteristics cannot explain this overall decline. This yet unrecognized loss of insect biomass must be taken into account in evaluating declines in abundance of species depending on insects as a food source, and ecosystem functioning in the European landscape.”: <http://journals.plos.org/plosone/article/file?id=10.1371/journal.pone.0185809&type=printable>

The ecological collapse of insect populations will have a kick-on effect right across ecosystems, for insects play an important role in pollination, and are indispensable for the practical continuation of the human food supply. The effects of chemical pollutions, insecticides and GMO exposure all have a part to play in killing off the insect world.

There needs to be a rapid look at what chemical pollution is doing to our world, for this problem threatens to finish off mankind before anything else. Without a reliable food supply, the human animal will soon go extinct. ***

REVOLUTION FROM ABOVE By James Reed

Revolution from Above, (Arktos, 2011) is a great book by Dr Kerry Bolton, a leading Alt Right theorist, and New Zealander. This is not a book review, because I cannot do justice to such a fine work given my own limitations, but I want to mention this book to readers, who perhaps may wish to follow it up if any topic crosses their path covered by the book.

The thesis of the book is one which I think all writers at this site would agree with, namely that the Left communists, and the libtards, are the useful idiots of the global financial elite of the New World Order. The so-called noble causes of the lower level elite classes, such as women’s rights, homosexuality, mass migration, multiculturalism and the rest, serve the interests of control of the super-class of ultimate controllers. This thesis was advanced previously by Dr Antony Sutton, and Dr Bolton elaborates upon it in great depth.

Dr Bolton shows in a number of chapters how the socialist collectivism of the Marxist, and today of the cultural Marxist, blends in perfectly with the relentless pursuit of profit by the global financial elite. Thus, the traditional family stands in the way of creating a fully atomised economic ontology, so the family must go. Hence feminism, the attack upon traditional masculinity and all of the rest. Give some grants to academics, and they will scribble anything you want.

You will find in Dr Bolton’s book a concise summary of all the mischief which globalist organisations like the Council on Foreign Relations get up to, such as the CFR support of communist China. (pp. 42-45) As well, you will see how super-big business likes to fund revolutions and many things which at first seem counter-intuitively self-destructive, such as aiding the former Soviet Union.

The globalists do not care about national survival and have only the supreme goal of global domination, like the villains in the classic James Bond movies, only more evil and scary, because they are real.

There is also a concise account of the march of cultural Marxism through the West, especially in the form of the Frankfurt School of Critical theory. The core idea is to work Marxism into the cognitive structure of society, such as the schools and universities, which is something that has been now accomplished with disastrous results, for us. But, disaster is the name of the game, because their aim is to tear us down, especially by the sexual politics of “degeneracy,” as Dr Bolton calls it in chapter 8 of his book.

The book does not give a blueprint for how to fight all of this. It is important in any battle to first be aware of who the enemy is, and what we face. We are in short up against foes—who would make the evil beings of most fiction look comical; ruthless, amoral, highly powerful—with control of all the world’s resources. Needless to say, it will not be easy to beat them, but it will be fun trying. I can’t think of any better way to go down. Dr Bolton has been a leading light in informing us of our plight and we should all be most grateful for his service. ***

SENATOR GICHUHI SOCKS IT TO THE SAME SEX MARRIAGERS

By Mrs Vera West

The papers have been celebrating the appointment of Senator Lucy Gichuhi, Australia's first African-born senator. She held second spot on the Family First ticket, and received only 152 direct votes, but by the magic of our political system, when it was found that the election of Bob Day was invalid, she entered parliament, joining the Australian Conservative Party, as Family First no longer existed:

<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2017-04-05/>

family-first-bob-day-election-ruled-invalid-by-high-court/8417204

Senator Gichuhi is opposed to same sex marriage:

“Senator Gichuhi said pressure on the government to redefine marriage was not necessarily the majority view.

Just because other countries had legalised same-sex marriage did not mean Australia had to, she said.

“If we experiment with marriage this time around, what is next? How far is too far? What will society look like in four or five generations to come?

“Society changes as it grows but it could lead to unintended consequences that could encroach into other aspects of society as we know it.”

Changing and hacking at laws would leave them virtually unrecognisable, she said, stressing the importance of preserving the constitution and Australian laws.

“Let us not remove or disturb the ancient stones our founding fathers laid. We are not just trying to fit in. We are trying to show the rest of the world how to preserve a country for generations to come by preserving the lowest civil unit – the family. There is a better way to negotiate than through intimidation and domination.

“Let us avoid political and legal confusion. Likewise, we must also be careful about ideological invention and philosophical manipulation that cannot stand against the test of time.”

<http://www.sbs.com.au/news/article/2017/08/04/>

The politically correct class may like to chew on that for a while, after they catch their breath from celebrating. ***

BENEFITS OF ANGER By John Steele

In our society, getting angry is frowned upon, being almost a form of thought crime. Yet, as reported here: <https://www.naturalnews.com/2017-10-28-sometimes-its-good-to-be-angry-research-says.html> sometimes its good to be angry.

While too much anger, especially suppressed anger, can trigger ill-health such as heart attacks, anger can have benefits, simply because sometimes the extreme motivation provided by anger gets jobs done:

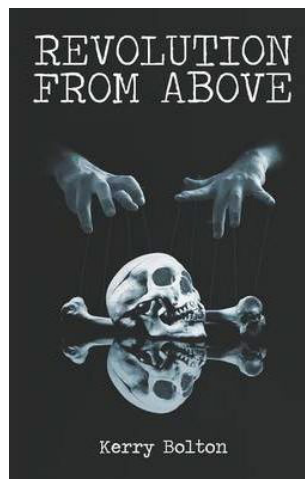

<https://www.apa.org/monitor/mar03/whenanger.aspx> The tragedy of the West is that people are not getting angry enough to change things. So, get angry and then get the job done!

REVOLUTION FROM ABOVE

by Kerry Bolton - $35.00 posted in Australia

Dr. Bolton demonstrates that the supposed rivalry between Marxist-inspired movements and capitalism has always been an illusion. Marxism, Communism and liberalism have been and continue to be exploited by the forces of international capitalism to further their global agenda, despite their surface disagreements.

Dr. Bolton shows that the ultimate goal of capitalism is to create a worldwide collectivist society of consumers, and Marxism is merely one means of attaining this. He traces this idea back to Plato, through the Illuminati, the Freemasons, the French Revolution, and Communism, and examines the evidence for the existence of a shadowy network of bankers who control a large portion of the world's political and economic power.
