THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: The Myths of the Left By Paul Walker

A good article at: http://takimag.com/article/diversity_is_our_doom_christopher_degroot#axzz4xh5nTPvE, on the diversity myth, soundly shows why leftist intellectuals are not as street wise as ordinary folk:

“Concerned mainly with the lives of working people, the Old Left, despite its unrealistic expectations, was still fairly grounded in reality. The New Left, by contrast, is characterized by delusional beliefs, the gospel of the identity-politics zealots. New Left intellectuals therefore seem to live in a different world from the rest of us. How does this happen? In part because these persons tend to come from wealth and remain at a certain comfortable remove from the destructive consequences of their ignorance. It is, indeed, the function of wealth to obscure what would otherwise be clear. Wealth not only corrupts the soul; it also makes one stupid, allowing for ideas that appear plausible only because they are never put to the test of practical experience, wherein something more than the approval of fellow frauds and cowards is at stake. Hence that curiosity of our decadent era, the intellectual who has no common sense. He is a chattering midget on a mission to chop you down to his own puny stature. If he has read many books and can quote many famous names, he still hasn't the slightest understanding of the family and politics, although, in his foolish conceit, he thinks otherwise.

Unlike the “ordinary academic political theorist,” a white person living in a London slum can see for himself that, for women, Islam is de facto sex slavery. Observing Muslims live, he also notices no distinction between what we Westerners call church and state. For Islam, religion is the state. So this poor white person has no sentimental illusions about Islam's compatibility with the West, because experience has shown him the impossibility of that project. And since his more honest and manly way of life does not require paying lip service to genteel cant—that is, what the vulgar success-crowd class calls morality—you won't hear any intellectual herd chatter about diversity and inclusion and the like from this hearty and straightforward character. To do away with the very possibility of disagreement is one of the greatest political goods.

It is not so with the diversity fundamentalists. Driven by needless guilt, petty envy, and, much less often, compassion, they have an anxious desire to believe that peoples and human nature itself are as conveniently shapable and interchangeable as the nifty gadgets affluent Westerners rely on to live lives of unprecedented ease, and correspondingly, unprecedented corruption.”

Reading this fine piece of writing, I could not help feeling that modern Leftism is a product of decadent affluence in the West; the affluence that allowed spoilt rotten children to go to universities, where delusional and intellectually corrupt ‘intellectuals’ were free to molest their minds. A fundamentally wrong turn has been taken, and a good first step must be to eliminate the universities. The universities are disease infested swamplands that must be drained: <http://www.breitbart.com/tech/2017/11/06/survey-majority-of-americans-say-colleges-arent-teaching-the-value-of-free-speech/>

THE YESSERS MAY WELL LOSE. HA! By Mrs Vera West

<http://theconversation.com/social-media-study-points-to-a-close-result-in-the-same-sex-marriage-vote-84436>

The statistical argument, stripped down, is that Tweets mentioning the same sex marriage issue were looked at. Once those making multiple references were removed, this brought the Yes number down to 57 percent. But, then over 55-year olds were under-represented, so once the adjustments were made, the Yes figure went to 49 percent. I think though that this team did not factor in the multicult factor, of Chinese and Muslim opposition to same sex marriage. That will bring the percentage down even more.

Hopefully, the Yes side will be defeated soundly. Give yourself a big hug and pat on the back!

UNCLE LEN EMBRACES HIS INNER DIVERSITY

By Uncle Len, Hidden Master of the Multicult

Sunday was some sort of multicultural diversity day in the Adelaide mall, with people from all races doing wonderful colourful things. How drab Anglo-Saxon culture is/was, and how wonderful that migration has finally brought civilisation to this land, which did not exist before 1946.

Oh, it did exist before British colonisation, which was truly evil, bringing white privilege to this land, which migrants helped overcome because they are fantastic. Not like my kind. The good thing though is that highly educated university types are exposing White privilege, such as seen in the creation of mathematics, whatever that is:

http://awmamerica.com/professor-thinks-we-should-stop-teaching-kids-math-claims-it-perpetuates-white-privilege/?utm_medium=partners&utm_source=cclu

So, for true multicult equity, hopefully we will get rid of all those racist numbers, and some gentle liberals say other belief systems:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2017-11-01-liberal-university-says-the-slogan-you-need-jesus-may-be-hate-speech.html>

Don't be sad about the inevitable loss of everything; it is all for the higher good of globalism. For example, we are soon going to get the TPP 2.0, without the United States, which will make national income 0.5 percent higher, which is a small price to pay for the surrender of national sovereignty and freedom to the global corporate elite:

THE THREAT OF DELI MEATS: BE AFRAID, VERY AFRAID By Brian Simpson

You find these sorts of meats on pizzas, fast foods and small goods; deli meats, but they are far from being health foods:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2017-11-02-which-gives-you-cancer-sooner-cigarettes-or-deli-meats-new-research-reveals-theyre-both-class-1-a-carcinogens.html>

“Surely you wouldn't put cigarettes on a sandwich and eat it, because then you'd be consuming ammonia, bleach, aluminum, formaldehyde and insecticide.

But, if you eat American processed meats, you've just consumed all of those carcinogens anyway.

Did you just pack a BLT or a ham and cheese sandwich in your child's school lunch box? If so, you could be doing some serious damage to ... their health. The WHO has made the declaration that eating processed meats regularly is just as dangerous to your health as smoking cigarettes, when it comes to the main causes of cancer. Wonder why? Well for one, the nitrites and nitrates used to preserve meats and protect their color are precursors to N-nitroso compounds (NOCs) that induce tumors in several organs in multiple animal species.

In fact, a study published in the journal Cancer links these preserved cold cut meats to bladder cancer at a 30 percent higher risk for those who consume them.

Don't worry about it; the globalist must win because they wear colourful costumes and dance wonderfully, while we just sleep, and react, slowly.

But, today there is vibrancy, excitement, sheer joy. Why, people in colourful costumes did dances to the god of globalist consumer culture. I even danced along myself, until the authorities gave me a caution, feeling that I may damage consumer sales, being, after all, a living symbol of dispossession.

I wonder though where all of this diversity comes from? Do each of these magical lands need diversity too, from immigration? Surely they do. That would help them preserve their culture, as well as help billions of Africans in the future:

<https://www.theguardian.com/global-development-professionals-network/2016/jan/11/population-growth-in-africa-grasping-the-scale-of-the-challenge>

Four billion people, most wanting to migrate! That is fantastic news! If only it was four trillion, or four zillion! Then there really would be economic growth and cheap housing, especially if all these people moved to one city, or even one street, or even, how about one house! My pet cockroach suggested that I write “one room,” but that is a bit silly because there needs to be some space between stacked up people to allow them to wriggle their toes.

More, is never enough. An infinite number of infinite universes, all teeming with migrants, migrating at the speed of light, would never be enough for the immigration lobby. ***

The study used over 300,000 men and women from eight U.S. states over an eight-year period.

What's worse is that when humans consume sodium nitrite it forms some of the most highly carcinogenic chemical compounds EVER RECORDED in the nutrition world (they're called nitrosamines).

Therefore, feeding your child cold cuts regularly is just as bad as buying them a pack of cigarettes each week and saying, ‘smoke up!’”

There has been much said for some time about such meats, but now there is strong evidence from mainstream science. All the more reason to eat organic grass fed beef, oily fish, and primarily organic vegetables. The fast food diet is the diet of doomsday. ***

OPEN SEASON ON CHRISTIANS By John Steele

Another tragic shooting in the US, and of course, the usual, “ban all guns” scream from libtards:

<http://www.breitbart.com/texas/2017/11/05/multiple-casualties-reported-in-texas-church-shooting/>

The libtards are always ready to go, and can instantly fire off the same old tired rhetoric after a shooting. However, they never follow through the logic of their “blame the weapon” argument, and never argue for immigration restriction after terrorist truck attacks, or demand tighter regulations on truck hire. That would be “racist” in their theology.

As usual Mike Adams, based in Texas, has the right take on this event, seeing it as a continuation of the war on Christians and Trump supporters:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2017-11-05-mass-shooting-in-texas-church-follows-left-wing-medias-incessant-demonization-of-christians.html>

“The left-wing media has been preaching hatred and division that targets Christians for at least the last five years. Christians are routinely demonized in the left-wing media, and intolerance and hatred have been increasingly pushed by the radical Left in America, creating more strife and division across our culture... That same political Left that has been calling for the killing of conservative speakers or political leaders is now calling for nationwide gun control, mere minutes after news broke of the Sutherland Springs shooting. Many people on social media are strongly speaking out against the Left’s politicization of this event. Many churches are designated “gun-free zones,” where pastors do not allow congregation members to bring guns into the service for self-defense purposes. We do not yet know whether this church in particular was a gun-free zone. However, many shootings over the last few years have intentionally targeted gun-free zones, knowing their victims would be unable to shoot back.”

It is pretty obvious that in this context, in a society which is already splitting open with chaos, mass shootings will occur. Talk of gun banning is mere superficial “feel goodism” since there are so many guns in America, it simply could not be done without full-scale occupation.

Never mind that a local armed resident engaged the gunman, probably preventing further deaths. ***

WOMEN AND HANDGUNS By John Steele

How about a feminist argument for armed firearm carry in Australia: that women, but NOT men should be allowed, given all the appropriate testing, to be able to carry concealed handguns for self-defence so that situations like this do not arise:

<https://freedomdaily.com/10-black-teens-attack-4th-white-woman-week-2x4s/>

Then there is this future, coming as fast as a bullet:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=mEXrbbjAk00>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JJhRiA6h1k0>

The argument would proceed along good old feminist lines about male violence and the need for women, who we can grant are in general physically weaker than men, to gain full equality a la Sam Colt. After all, the Texas church shooter fled the murder scene after he was confronted by an armed citizen, which indicates that guns save lives, too:

<http://www.breitbart.com/texas/2017/11/05/texas-church-attacker-fled-good-guy-gun-shot/>

Just think about it; all of the arguments of the gun banners would collapse for women have little gun violence, suffer greatly from domestic violence (particularly ethnic women), and generally are far better moral beings etc. etc.

I would support this form of affirmative action just to ram it up the gun banners, “ram” being defined in a non-violent, non-patriarchal, politically correct fashion. ***

THE MAGIC OF CHOCOLATE By Mrs Vera West

An article published in the Japanese journal, Nutrition:

“Flavanol-rich cocoa consumption enhances exercise-induced executive function improvements in humans,” by Hayato Tsukamoto (et al.), DOI: <http://dx.doi.org/10.1016/j.nut.2017.08.017/>, conducted a test of the health benefits of high-dose cocoa, versus low-dose cocoa, with exercise, and cognitive functioning tasks.

The results were that “The present study demonstrated that [high cocoa flavanol] consumption prior to moderate exercise could effectively enhance exercise-induced improvements in [executive function], but not in [memory function], as shown by the early improvement in [executive function] induced by [high cocoa flavanol] consumption compared with [low cocoa flavanol] consumption. Therefore we suggest that the combination of [high cocoa flavanol] consumption and aerobic exercise may be beneficial for improving cognitive function. The present study is the first to demonstrate the beneficial effect of the combination of nutritional and exercise interventions on cognitive function, especially [executive function]. However, the present study only demonstrated an acute effect on cognitive function. Further studies are needed to examine the chronic effect of the combination of [high cocoa flavanol] consumption and aerobic exercise on cognitive function.”

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2017-11-01-did-you-workout-today-if-so-have-some-chocolate.html>

In other words, the combination of exercise and chocolate consumption improves cognitive function. It is difficult to think of a more delightful medicine than chocolate. The conquistadors said that with but one cup, they could march miles. ***

WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY 'THE RULE OF LAW'? WHOSE LAW? WHICH LAW?

It would be worth while in looking at what is happening in Canada and the move for COMPELLED SPEECH

From Jordan B. Peterson:

Recently, the Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario) has made major revisions to their requirements for the annual submission for legal practitioners in that province. As part of a five-part strategic program known as 'Accelerating Culture Shift', all lawyers are now required to write, submit and abide by a 'Statement of Principles'.

The details can be viewed here <https://www.lsuc.on.ca/EDI/> -- a site which indicates what lawyers now need to 'KNOW AND DO' (caps in the original) for 2017.

In this video, I discuss this new demand (enforced by the power of government and law) with practicing lawyer Jared Brown and Professor Bruce Pardy of Queen's University, both of whom testified, along with me, last year at the Canadian Senate on the compelled speech required by federal Bill C-16.

The content of the now-mandatory 'Statement of Principles' has been dictated and will be reviewed for compliance by the Law Society itself:

Acknowledgement of the "obligation to promote equality, diversity and inclusion generally, and in... behaviour towards colleagues, employees, clients and the public."

This is part of a broader claim by the same society of systemic racism endemic in the legal profession in Ontario – a claim for which very little credible evidence has been collected and distributed.

Furthermore, the Society now requires every legal workplace of 10 or more licensees to "develop, implement and maintain a human rights/diversity policy" and to undergo an "equality, diversity and inclusion self-assessment for their legal workplace, to be provided to the Law Society" (which will also "encourage legal workplaces to conduct inclusion surveys by providing them with sample templates.")

Failure to comply brings with it the threat of serious

TAXES OR 'TRIBUTE'

I see the leaked 'Paradise Papers' have caught many prominent people in 'fly traps' by exposing their little tax-haven schemes to public scrutiny - including those set up by HM Queen Elizabeth's and Prince Charles' financial advisers.

While one's first reactions to such news is one of outrage because it all seems so unfair to the struggling business battler and all those wage-slaves trying to make ends meet, there is more to consider in this matter.

I believe Graeber's book will help you grasp Social Credit concepts much easier after reading his book "Debt The First Five Thousand Years".

Available here:

penalties, including reputational damage and, more seriously, loss of the right to practice.

By implementing such requirements the Law Society has shifted from an organization ensuring competent practice to one dedicated to policing political and philosophical attitude and behaviour. This is a clear and egregious example of compelled speech, and should be rejected as unacceptable by those at whom it is aimed.
