VACCINATIONS: PLEASE EXPLAIN By Mrs Vera West

Have I got the establishment position right? Take a vaccine and one should get immunity to the disease one was vaccinated against? Then please explain this:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-03-05-teenage-boy-dies-from-meningitis-only-months-after-receiving-vaccine.html>

“A teenage boy, vaccinated against four strains of bacterial meningitis, became ill with a deadly form of meningitis just months after receiving the vaccine. Within 72 hours after contracting meningitis, 19-year-old Lewis Hilton lost motor control, stopped breathing on his own, and passed away. Hilton was an active rugby player who was promised protection from meningitis when he got the quadrivalent vaccine last September. The National Health Services confirmed that a deadly strain of meningitis ultimately overtook his body, sending him into paralysis and death. When he fell ill with flu like symptoms, Hilton’s father took him from work.

He didn’t have any purple rash, a sign of typical meningitis infection. The flu was ruled out because meningitis infection affects the spinal cord, the brain lining and limb movement. By the time he made it to the hospital the next day, he couldn’t walk and had trouble speaking. Soon, he couldn’t even hold himself up in the hospital bed. The hospital treated him for viral and bacterial meningitis, but the infection overwhelmed the young man. He stopped breathing on his own and was put on a ventilator in his last moments of life. He passed away on January 28 at Huddersfield Royal Infirmary.”

There needs to be a big “please explain” added here because it raises doubts about the effectiveness of vaccines, as pointed out by Natural News:

“How can we trust vaccine science to work, if this young man died from meningitis just months after receiving the vaccine that was designed to protect against meningitis? Vaccine makers cannot predict the dominant pathogenic strain that every person will face. Vaccine makers can come up with new vaccines to expose the population’s immune systems to new pathogenic strains, but this one-size-fits-all method is just guesswork, a shot in the dark. Nature is always one step ahead — viruses and bacteria mutating to survive.

A meningitis infection can range from benign symptoms that go away or the infection can lead to debilitating, life altering problems that affect the central nervous system. What factors of immunity influence the variance in symptoms? Do the meningitis strains in vaccines enable mutating meningitis strains to take advantage of vaccinated people more readily? Does vaccine science ultimately worsen a person’s symptoms because their immune system is trained against the wrong strains? Does faulty vaccine science permit deeper infection in vaccinated people, initiating paralysis and loss of breathing and sudden death?

One thing is obvious: More people are dying from the illnesses they were vaccinated against. We cannot rely on vaccine science to magically protect us from infection. In fact, we should distrust the science to the core of our being and focus on a realistic, multi-faceted approach for prevention of illness.”

The idea that we should reject the propaganda that Big Pharma provides us with a magic bullet of disease protection, seems sound to me, and it is wise to have a multi-dimension approach to health, not abandoning completely modern medicine or even Big Pharma, but adopting a critical evidence-based approach to health.

What works best, is that which is true.

TOMORROW'S GRIM, GLOBAL, GREEN DICTATORSHIP By Viv Forbes

Greens (collectivists-ed) hate individual freedom and private property. They dream of a centralised unelected global government, financed by taxes on developed nations, and controlled by all the tentacles of the UN.

No longer is real pollution of our environment the main Green concern. The key slogan of the Green religion is 'sustainable development', with them defining what is sustainable.

Greens hate miners. They use nationalised parks, heritage areas, flora/fauna reserves, green bans and land rights to close as much land as possible to explorers and miners – apparently resources should be locked away for some lucky future generation. And if some persistent explorer manages to prove a mineral deposit, Greens will then strangle it in the approvals process using 'death by delay'.

Greens hate farmers with their ploughs, fertilisers, crops and grazing animals. They want Aussie grazing land turned back to kangaroos. They plan to expel farmers and graziers from most land areas, with food produced in concentrated feedlots, factory farms, communal gardens and hydroponics.

Greens hate professional fishermen with their nets, lines and harpoons. Using the Great Barrier Reef as their poster-child, they plan to control the seas using marine parks, fishing quotas, bans and licences, leaving us to get seafood from concentrated fish farms.

Greens hate foresters and grass-farmers. They want every tree protected, even woody weeds taking over ancient treeless grasslands. Red meat and forest timber are 'unsustainable'. Apparently they want us to live in houses made of recycled cardboard and plastic and eating fake steak and protein powder made from methane generated from rubbish dumps.

Greens despise the suburbs with their SUV's, lawns, pools, manicured parks, ponies and golf courses. They prefer concentrated accommodation with people stacked and packed in high-rise cubic apartments, with state controlled kindies in the basement, and with ring-roads of electric trams and driverless cars connecting apartments, schools, offices and shops.

THE INCREDIBLE EXPLODING LIBERAL BRAIN By Tom North

Here is a good one about how young socialist types (Americans call them all 'liberals'), can go into mental meltdown:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-03-04-liberal-lunatics-students-go-insane-when-panel-agrees-that-men-and-women-are-different.html>

“An event called ‘We Need to Talk About Diversity’ was hosted by Portland State University on February 17, 2018. The event, moderated by philosophy professor Peter Boghossian, discussed viewpoint diversity. It included a panel of three professionals, including Evergreen State College biologist...

Greens hate reliable grid power from coal, nuclear, oil, gas or hydro generators. Their 'sustainable' option is part-time power from wind and solar with the inevitable blackouts and shortages needing more rules and rationing.

Greens lead the war (against-ed) fracking and pipelines. The victims are energy consumers. The beneficiaries are Russian gas and Middle-east oil.

Greens think it is 'sustainable' to uglify scenic hills with whining wind towers, power poles, transmission lines and access roads, and to clutter pleasant estuaries and shallow seas with more bird-slicing turbines. They think it is 'sustainable' to keep smothering sunny flatlands under solar panels and filling the suburbs with extra power lines and batteries of toxic metals.

Greens think it is 'sustainable' to clear forests for bio-mass to feed large wood-fired power stations, or for establishing biofuel plantations. They think it is 'sustainable' to keep converting croplands from producing food for humans to producing ethanol for cars.

Greens hate free markets where prices are used to signal changing supply and demand. There is no room for luxuries or frills in their 'sustainable' world. They want to limit demand by imposing rationing on us wastrels – carbon ration cards, electricity rationing meters, water rationing, meat free days, diet cops and bans on fast food and fizzy-drinks.

They also favour compulsory recycling of everything, no matter what the process costs in energy or resources. Surveillance cameras will keep watch on our 'wasteful' habits.

None of this vast green religious agenda is compatible with individual freedom, constitutional rights or private property.

The Despot Green New World is coming. Climate alarm is the stalking horse, 'sustainable development' is the war cry, and global government is the goal.

Heather E. Heying, writer Helen Pluckrose, and former Google engineer James DaMore who was ousted from Google in 2017 after penning a memo explaining the differences between men and women. When the panel agreed on the simple fact that men and women are physiologically different, a band of liberal lunatics went berserk, throwing a fit in front of the audience and cutting off the sound system as they left. This is not the first time James DaMore had faced this kind of liberal lunacy. (continued next page)

(continued from previous page) In fact, DaMore was fired in 2017 when he wrote a memo explaining the biological differences between men and women. Biologist Heather Heying was no stranger to this kind of absurd liberal behavior either. She came under attack during the liberal-led mob attacks at the college, simply because she taught biological truths.”

CHEDDAR MAN AND THE IMMIGRATION MANIA By Brian Simpson

In previous articles I have covered the strange case of Cheddar Man, a fossil, whose genetic analysis allegedly showed that ancient Britons had black skin and blue eyes. More recent articles have shown that under criticism from other geneticists, the team has moved away from the claim. But surely they must have been aware of the problems from the beginning, so why make the big public statement? Clearly to support mass immigration. Yet there is a problem with this line of argument, as this article details:

<http://www.eurocanadian.ca/2018/02/cheddar-man-using-archaeology-to-promote-immigration-cult.html>

“consider the logical implications of this claim by Diekmann. Contrary to the pitch with which the discovery has been sold, it does not enhance but diminish the immigrationist point of view: IF it is true that the first Britons were brown, it means that Whites are unique to Europe. It means that we did not immigrate to Europe from another place, but are truly indigenous to Europe because we only evolved there. Whites are unique and indigenous to Europe — two hatefacts of the highest order to immigrationists. Rather than weakening the identity relation between being European and being White, a brown Cheddar man actually deconstructs the notion that ‘everybody is an immigrant’ — Whites aren’t in Europe. And there are even more implications:

If white is an evolution of brown, it also means that we are more evolved than Browns, at least in the sense of being better adapted to European climate and habitat. But possibly also in more complex, deeper ways, ways

BASIC FUND UPDATE

Readers will have noticed reference in the journals about the move into producing filmed forum discussions on Social Credit. This is hoped to be the 2018 effort to reach a different audience, especially the younger brigade who dislike attending meetings or reading articles. The League has employed substantial funds to provide suitable equipment for the filming and editing for eventual availability via youtube or similar forums. Watch the journals for the links.

The weekly On Target and monthly New Times Survey require editing, printing and posting and headquarters are managing all of these tasks.

Actionists are taking up the battle of informing their selected case studies from the past allegedly showing that Christianity held back science. There is much debate about this, but it is clear that even in the Medieval period, Christianity never sunk to the level that modern university urban elites have sunk.

They deny reality to further their own delusions. The problem with this, is that at some point the rainbow balloon will burst. Pop, their world is gone. *** which would deeply upset any egalitarian world view. The idea that peoples from cold climates have a higher group intelligence because the evolutionary pressure to survive and cooperate has been greater in the harsh climate than in the warmer climes is reasonable to contemplate. If the conditions in Europe were so different from the place where the Cheddar man came from that they changed his phenotype within a relatively short span of time, why should his evolution be limited only to one particular characteristic, the pigmentation of his skin, and not to more aspects of his body and mind? The belief in One World requires One Truth, the orthodox, politically correct truth that everybody is “equal.” Turning briefly to the Americas, note the leftist double standard in treating distant ancestry. Amerindians clearly descend from Asiatic people. Yet no leftist makes the case that Amerindians owe something to Asiatics, that the pre-Colombian Americas were therefore a “nation of immigrants” and that — Heaven forbid! — the definition of a “native” to Canada is not an immutable truth but bound to change over time. No multiculturalist would ever argue this way because then he would have to concede that the European founding peoples of Canada have to be considered “First nations” too — and gone out of the window the carefully crafted special status of Amerindians would be.”

This is good clear thinking showing the logical contradictions in the heart of the archaeology as ideology paradigm. I could not have put it better myself. ***

MP’s of their desires. One particular group in Victoria has recently mailed to practically every member of the House of Representatives information about undesirable outcomes stemming from new arrivals to Australia who hold anti-Christian beliefs.

It is all happening and now that 2018 is well under way, it is time to remind readers about donations to ensure the good work continues. Thank you to those who have already donated. The basic fund stands at $ 14 675 and for those who wish to assist us reach the target of $60,000 please send your donations to our Bank account direct or Head Office. Details are on the back page. - Nat Dir ***

DOES ANYONE REMEMBER, PENCILS? By Michael Ferguson

There are many disturbing signs of cultural decline, including the trend of physical weakness arising from a sedentary life style and the neurotic use of computers. It seems that this trend has got so bad that children are becoming too weak in the hands to be able to use a pencil:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-03-04-doctors-shocked-as-children-no-longer-able-to-hold-pencils-due-to-endless-use-of-mobile-devices.html>

“A study carried out by the Heart of England Foundation NHS Trust found that young children are entering school without the hand strength and dexterity needed to hold their pencils due to the widespread overuse of touchscreen tablets and phones. The ability to grip and move a pencil requires a strong control over the fine muscles in the fingers, and children who are constantly using touchscreens don’t get the opportunity to develop these essential skills.

WILL NICK GET THE FLICK? By Uncle Len

My fans have been eager for me to take up pen and paper again and produce the literature that we all know and love. Unfortunately I have been out of action for a while, due to psychiatric problems, but now, all medicated, I am working like a two bob watch. I even keep perfect time, twice a day.

Speaking of things working, hey, isn’t it good news that Nick, whose surname I can’t remember, but it rhymes with “telephone,” looks like crashing in the SA elections. Nick was one of the guys who helped prevent changes to section 18C. Now, opinion polls indicate that he and his party, whatever it is called, are in free fall: The Weekend Australian, March 3-4, 2018, p. 1. Good work Nick, I could not have done worse.

And, I for one, am not sorry, and I bet James Reed and Ian Wilson are not either, for Nick’s plight. Our friends at this site endlessly wrote about the evils of section 18C, and they probably should be writing this, but since I am covering the SA election, and am the only League writer on the ground here, it’s my job. That means, for a little while I am almost an important person.

What else to say? Well I don’t even know what party

Parents have no one to blame but themselves, according to British pediatricians. Many parents find it easier to park their kids in front of an iPad than to encourage them to build with blocks or participate in other activities that build hand muscles such as coloring. One mother recounted to the Guardian how her son’s school contacted her because he was “gripping his pencil how a caveman held sticks.” He was unable to get a proper grip to write, and the six-year-old is now attending weekly occupational therapy session to develop strength in his fingers.”

This article brought back memories of one of my teachers, who was old when I was young in the 1950s, who knew how to write correctly, and instructed us in the noble art of holding a pen correctly. It was a valuable lesson that children today will need to learn. *** was in power before the election, and I don’t know anything about the candidates from the major parties except that they are all disgusting. Who will I vote for? Probably that party at least making some squeaks about population growth, although it would be nice if someone said the immigration word.

Try minor parties, other than Nick’s and don’t forget the Reduce Immigration write on:

<https://reduceimmigration.wordpress.com>

This is the first serious article which I have written, but responsibility for election comment is taken by some other guy, so I should have put the boots in more, relaxed, told some jokes, and not fell asleep at the keyboard (although I wrote this in pencil and sent it by magpie to the editor). ***

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WEBCAST FORUM

The time has come for the next generation to ‘pick up the baton’ that their elders have been carrying for most of their adult lives. To assist this objective we are starting a WebCast Forum for young people to discuss the issues of the day and work through to provide practical Christian/Social Credit answers. All they need is commitment and a reasonable internet connection.

Do you know of a likely candidate amongst your immediate family and friends for this forum?
