THE PEAK OF CHRISTIAN PERSECUTION AND GENOCIDE IS...NOW!

By Chris Knight

Have a guess; when was peak Christian persecution and genocide? The era of ancient Rome? Think again:

<http://www.newsweek.com/christian-persecution-genocide-worse-ever-770462>

“The persecution and genocide of Christians across the world is worse today ‘than at any time in history’, and Western governments are failing to stop it, a report from a Catholic organization said. The study by Aid to the Church in Need said the treatment of Christians has worsened substantially in the past two years compared with the two years prior, and has grown more violent than any other period in modern times. “Not only are Christians more persecuted than any other faith group, but ever-increasing numbers are experiencing the very worst forms of persecution,” the report said. The report examined the plight of Christians in China, Egypt, Eritrea, India, Iran, Iraq, Nigeria, North Korea, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syria and Turkey over the period lasting from 2015 until 2017. The research showed that in that time, Christians suffered crimes against humanity, and some were hanged or crucified. The report found that Saudi Arabia was the only country where the situation for Christians did not get worse, and that was only because the situation couldn’t get any worse than it already was.”

This, is I think, yet more evidence for the idea that the West is sliding rapidly back into the Medieval period, with only technology preventing a total collapse, although, in many respects, technology with its job-eliminating powers, is producing a state of techno-feudalism. To fully reduce the human soul to a machine, the masters of darkness need to eliminate any challenge that Christianity could make to their game plan, and by the looks of things over the past 50 years, they are going strong, as the Christian worldview is in rapid decline, everywhere.

THE ANTI-ECONOMY OF LESS By Peter Ewer

We would disagree with men of the Left, such as James Howard Kunstler on many things, such as the illusory peak oil (oil will never run out), and climate change (God does not let such disasters occur, since His promise from the flood in Genesis). However, whatever the cause, we agree that a breakdown of Western civilisation is rapidly occurring, so we must seek insights about this from various sources even if we disagree on the details. Kunstler has something interesting to say:

<https://www.peakprosperity.com/podcast/113829/james-howard-kunstler-coming-economy-less>

“The important story is what happens in the financial sector and how it effects the economy in the next twelve to eighteen months. As we know, the financial system is the most abstract and fragile of all the systems that we depend on because the other systems can’t run without it. The trucks won’t make the food deliveries to the supermarkets unless the finance system works. The gasoline won’t get to the pumps at the stations. Nothing’s going to move if the financial system cracks up. People no longer trust each other to transact, to get paid. And so they stop transacting. We’re talking about a falling standard of living and getting used to an economy of ‘less’. It sounds kind of Ebenezer Scrooge-ish to suggest that people may have to do with less rather than more, because more has always been the expectation in our lifetime. But that’s probably a fact. And as I’ve said more than once, reality has mandates of its own. Circumstances are going to inform us about how this economy is emerging and where we need to go with it. And we can either pay attention or just sit there with our fingers in our ears.

(continued from previous page) What we're talking about here is the armature of our culture and economy that people hang their lives on. And that armature is crumbling. There are fewer things that people can hang a life on in a meaningful way, or a way that even ensures that they can have a little bit of security looking into even a short-term future.

For example, I had a day yesterday that felt like national Murphy's Law Day. I got a screw in a tire. The screw was in a place where, under New York State law, they're not allowed to fix the tire if the screw is near the outside of tread. So I had to buy a brand-new tire. And then I was going to take the trash to the dump in my old pickup truck, which I keep around for that purpose. But the battery was dead. So I had to go down to the auto parts store and buy a new battery, and bring it home and put it in.

Now, I'm among the lucky people in this land who can actually buy a new tire and buy a car battery. But probably some enormous percentage of the population, like 78% or 84% -- I'm not quite sure what it is -- they don't have enough money to buy a new car battery if their car dies on some god forsaken freeway shoulder 38 miles from home. Imagine how crazy-making that is. I can easily, because I was a truly starving bohemian until well into my 40s, struggling just to

THOUGHT POLICE ON THE MARCH By James Reed

Wow, a chain article, linked in theme with my brother writers. Yes, we are moving into a state of techno-feudalism, where the elites rule through control of resources, in this case information. The latest in censorship is that boobtube, sorry, YouTube, is going to 'fact check' controversial videos with that kind of authorities, Wikipedia! Yes, Wikipedia, a site which university students are not permitted to quote because of its lack of authority:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-03-14-thought-police-youtube-to-start-correcting-controversial-videos-with-facts-from-discredited-wikipedia-pages-run-by-disinfo-trolls.html>

"Now, YouTube CEO Wojcicki believes that video content creators who dare mention 'conspiracy' topics such as mercury in vaccines, chemtrails or the globalist depopulation agenda must be 'corrected' with Wikipedia propaganda. The thought police are hard at work at YouTube, banning or censoring all the videos they don't want you to see.

The new Wikipedia 'corrections' will begin appearing on YouTube videos in the next two weeks, Wojcicki said in a SXSW speech. Notice her doublespeak as she explains how this is going to work: "When there are videos that are focused around something that's a conspiracy — and we're using a list of well-known internet conspiracies from Wikipedia — then we will show a companion unit of information from Wikipedia pay the light bill while writing book after book. So I know what it's like to live day after day in that kind of financial anxiety. I imagine that the financial anxiety out there right now is just so extreme that there's a whole mass of people who are being pushed to the limits of their sanity."

Kunstler at least sees the inner contradictions of the financial system, which puts us on common ground. One article describes him thus:

"Kunstler is not anti-American, nor is he a standard-issue liberal. He is interesting and unorthodox enough to have appeared in Rod Dreher's Crunchy Cons, which dubbed him a 'prophetic crank'. A secular Jew, a fierce localist, a skeptic of left-wing cultural pieties and 'techno-narcissistic' science-fiction schemes. Kunstler might best be described as a patriot for an America that no longer exists: a country of small towns, tight-knit communities, human-scale development, and local entrepreneurship. We were never perfect, but we certainly don't come close to embodying these ideals today. Kunstler is trying to nudge us in that direction."

In this time of war, we will need to seek out alliances wherever they can be found. ***

showing that here is information about the event..."

'Companion' unit of information? What she means is that the YouTube thought police will 'correct' the video to make sure the techno-dictatorship properly indoctrinates the minds of viewers with the official (false) narrative on everything.

No independent thinking will be allowed on any subject that matters — climate change, the federal reserve, vaccines or science — without being intercepted and 'corrected' by YouTube's thought control monitors.

Yes, George Orwell's 1984 has arrived, and it's called 'YouTube'... This announcement by the propagandist-in-chief Susan Wojcicki — who is rapidly becoming the Joseph Goebbels of the internet — reveals just how quickly YouTube is following in the footsteps of Communist China to control the perceptions and thoughts of its users. All the so-called 'conspiracy theories' that will be 'corrected' by YouTube, of course, are determined by radical left-wing indoctrination overlords who dominate the tech platforms. To these totalitarian lunatics, the idea that the Russians stole the 2016 election is a 'fact', but the idea that geoengineering experiments are being run to alter the atmosphere is a 'conspiracy theory' (even though it's now openly admitted by science-based universities such as MIT)."

But, all is not lost. Mike Adams for one, is very pro-active on the IT front and is launching Real.Video to answer You Tube's censorship, and is giving a good example of the way to fight back.

THE COMING OF LAWLESSNESS By Peter West

Fellow writers are covering the uncivil war in Europe, but the same is happening across the West, perhaps not as accelerated in Australia, thank God. Thus, in Los Angeles a federal judge has ruled that authorities cannot enforce gang restrictions, because this violated due process, that is, the rights of the gang members!

<http://www.latimes.com/local/lanow/la-me-ln-gang-injunction-court-order-20180315-story.html>

“The court clearly recognizes the way the city of Los Angeles has been enforcing gang injunctions over decades violates due process in a way that makes it likely they will place people on gang injunctions who may not be gang members,” Bibring said Thursday. “This ruling marks the end of gang injunctions as they worked in the city of Los Angeles.”

In a statement, Los Angeles police officials said they would wait for guidance from the city attorney's office before discussing the ruling. “As always, we respect the authority of the courts and will follow the court's decision, and will continue to keep the City safe while following the constitution and all applicable laws,” the statement read. A spokesman for the city attorney's office could not immediately comment on the court order. The Los Angeles Police Protective League, the union representing rank-and-file police officers, said in a statement: “Appropriately applied, gang injunctions are a valuable law enforcement tool intended to

THE TRULY AMAZING ADVENTURES OF SUPER GEORGE By Tom North

The things young Georgey Soros gets up to, the little Tom Sawyer, would make a great family movie:

<http://www.breitbart.com/london/2018/03/19/caught-red-handed-soros-body-german-lobbying-pressure-hungary-ngo-law/>

“The head of a Soros-funded organisation described how his group lobbies Germany to pressure Hungary into abandoning its NGO transparency law.

Balázs Dénes detailed how the Civil Liberties Union for Europe, supported by George Soros's Open Society Foundations (OSF), attempts to influence Germany via its links to think tanks close to the German government, according to recordings obtained by The Jerusalem Post.

Dénes described his main target as Hungary's NGO transparency law which seeks for greater transparency of foreign-funded bodies in the country — directly Establish alternative networks of your own, and keep close contact with them so that the elites will have a much more difficult time monitoring and censoring.

improve the safety of Los Angeles neighborhoods and stem the tide of drug dealing, assaults, and other violent crimes associated with gangs,” the statement said. “It's unfortunate that a judge would eliminate this important crime fighting tool instead of working to resolve any issues with its application. We urge the city to appeal this shortsighted ruling.”

<http://collapse.news/2018-03-18-total-lawlessness-judge-blocks-los-angeles-from-enforcing-gang-related-restrictions.html>

However, the same due process considerations are not being given to gun owners, as confiscations are occurring across America, with Trump's blessing. America is perhaps behind South Africa and Europe, but is exhibiting the same descent into chaos found in all collapsing civilisations.

That is a depressing negative conclusion, but what has the truth to do with happy times? Reality is what is, what the facts lead us to conclude, and real men do not fear facing the real. Only then can some sort of resistance be thought out. If collapse is inevitable, then we should be saying this, or at least thinking about it, rather than giving false hope just to keep people happy and oblivious, until they are squashed by the freight train of reality. People like Mike Adams do not have a problem with this line, but it is probably a bit too soon for Australians:

affecting Soros's open borders charities and pressure groups.

“We work very strongly. I'm having a meeting this week with a think tank, an organisation which is influencing the German government and the Foreign Ministry of Germany, and I'm bringing them copies of the law, just translated from Hungarian, and I'm explaining [to] them what they can do against it,” Dénes is reported to have said.”

Sometimes I wonder if we just surrendered and made George emperor of all mankind, would he be happy then?

Oh wait, he is apparently made of the same stuff as us, and at some point in the next 1,000 years, will pass away into the afterlife, which will be fully globalised to his taste.

OIL PULLING AND ORAL HYGIENE By Mrs Vera West

First, the usual boring disclaimer, that we are not dispensing health recommendations, which only professions can do because of the medical monopoly. That done, consider oral hygiene. There is an interesting article on ScienceDirect: dealing with oil pulling, which is simply keeping coconut or olive oil in your mouth for say 20 minutes, not swallowing and spitting the contents out. It is thought to improve oral health through killing bugs and other nasties:

“Oil pulling is observed to bring improvement in oral hygiene when practiced correctly and regularly. Limited available research on effect of oil pulling on oral hygiene shows promising benefits of oil pulling procedure on oral cavity. However oil pulling

DOCTORS AND CASH KICKBACKS

By Mrs Vera West

It seems that about two thirds of US doctors, and probably the same percentage in Australia, are getting cash kickbacks from Big Pharma:

<https://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2017/03/170306114211.htm>

“A majority of patients in the United States visited a doctor who received payments from drug companies, but most have no clue about it, according to a new Drexel University study. About 65 percent of those surveyed as a part of the study by Genevieve Pham-Kanter, PhD, an assistant professor in Drexel’s Dornsife School of Public Health, visited a doctor within the last year who had received payments or gifts from pharmaceutical or medical device companies. What’s more: Only 5 percent of those surveyed knew that their doctor had received such payments. “These findings tell us that if you thought that your doctor was not receiving any money from industry, you’re most likely mistaken,” Pham-Kanter said. “Patients should be aware of the incentives that their physicians face that may lead them to not always act in their patients’ best interest. And the more informed patients are about their providers and options for care, the better decisions they can make.”

The original study can be found here:

<https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007%2Fs11606-017-4012-3>

This is a significant result because it shows that doctors may well have conflicts of interests, promoting Big Pharma drugs to patients, not because they know that these drugs work because they have read the peer reviewed evidence, but because they are part of the ‘network’ it also makes the prescription of alternative, not Big Pharma health strategies less likely, since there is a prescription bias created. All the more reason to educate yourself about your health, so that you can make more informed health decisions, and if necessary question advise that you find problematic, and seek second, if not third opinions. ***

does not replace dental therapy and is currently not recommended by American dental association. Extensive research on the role of this traditional, cheap and valuable remedy should be encouraged without bias. Based on currently available research it can be concluded that oil pulling when performed as recommended, can be safely used as an adjunct to maintain good oral hygiene and health along with the routine tooth brushing and flossing with promising positive results.”

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Age The campaign in the 1960s and 1970s against ‘white supremacy’ in southern Africa, as predicted by those of us who supported the governments of Rhodesia, South Africa and Portugal at the time, has not benefited most black Africans at all, despite the apparent conviction otherwise of Adrian Di Lollo (21/3). Those minority governments were not ideal, for obvious reasons, but they offered the best chances of security and social stability for their peoples as a whole. Foolish idealism brought disaster.

Because Australia is primarily a British nation, we have a special obligation to our ethnic relations, the currently persecuted white South African farmers, and Peter Dutton has been right to advocate their acceptance here. We should offer them sanctuary from racist oppression. NJ, Belgrave, Vic ***
