THE NEW WORLD ASIAN ORDER By James Reed

The elites want it to happen, and have been working tirelessly on it for centuries, while of course, making handsome profits; destroy the West and replace it by Asia, a place, and race that they are more comfortable with:

<https://russia-insider.com/en/politics/singapore-astana-and-st-petersburg-all-mean-same-thing-new-world-order-coming/ri23763>

“The Astana Economic Forum in Kazakhstan centered on how mega-partnerships are changing world trade. Participants included the president of the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB) Jin Liqun; Andrew Belyaninov from the Eurasian Development Bank; former Italian Prime Minister and president of the EU Commission Romano Prodi; deputy director-general of the WTO Alan Wolff; and Glenn Diesen from the University of Western Sydney. Diesen, a Norwegian who studied in Holland and teaches in Australia, is the author of a must-read book, Russia’s Geoeconomic Strategy for a Greater Eurasia, in which he analyzes in excruciating detail how Moscow is planning “to manage the continent from the heartland by enhancing collective autonomy and influence, and thus evict US hegemony directed from the periphery.”

In parallel, as Diesen argues, Moscow aims “to ensure the sustainability of an integrated Eurasia by establishing a balance of power or ‘balance of dependence’ to prevent the continent from being dominated by one power, with China being the most plausible candidate.”

Of course, there is a Chinese version of this largely Russian-centred narrative, which sees China emerging as the number one global power. That would be far worse than anything we have seen from the American regime, and probably our best hope then would be for nuclear annihilation of the planet. Remember, “better dead than red?” No, wait, it was the other way round, wasn’t it? I guess it depends upon one’s politics.

Speaking of annihilation, it seems that whatever weapon America devises, Chinese hackers, or maybe just ethnic Chinese researchers, give it to China. Isn’t that ironic? ***

ONLY IN KALIFORNICATION By Chris Knight

How absurd does it get? In California it is now illegal to have a shower and do laundry on the same day!

This is to conserve water, even in times where there is no water shortage, “just to be sure”:

<https://www.zerohedge.com/news/2018-06-03/its-now-against-law-california-shower-and-do-laundry-same-day>

“Senate Bill 606 establishes a “governing body” to oversee all water suppliers, both private and public and will require extensive paperwork from those utility companies. Assembly Bill 1668 is where it gets personal. This establishes limits on indoor water usage for every person in California and the amount allowed will decrease even further over the next 12 years. The bill, until January 1, 2025, would establish 55 gallons per capita daily as the standard for indoor residential water use; Beginning January 1, 2025, would establish the greater of 52.5 gallons per capita daily or a standard recommended by the department and the board as the standard for indoor residential water use, and beginning January 1, 2030, would establish the greater of 50 gallons per capita daily or a standard recommended by the department and the board as the standard for indoor residential water use. The bill would impose civil liability for a violation of an order or regulation issued pursuant to these provisions, as specified. If you’re wondering how the government would know how much water your family is using, the utility providers will be obligated to rat you out or face massive fines. They “shall use satellite imagery, site visits, or other best available technology to develop an accurate estimate of landscaped areas.”

All of this is not really about saving water, because it is not adapted to times where there is no water shortage. ***

SWEDEN PREPARES FOR WAR. BUT, WHY BOTHER? By Bruce Bennett

Put this one in the eternal puzzle department:

<https://www.theorganicprepper.com/swedish-home-guard-mobilized/>

“For the first time since 1975, the Armed Forces carry out an unannounced emergency preparedness control of the entire Hemvärnet. All staff around Sweden who are part of one of the 40 home war battalions and who have the opportunity to attend the evening of 5 June and during the national day will be in charge of service. The alarm is ordered by the Armed Forces and participation in the exercise is voluntary.

“We are committed to strengthening Sweden’s defense and increasing our operational capabilities. This is a way to do it. This exercise is great in several ways. We are testing the emergency chain for almost half our intervention organization, we have not done since 1975, says Micael Bydén, the commander.

Initially, staff – from north to south – will be contacted and invited to stand for service. Thereafter, relations will begin to solve tasks, such as protection, guarding and patrolling. During the national day, home care personnel will be seen in many places around the country, from ports and airports to streets and squares. Since it is a voluntary exercise, the Armed Forces can not force anyone to settle, but the chief commander shows great confidence in his staff.”

The authorities are telling everyone not to worry, that this is just a routine drill, even though the last such drill was in 1975, at the pinnacle of the Cold War. So, the authorities are getting ready for war with Russia, their new big thing, or maybe, the preps are for a coming civil war, when Sweden just splits open and dies. Either way, such preparations are pointless.

COMING SOON: AN AI CAUSED NUCLEAR APOCALYPSE By James Reed

It is straight out of the Terminator movies, with advances in artificial intelligence destroying humanity, the ultimate hubris:

<http://collapse.news/2018-06-03-ai-could-spark-a-nuclear-apocalypse-by-2040.html>

“A new study conducted by the RAND Corporation warns that advances in artificial intelligence could spark a nuclear apocalypse as soon as 2040. The researchers gathered information from experts in nuclear issues, government, AI research, AI policy, and national security. According to the paper, AI machines might not destroy the world autonomously, but artificial intelligence could encourage humans to take apocalyptic risks with military decisions.

Humans will inevitably trust in AI technology to a greater extent, as advances are made in AI for detection, tracking, and targeting. The newfound data intelligence that AI provides will escalate war time tensions and encourage bold, calculated decisions. As armies trust AI to translate data, they will be more apt to take drastic measures against one another. It will be

A Russian invasion could only improve things, and as for civil war, well, the prepping is a bit too late, because it appears to have already started.

No doubt the Nordic mice need to be kept under control, but you don’t need guns to do that: just say behave yourself children, and everyone will go back to their coloured pens and paper, in a great childcare “nation.”

In any case, NATO is just itching for a chance to have a shot at Russia, whom they see as waiting to attack and invade Europe stealing all of its migrants:

“The United States is pressing its European allies to get more NATO battalions, ships and planes ready for combat, officials say, in a fresh move to shore up NATO’s deterrence against any Russian attack. U.S. Secretary of Defence Jim Mattis will seek broad agreement for the plan in Brussels on Thursday when alliance defence ministers meet, laying the ground for endorsement by NATO leaders at a summit in July, four U.S. and NATO officials and diplomats told Reuters. Known as 30-30-30-30, the plan would require NATO to have 30 land battalions, 30 air fighter squadrons and 30 ships ready to deploy within 30 days of being put on alert.”

Unfortunately for this plan, it will all be over in under 30 days, or 30 minutes, since Russia is not afraid of using strategic nukes to vapourise these puny defences. It also has big daddy nukes, Satan II, capable of levelling countries the size of France. Only the insane would want war with such a power. Ergo, the Deep State is insane. But, we knew that. ***

like playing chess against a computer that can predict your future moves and make decisions accordingly. Since 1945, the thought of ‘mutually assured destruction’ through nuclear war has kept countries accountable to one another. With AI calculating risks more efficiently, armies will be able to attack with greater precision. In the paper, researchers highlight the potential of AI to erode the condition of mutually assured destruction, therefore undermining strategic stability. An improvement in sensor technology, for example, could help one side take out opposing submarines, as they gain bargaining leverage in an escalating conflict. AI will give armies the knowledge they need to take risky moves that give them the upper hand in battle.” <https://www.rand.org/pubs/perspectives/PE296.html>

Humans have always used whatever weapons they had available, including nuclear weapons. There is no reason to believe that AI will not be abused in the most diabolical ways, making Hollywood movies like the Terminator, seem mild by comparison. ***

THE FAILURE OF GUN CONTROL By John Steele

Some great articles about the failure of gun control, with Australia getting a dishonourable mention:

<http://www.breitbart.com/big-government/2018/06/02/>

gun-control-fail-shooting-attacks-rock-australia-london/

“Australian police discovered the bodies of seven mass shooting victims on May 11, and on May 31, a machine gun attack in London left a man in his twenties fighting for his life. These shootings are occurring in nations the left has long held up as having the kinds of gun control America should implement. For example, on October 16, 2015, during a campaign stop in New Hampshire, Hillary Clinton described Australia’s confiscatory approach to gun control and said that “it would be worth considering doing it on the national level” here. And on July 5, 2016, Breitbart News reported that gun-toting action star Matt Damon used the Australian premiere of Jason Bourne to praise that country’s gun controls. Stuff magazine quoted Damon saying, “You guys did it here in one fell swoop and I wish that could happen in my country, but it’s such a personal issue for people that we cannot talk about it sensibly. We just can’t.”

On September 12, 2014, shoot ’em star Liam Neeson spoke to the Independent, complaining about private gun ownership in America and praising Great Britain for banning handguns. Yet here we are in 2018, with a mass shooting in Australia, a machine gun attack in London, and London stabbings at such levels that knife control is the talk of the town.

On May 11, 2018, the New York Times reported on the Australian mass shooting, noting that it included four children, “aged 8 to 13.” On June 1, 2018, Breitbart News reported on London’s machine gun attack. And on April 2, 2018—long before the machine gun attack—Breitbart News reported that the surge of stabbings in gun-controlled London had driven the number of homicides in that city higher than the number in New York City.”

Both Britain and Australia are tyrannical societies that have rejected traditional values such as free speech and personal self-defence, slowly but surely, with Britain being slightly ahead in the fascism stakes, but Australia quickly catching up. I pound my fists into the ground screaming for the ‘people’ to wake up, but then I realise that the question now is ‘what are the people today’?

The Australia we knew has long gone; the elites tell us that all the time, and laugh at us, while spitting on us. The realisation of what has happened, that the war has been lost while patriots slept, has not yet dawned upon most of us.

PESTICIDES AND THE CRASH OF IQ By John Steele

Could this explain why so many people do not have the capacity to “see it,” even though the internet has presented a wealth of information for viewing? Pesticides on the brain ...

“Three studies that examined children from very different backgrounds all reached the same conclusion: Prenatal exposure to these pesticides can have a significant long-term adverse effect on a child’s brain health, and it doesn’t matter if that exposure came from crops or cockroach control products. We’re not talking about a small difference, either; the exposure lowered children’s IQ by as many as seven points! In the two studies that took place in New York, inner-city children aged 6 to 9 who had been born to mothers who were exposed to chlorpyrifos noted working memory decreases of 2.8 percent and IQ drops of 1.4 percent for every increment of exposure. This means the effect is linear; those who had higher levels of exposure experienced more negative effects on cognition. It’s a drop that can cause serious problems in math and reading.

Another study, this one carried out in California, looked at 300 children who lived in Monterey County agricultural communities where organophosphates were sprayed on crops and wind drift made exposure even worse. Their mothers had been studied during pregnancy to assess the organophosphate metabolites in their systems to determine their exposure. Their offspring underwent tests during childhood that included intelligence tests.

The researchers in this study found that for each 10-fold rise in organophosphates detected during pregnancy, the children had a 5.5-point decrease in their IQ score. Once again, the degree of the mother’s exposure influenced the extent of the damage. The findings held true even after researchers made adjustments for factors like family income, exposure to other pollutants, and maternal education levels. One study that was part of a European Parliament review estimated that 13 million IQ points are lost each year because of pesticide use, a figure that the report believes could actually be an underestimate. It’s hard to quantify these effects, but it’s clear that this is something everyone should go out of their way to avoid.” <https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-06-10-pesticides-stupid-agricultural-chemicals-lower-iq-of-children.html>

This is clearly an argument for the exclusive consumption of organic produce. But, let us be realistic, most people will not buy because they cannot afford it. Even more reason to grow your own.

Switch off your TV, go outside and find a spot in the sun, start preparing the soil, get some dirt on your hands, live this life more abundant.

SAVE THE CRABBIES, NOT THE ECONOMY! A LAMENT FROM THE RESIDENT JOB By Peter West

At this advanced state of the decay game, we should not be surprised to see projects that give people jobs sacrificed at the altar of the environment, as this recent ABC.net.au article highlights:

“The community of Christmas Island could face an economic collapse after a proposal to expand the island’s phosphate mine was knocked back over fears of the impact to the island’s wildlife, including its world-famous red crabs. Phosphate Resources Limited has been mining on the Indian Ocean Territory for more than 100 years, but claims it needs to clear more crown land to access new deposits in order for the operations to remain viable. Under the expansion, the company wanted to clear an additional 6.83 hectares of land to undertake exploration drilling to determine the extent of more phosphate resources, in what has been described as a pristine area of the island.”

TRANSGENDER CHAMPIONS SHOW THE WAY! By Mrs Vera West

It looks like women’s sport is over as far as records go, and what a great thing that is! Well, not really, because the concept of a ‘woman’ has now been redefined in the postmodern transgender world:

“One by one records in everything from the 100 meter dash, to the long jump, to the pole vault, are being broken at female track meets all around the world. But in many cases, it isn’t real females who are doing all of this ‘winning’.

It’s biological males pretending to be ‘females’ who are actually stealing much of the athletic glory in women’s sports these days, including in Connecticut recently, where a high school boy claiming to be a ‘girl’ broke two State Open records, one in the 100 meter dash and the other in the 200 meter dash. Terry Miller was born with a penis, but he now claims to be a girl and self-identifies as a ‘transgender’. This gave him politically correct access to the girls’ track team, of course, where ‘she’ now races alongside actual females who, because of their natural biology, aren’t as muscular or athletically adept as ‘she’ is. It’s all very confusing, especially when trying to use the ‘correct’ pronouns to describe this mutant individual in an article such as this. But suffice it to say that boys can now simply claim to be girls and essentially ‘win’ at anything they want.

Biological females pretending to be ‘males’ are similarly cheating at high school sports. We saw this with Mack Beggs, a self-identified transgender wrestler from Texas who recently beat out all of her female opponents with the help of artificial testosterone and other ‘transition’ therapies that made ‘her’ bigger and stronger than the other normal girls.”

Ed– Such situations are clearly not unique to our time. The following is a quote from Abraham Lincoln, Washington, DC, 1862:

“The land, the earth God gave to man for his home, sustenance and support, should never be the possession of any man, corporation, society, or unfriendly government, any more than the air or the water, if as much. An individual or company ... requiring land should hold no more than is required for their home and sustenance, and never more than they have in actual use in the prudent management of their legitimate business, and this should not be permitted when it creates an exclusive monopoly. All that is not so used should be held for the free use of every family to make homesteads, and to hold them as long as they are so occupied.” Farms of Tomorrow: Community Supported Farms: Farm Supported Communities - Trauger M. Groh & Steven S.H. McFadden. ***

Farm Supported Communities - Trauger M. Groh & Steven S.H. McFadden. ***

This is all simply the working through of the ‘logic’ of the politically correct postmodern society. The athletes complaining about losing out on scholarships and having their athletic careers wrecked ... Well, where were you when all of this was getting into gear? Don’t cry now, because the game is just beginning. When robots compete in sporting events, and crush all human competition, no-one will be able to complain because that will be species chauvinism!
