THOUGHT OF THE WEEK: Did Western Christian Civilisation develop over nearly two thousand years by "mere chance?" The development took place because sufficient individuals strove, sacrificed, many died, to advance a concept of how individuals should live together in society. ED Butler - Releasing Reality

THE LEFT AND THE RIGHT AND THE TRUTH by Arnis Luks

The current news cycle, including pamphlets and emails from conservatives, is painting a polarising view of the corona narrative. We must go deeper than the surface of politics and realise that the left-right confrontation is an essential part of the policy of division and conflict - the policy of Revolution.

News reports are indicating the virus may have been released late last year during military competitions (October 2019 Military World Games) near Wuhan, in the province of Hubei, China.

<https://www.military.com/daily-news/2020/03/12/chinese-official-says-us-army-may-have-brought-epidemic-wuhan.html>

And that the USA Military were aware and reporting of the situation as early as November, 2019.

<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/intelligence-report-warned-coronavirus-crisis-early-november-sources/story?id=70031273>

US President Donald Trump has repeatedly called the coronavirus the "Chinese virus" and suggesting much more could have been done in the initial stages of the outbreak 'by China'.

<https://www.aljazeera.com/programmes/newsfeed/2020/03/trump-defends-calling-coronavirus-chinese-virus-200323102618665.html>

If the News report in regard to 'the release of the virus' is accurate, firstly it is an act of war by the USA, and secondly forms all the hallmarks of a false-flag-operation (across the border) that were utilised many times over leading into the last great war, remembering that war is pursuing a policy by other means.

Last week's On Target referred to 'hard marketing', which may include bribery, extortion, assassination, and even military intervention. Let us be clear about this. This polarising/dialectic narrative is to pursue a centralising policy to bring about a world government. Every method necessary will be utilised to achieve this purpose.

Freedom

The suspension of ancient rights and freedoms to supposedly combat this virus is a stark illustration of how fragile freedom has become. Our Constitution has been effectively 'put aside' with the suspension of parliament and arbitrary proclamations calling for lock-down, reduction of jury numbers from 12 to 7, and medical 'monitoring apps' to permit normal travel. Our Prime Minister is calling the shots on the basis of medical expert advice and not by debate, discussion and agreement from within our parliament. This 'conservative' medical tyranny continues on from 'No Jab, No Pay/Play' and mandatory fluoride addition to the public water.

The individual has lost the right to the personal and private 'property and sanctity' of their own body. The police state has arrived through conservatives. To look through this narrative for a solution we need to look further than the News cycle, starting with the work of Geoffrey Dobbs "The Left and The Right and The Truth".

Dobbs Article : Condensed and Paraphrased:

Undercover of the blood spilling of the Second World War, a coalition of all political parties combined to introduce the welfare state (Socialism). This being applied to encourage the maximum irresponsibility, frustration, resentment and work-shyness is largely the responsibility of the Conservative party, while rejecting Douglas Social Credit as a form of funny money socialism, producing a predictable degeneration in the social morale and credit.

We witness the dialectic purpose with the conservatives ongoing financial support of the socialist ABC and university's revolutionary outcomes, producing several generations immersed within Marxist-Leninist ideology. Further reinforced by successive Labour governments' policy - full endorsement of public-private-partnerships through the United Nations Agencies. This only became apparent for me while studying neo-liberalism (laissez-faire capitalism) as the dialectic opposite to Marxist-Leninism. The IMF and the World Bank (capital) working closely with private foundations under the banner of the United Nations (as the established citadel of Communist policy), in unison, all working towards world government. - ed.

Dobbs continues:

Correct Use of Words

"Anti-language" i.e. creating a verbal image as cover for doing the opposite, is standard operating practice (cognitive-dissonance -ed). Patriotism destroyed by conservatives, champions of the poor (Labor-ed) pursue universal wage slavery as their proper fate, and indeed their right; that should be demanded with menaces; and that any working person who tries to control their own labour is a 'scab'.

Voters who think of themselves as 'sincere', lack integrity insofar as they refuse to face the policy 'deeds'. If this were not so, all the parties would have been forced to fit their policies to their words long ago...

I hope that it will not be thought that I am criticising without charity or understanding the real aims and feelings of those who deem themselves to be of the Right because those aims and feelings are the power-base which is exploited by the Right-wing of politics. Indeed, I share them very strongly, as is natural for an elderly man of the... middle class, brought up in the tradition of Christian patriotism; which is perhaps why I have such a peculiar loathing for the Conservative Party, whose main function is to betray just those aims and beliefs.

But I try also to understand and share the aims and feelings of the Left which are betrayed and exploited as a power-base by Leftist politicians, such as, for instance, the real meaning of those perverted terms 'equality' and 'social justice', the correct application of which I am aware of, because I am a social creditor, and therefore am seeking to relegate (bind back to the reality of action) the Christian religion.

Men are not equal, and to try to make them so is a gross tyranny as it is a denial of their unique personality. But all men, indeed all living things, equally need the means of living fully. A man, a flea and a plant equally need free access to the air, which is given equally to them all, though they do not use it equally or even in the same way. But this does not make them equal. Equality is something we receive, not something we possess. The misuse and misunderstanding of this word has always been disastrous.

Conservatives once used to defend both the cultural tradition and the right of individual inheritance, but only for those families which had managed to accumulate some personal property. This restriction very largely to their own propertied class conflicted with natural justice, since the earth and its resources are a free gift to man; it also revealed that they did not really believe in inheritance as a general and inalienable right since they would not concede it to the moneyless proletariat who had been driven off the land; so that, in the end, even 'Conservative' belief in inheritance has withered away, just when technological advance and invention have made it blatantly obvious that, so far as real productivity is concerned, there is ample provision for a large element of inherited wealth for all.

Meanwhile the Socialists, instead of accepting the reality of this cultural inheritance, and demanding its distribution, condemn inheritance altogether as 'unfair', and apply their thwarted desire for 'equality' and 'social justice' in the wholly inappropriate field of 'employment', demanding, not the abolition, but the promotion to power of the proletariat.

The appalling results of this further react upon the Conservatives who then reject the whole idea of 'equality' as 'rubbish', because they have rejected its just application in its proper field, that of our collective cultural and technological inheritance, which has nothing to do with our merits and our personal differences.

The Resolution has been called Douglas Social Credit Both sides of the dialectic declare that 'full-employment', i.e. remote-controlled hired underling-age for all, is their aim, and regard the liberation of people from this by technology as a disaster.

Both support the socialist or 'Welfare' State, which is based upon the proposition that the inability of a large part of the population to pay at the economic rate for the major services, such as Health, Education, Housing and Transport, is due to the 'mal-distribution' of the national income, thus implying that it would be sufficient if 'fairly' distributed.

That this proposition is now seen and declared to be manifest nonsense has made no difference to the policy being pursued by both 'wings' of the revolution, which continue to subsidize the major services and industries with vast inflationary borrowings, while asserting that inflation is due to too much money in the hands of the public!

The difference between Right and Left, between slightly less, and more borrowing, though sufficient to divide the nation and make it impotent, is quite minor.

There is no possibility of actually stopping inflation by monetary restriction, without bringing the economy to a virtual halt in chaos, starvation and revolution. That is the threat of the revolutionary, 'monetarist' Right.

The function of the present Government... appears to be to demonstrate that there is no alternative to socialism because the alternative (freedom with responsibility-ed) has been rejected and to disillusion the public until they are ready for another, and more extreme Left-Wing

Government; which, incidentally, will probably get in...

So inflation will go on, and inflation means progressive transfer of power from the individual to the Government as it approaches the final position of being the sole source of money, because it is the sole loan-credit-worthy agency owing to its power of compulsory taxation.

And inflation is world-wide, as is the totalitarian Revolution of which it is an essential cause (though not the only one).

It is not a question of 'fighting' or avoiding it; it is now going on, and is far advanced... But it is a question of how far, and to what extremes of terror and misery it will be allowed to go here, as compared with the horrors we have seen elsewhere. And that depends upon the number and quality of the people who have some grasp, not merely of the evils of the present momentum towards disaster, which are rubbed into us every day by the media and, by themselves, only to despair, but of the alternatives, in the political, the economic, the philosophic field.

In this, I can see no hope anywhere but in Social Credit, which finds the truth in a way which cuts right across the Right/Left conflict.

I can see no hope in Left or Right, not even in those

LOW VITAMIN D PATIENTS TEN TIMES MORE LIKELY TO DIE OF CORONAVIRUS

From <http://joannenova.com.au/>

A new Indonesian study of 780 people with Coronavirus found that people with a Vitamin D deficiency were much more likely to die.

ABSTRACT

This is a retrospective cohort study which included two cohorts (active and expired) of 780 cases with laboratory-confirmed infection of SARS-CoV-2 in Indonesia. Age, sex, co-morbidity, Vitamin D status, and disease outcome (mortality) were extracted from electronic medical records. The aim was to determine patterns of mortality and associated factors, with a special focus on Vitamin D status. Results revealed that majority of the death cases were male and older and had pre-existing condition and below normal Vitamin D serum level.

AND THE WINNER OF THE GREAT CORONA LOTTERY IS ...TECHNOCRACY!

By Brian Simpson

Today's lesson is the rise and rise of technocracy. One technocrat, who helped get the present lock-downs going, based it all on flawed modelling. How unusual!

<https://www.technocracy.news/imperial-college-prof-accused-of-patchy-record-of-modeling-pandemics/>

"Experts have cast doubt on the work of a key scientist whose apocalyptic prediction that coronavirus could kill 500,000 Britons led Boris Johnson to decide he had to lock down the country.

Professor Neil Ferguson, director of the MRC Centre for Global Infectious Disease Analysis at Imperial College, London, authored a report which who claim to be the 'true Right' and who call upon the virtues of courage, loyalty and discipline, which are so much needed, but will all be misdirected if they reject what is the key to the situation.

However few we may seem, this nation already has had the leaven of Social Credit working in its daily bread for nearly 100 years. I am full of confidence that it will make a radical difference to our revolution as compared with others (i.e. a bigger element of resolution) and I can see no virtue in wasting time and energy on promoting anything else. -- end Dobbs article

Social Credit measures the centralising power of both Left and Right 'policy outcomes', evaluates the human satisfaction from each and advocating a decentralising 'policy outcome', turns away from Revolution towards Freedom with Responsibility in a Moral environment - that is Trinitarian-Christianity. The National Dividend issued equally for all, being the rightful inheritance from the industrial sciences and modern civilisation in the form of a monetary-vote. Geoffrey Dobbs has done a great service in presenting his paper on this subject available in our Online Library here: https://alor.org/Storage/Library/PDF/Dobbs%20G%20-%20The_Left.pdf

Univariate analysis revealed that older and male cases with pre-existing condition and below normal Vitamin D levels were associated with increasing odds of death.

When controlling for age, sex, and comorbidity, Vitamin D status is strongly associated with COVID-19 mortality outcome of cases.

forecast that terrible death toll if nothing was done to stop the spread of the disease.

Even plans to slow the virus – letting around two-thirds of the population catch coronavirus to build up 'herd immunity' – would result in 250,000 deaths, according to Imperial's mathematical model.

Prof Ferguson's devastating conclusion led the Prime Minister to perform a drastic U-turn a fortnight ago. Schools were closed and people told to stay at home.

Last week, Prof Ferguson told MPs these measures could see the eventual death toll cut to 'substantially less' than 20,000.

Meanwhile a paper by separate colleagues at Imperial predicted just 5,700 deaths if the lock-down continues.

A rival academic has claimed Prof Ferguson has a patchy record of modelling epidemics, which could have led to hasty Ministerial decisions. Prof Michael Thrusfield of Edinburgh University said Prof Ferguson was previously instrumental in modelling that led to the cull of more than 6 million animals during the foot and mouth outbreak in 2001, which left rural Britain economically devastated.

Then (2001-ed), Prof Ferguson and his Imperial colleagues concluded:

THE ANSWER IS TURNING MEN INTO WOMEN! By Mrs Vera West

No doubt about it, the gender agenda will be pursued even with the corona virus, and indeed, it is giving a whole new perspective on things:

<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/health/article-8261241/Could-giving-men-estrogen-help-recover-COVID-Female-hormones-prevent-inflammation.html>

“Doctors are wondering if giving men two female sex hormones could make them more likely to survive the novel coronavirus.

Across the globe, women from most countries have been less likely to become abruptly ill with the virus, and less likely to die from it.

This has led many researchers to wonder if the hormones mainly produced in women could be protective, reported The New York Times.

Two hospitals in the US are now putting that theory to the test, giving men estrogen or progesterone for a limited amount of time to see if it boosts their immune systems, decreases inflammation and reduces the severity of the illness.

The differences in death rates among men and women have been apparent from early on in the pandemic.

Last month, Italy's public health research agency said

Ken Grundy, National Director

‘Extensive culling is sadly the only option for controlling the current British epidemic.’

But Prof Thrusfield, an expert in animal diseases, claimed the model made incorrect assumptions about how foot and mouth disease was transmitted and, in a 2006 review, he claimed Imperial’s foot and mouth model was ‘not fit for purpose’, while in 2011 he said it was ‘severely flawed’.

Extensive culling? The mainstream media of course said nothing. The reason is that the media too are part of this new class government by knowledge, so-called, which is used to control to the extent that even the capitalists must bow to them, as the entire economy is shut down. ***

that more than 70 percent of the country's deaths have been in men.

And, in February, China's Center for Disease Control and Prevention said the fatality rate among men with coronavirus was 65 percent higher than among women.

Scientists say they don't know why women seem less likely to die, but have suggested that women naturally tend to have stronger immune systems and are less likely to have long-term health conditions which make patients more vulnerable.

In China, researchers pointed the finger at men being more likely to smoke and drink, but this was a cultural factor which may be different in other countries.

This soon became apparent in the US. In New York, more than 60 percent of the state's deaths have been among men.

Early research has suggested the hormones may reduce the number of ACE2 receptors on the surfaces of cells that the virus uses to enter the body.”

Well, we can see where this one is going. If this proves correct, which is unlikely, feminists will want the entire male population chemically castrated ... for their own good of course! Just imagine if the stats pointed the other way ... oh, that would be Mother nature discriminating!
