SICKNESS UNTO DEATH – WE ARE THE PRODIGAL SON By Arnis Luks

Incoming reports suggest plans are being brought to fruition for a complete financial/economic collapse across the world to usher in a centrally controlled carbon-based digital currency. The Global Public Private Partnership headed up by the Bank of International Settlements desires to control every action of every person on this planet. These desires go against the very nature of man, who wishes to live his own life as he sees fit, provided it causes no ill towards his neighbour. The MSM propagandists and hybrid warfare specialists are tasked with keeping the public so bewildered as to be incapable of deciphering truth from the propagandised narrative.

We Must Look For The Faithful Light In This Darkness

The natural reaction to any failure is to think again. Continuing on "The Soil and Health" by Sir Albert Howard, he records, when observing disease within a plant or a crop, the correct approach is to investigate what the plant is lacking, what has been missed in order to restore vitality. Sir Albert Howard's approach in considering the causes of disease was to approach the Natural Laws of soil husbandry to ensure that which was lacking is restored. By ensuring optimal humus development through composting methods utilising a mixture of green waste, animal manures and some mineral supplements, this approach was able to restore vitality to the affected crop. He did not uproot nor destroy the crop, but observed and adjusted his approach. Describing an inadequate humus environment as 'malnourishment of the plant' reinforces the importance of optimal soil environment to produce nourishing and restorative foods for all, plant, animal and people. We are what we eat!

The animal, plant and soil relationships appear simple but are actually quite complex. It is a relationship of multiple facets complementing and fostering an increment in association in each stage of their environment. The seed must firstly find an environment that fosters its ultimate reason for existence, which is to produce its own fruit. The healthier the soil the greater chance of successful reproduction. As the soil is exploited by unsustainable husbandry practices, so the potential for successful reproduction is diminished and ultimately lost.

This week I twice received a welcome phone call from 85-year-old dairy farmer Harry Cunningham from Swan Reach, East Gippsland, 0434973820. Harry challenged me back with the previous OnTarget in regard to the work of Christine Jones. His paddocks and dairy cattle, which he has managed for most of his adult working life are responding well with the application of volcanic rock sourced from Ballarat, Victoria which contains between 80 and 90 minerals, and with rotations of lucerne cropping and other grasses and an occasional midwinter light-sprinkling of lime to sweeten the paddock reducing the uptake of aluminium in the feed. Aluminium, Harry informs me, is responsible for poisoning a lot of cattle in his district during the winters. This unique understanding of his land demonstrates a complex stewardship of man, animal, grasses, soil, microbes, vagaries, and seasonal requirements. Harry was able to increase yield from the cows and maintain good production of milk across the winters. This intimate and complex relationship demonstrates a complex symbiosis of mutual love and cooperation. The soil microbes and creatures receive what they need a plenty, the grasses also, as do the milking herd, Harry managing finances with profit and ultimately the public with a quality product. Harry also informed me that modern wheat varieties in Australia have gone from a protein content high of 17% down to today's average of between 5-7% protein. We import grain to produce bread, our own wheat protein content being so low. Farming must be regenerative. Its back to the beginnings. The 'how' and 'why' is important to consider.

NPK

Since the 1840s the chemist Justus von Liebig, combined his research with the results of the Rothamsted experiments (started by Sir John Bennet Lawes and Dr Joseph Henry Gilbert in 1843) led to the adoption of artificial-manures by many of the farmers of Europe.

The Rothamsted experiments undoubtedly proved that if the proper quantities of combined NPK nitrogen, phosphates and potash are added to the soil, satisfactory crops for many years can be obtained without the addition of organic matter beyond that afforded by the roots of the crops grown. Rothamsted did not test for successful reproduction, but utilised freshly sourced premium seed from other places for each test cycle.

https://www.rothamsted.ac.uk/sites/default/files/RRes\_LTE%20Guidebook\_2018\_%20web%20AW.pdf

Harry is right: The maintenance of the fertility of the soil (environment) is the first condition of any permanent system of agriculture, and to follow suit the maintenance of a culture and a civilisation requires the same. We must understand the optimum conditions required and then go about maintaining or even improving those conditions for the sake of posterity – sustainable reproduction.

Denuding The Soil

The NPK fertilisers (nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium), while providing a flush of growth, do not provide a sustainable model to maintain soil fertility and vitality of sufficient nutrients for successful plant reproduction - soil, microbes, humus, plants and the herd. The science demonstrated by NPK use knows more and more about less and less, but misses out in context the complex mutual relationship of microscopic microbes, worms and other soil creatures, the various types of grasses that also complement soil humus growth, animals and man. A complex relationship of symbiosis - a reflection of the True relationship of mutual love and cooperation within the Godhead - Father, Son and Holy Spirit. This analogy of community presents a template for life, not just the soil and plants and lower creatures.

Organic Constitutionalism - Its Nature

When Henry VIII seized control of the established church in England, he set in motion centralisation across the institution of government and God – both temporal and spiritual. The value of separation of the church and state is reinforced today by the telling words of Archbishop Carlo Maria Viganò campaigning vigorously against the political tyranny of covid lockstep/lockdown. Archbishop Viganò illustrates the subterfuge of the money-power's campaign for total world control. A point to note here is that he does not mention the money-power by name, but only the lesser levels of organised evil. The English revolution which soon followed Henry VIII caused this dual seats of power to transfer from the king to parliament. By the modern English lower house no longer requiring right-of-passage for money bills, this further centralised power into their hands.

ON TARGET

The Whig Puritans pursued power to murder Charles I, drive out James II and install the Dutch William and Mary of Orange on the British throne. England has been an elected parliamentary dictatorship since. By controlling media, these Whig Puritans control the public mind and therefore the elections to morph into a trinity of power – state, church and the people. Note that France's President Macron was elected President without a political party behind him. Marine Le Pen with party backing continues on with her presidential campaigns without success. Such is the power of the MSM press. The press is a major part of the enemy's campaign against a free Australia, France and every other nation.

The MSM propagandists and hybrid warfare specialists are tasked with controlling public opinion to ensure the progression of the confiscation of the "Commons" of the whole world continues unabated.

Australia's Righting the Wrong

The organic development of the Australian Constitution through open and public consultation and constitutional conventions, was an attempt to reset this anomaly of parliamentary dictatorial power by placing the monarch back onto the throne and integral within government - by limiting power of both houses, causing the lower house to stand in judgement of the upper house once per year with the supply bills (money), and to have the monarch protect against the pursuit of tyranny - to hold both Houses accountable to the people by holding reserve powers to call an election – the 1932 Lang NSW and 1975 Whitlam exercises of these reserve powers illustrated the important balancing of power, by placing the final arbiter into the voting hands of the public. We have lost this from our political memory – those things which should never have been forgotten were lost.

Undoing the Right

We witness the most current attempt to seize 'power' with the Premier (in Victoria) able to declare a pandemic and hold onto this declaration of power indefinitely or until the Premier sees fit to relinquish it: Public Health and Wellbeing Amendment (Pandemic Management) Bill 2021. The Victorian Constitution remained relatively intact and stable for 125 years, but since 1975 has been progressively 'denatured' to the point of making a lower house parliamentary majority (government) dictator over the state. Queensland dissolved their Legislative Council (Upper House) 23 March 1922.

This centralisation of power has occurred while civics has been withheld from the education curricular, yet all the politically correct social sciences flourish. The public have been dumbed down to no longer recognise this great constitutional value of 'limiting and balancing power' of the parliamentary houses due to the excesses inherent with too much power in one set of hands.

Hitler, Stalin, Napoléon, Caesar all demonstrated the truth of this great human frailty; denounced by Lord Acton towards the holy father – "all power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely”.

Hitler wrote of the ‘big lie’ technique that the average person, while accepting they themselves would tell ‘small lies’ would never accept their leaders would actually tell such a ‘great lie’ to seize power.

Spirited Voice Calling For A Halt To The Tyranny

In Australia we do not have the luxury of a spirited holy-voice warning of this grave error against a natural law: seizing of absolute power and control over the nation as warned by Archbishop Carlo Maria Viganò. It appears political discernment is not within the faculties of our modern preachers. This would be due to the subversion within and without our seminaries. A permeation of an alien, parasitic philosophy on the host, while the truth of “Ye cannot serve both God and mammon” remains hidden. Purity of the Christian Gospel is an eternal vigilance – “all that is necessary for evil to prosper, is for good men to do nothing”.

This tyranny is being accepted because individuals also are personally relinquishing their own responsibility towards government, but more importantly towards God – render unto Caesar those things...but unto God the things that are God’s. The congregations are not being instructed as to this most fundamental obligation. The most deep and profound words of The Christ (in red) do not ring true, resonating to their ears that they should hear, seek the Truth further and therefore understand.

The correct assessment and response towards this constitutional disease is to provide the missing organic nutrients (what is missing from the body politic) – Regeneration of the most deep and profound value of those words in red within the Christian Gospel – the Good News. And alongside a program of education in civics. And finally, an insistence on personal sovereignty and autonomy emanating from God alone within a limiting constitutional agreement. The Christian religion is like a clear view of the lighthouse over troubled waters, faithfully showing the way to safety, refuge and ensuring safe passage through the roads ahead.

Seek ye first...and all these other things will be added.

Modelling shows real cost of net-zero emissions

Greg Brown and Geoff Chambers, The Australian
<https://www.theaustralian.com.au/nation/politics/modelling-shows-real-cost-of-no-net-zero-carbon-emissions/news-story/5c7529277d476b466d698b4f1b5e1575>

In this telling article ‘international finance’ has threatened the Australian government with a 1.5% interest rate premium on loan funds if they refuse to comply with net-zero emissions. Climate policy is central bank policy; not green or environmental but central bank policy. Greens and environmentalists are simply pursuing central bank policy - communist-capitalist nexus.

China is not being subject to climate scrutiny nor assessment, having been declared a developing nation, therefore exempt. The deconstruction of the west and advancement of a menacing China as the aspiring world military power is central bank policy. The ultimate slave state used menacingly, while seizing the assets (commons) of the whole world unto themselves.

In another important article, this time by Iain Davis “Seizing Everything: The Theft of the Global Commons”

<https://in-this-together.com/global-commons-part-1/>

<https://in-this-together.com/global-commons-part-2/>

Iain explores the ongoing process of defining the global commons and the claim of the stakeholder capitalists they should be the “trustees” both of the commons and society. Part 2 takes a look at how systems have been established to enable these stakeholders to seize the very real assets of the whole world unto themselves.

British ‘enclosure riots’ were seen by historians as ‘the pre-eminent form’ of social protest for 110 years - 1530s to 1640s: to set the peasant adrift from his historical links to the available common land to grow sufficient ‘food and livestock’ to feed his family. Now this same policy is being forced upon the world – you will own nothing and be happy - they say this loudly.

Would they really be this evil? Read for yourselves. This is their plan to use financial-debt and legislatively confiscation to their advantage over all the assets of the world – Debt: The First 5,000 Years by David Graeber.

Our federal government has obliterated the financial/economic self-reliance of the middle class while their assets are progressively confiscated by this policy; to ensure all go cap in hand to the government for funds, who themselves source from the Bank of International Settlements – the central bank of all central banks.

Usury and the Church of England by Rev. Henry Swabey
<https://alor.org/Storage/Library/PDF/Swabey%20Rev.%20H%20-%20Usury%20and%20the%20Church%20of%20England.pdf>

I have begun to research this title again to understand this ancient swindle of usury. Suffice to mention when the craft was introduced to England by the Dutch merchants prior to Henry VIII, all the assets of the landed gentry and the peasant commons were confiscated unto the usurer; who in the end held control of the parliaments, the church, the peasants and the lands. The usurers of today is for worldly power and control over church, state, the people and all the natural assets.

What Is Money?

Finance is simply a method of ‘counting’ economic activity, such as weights and measures is used to count length or weight or volume, or any other measure. Money holds no intrinsic value of itself, only a claim to wealth. A cheque could achieve the same purpose, except the cheque will be dishonoured if there are insufficient funds to back it up. Whereas money in the form of banking credit, in computer blips, is honoured by the licensed banking system as backed by something tangible, when it is only a belief in it being real. A run on the banks demonstrates that money backed by anything except belief is a fallacy. The vaults are empty.

We do not get charged to use a tape measure or a set of scales. The usurer creates new credit (computer blips) as a figure-debt in the form of an obligation to repay (face value plus interest) unto themselves with the stroke of a keyboard). There is no shared risk with the venture, that both are exposed to any losses. The mortgage is guaranteed against fixed assets, or in the case of credit to government - the ability to tax an unsuspecting public.

Our federal government committed to zero emissions due to this blackmailing exertion of financial power over the issue of new credit in the form of debt by the usurer. The usurer, by the stroke on the keyboard, now claims absolute ownership and control over all the resources of the entire world. Rev. Henry Swabey records of the many 'bishopric' mints across ancient England that produced coinage to avoid this centralised tyranny. The church of today remains silent of their own direct involvement.

The Just Price

Our financial/economic system can, and has been so arranged in the past as to cultivate this relationship of relationships; to nurture long term sustainability and vitality for all, microbes, soil, animal, man and our own economic environment. All managed locally for the benefit of those who receive the luxury of an 'in context' approach. I shall deal with this issue in future OnTargets. Thank you Sir Albert for that most beautiful life lesson.

Interestingly, as soil vitality is being run down with the overuse of artificial-manures, so is the fertility of humanity. We are being malnourished by the compliant and silent educational and spiritual establishments, agricultural financial practices, and now in the medical realm, as if one medical product suits 9 Billion people.

The policy against those who refuse the job, sets them apart from society and treats them essentially as fugitives without having broken any law or statute. This isolation for separation will do untold harm against those who take this path. Government should never have entered into this domain for which they hold no lasting mandate. The Marxist tool of class-warfare has morphed into medical-class-warfare, medical apartheid to bring about collapse.

Lockstep/Lockdown

A person in isolation (solitary confinement) mentally deforms and atrophies, whereas in a diverse environment of mutual love and cooperation self-esteem flourishes. Everyone needs someone to share their life. This business of mask wearing, and distancing is to separate people from each other - to de-construct the social cohesion that makes for a loving and caring society – the inversion of the meaning of the words 'social credit'.

The modern and true nature of producing goods and services has become a common-societal-function; that utilises massive transport networks and infrastructure, utilities, communication systems, mineral reserves, and the cultural inheritance of previous knowledge handed down from posterity. Automation and advanced control including robotics minimises man's physical engagement and yet we have not been provided a distributive method for all of the community to enjoy these fruits-a-plenty.

ON TARGET

The true purpose of production is 'distribution for consumption'. A Trinity.

CH Douglas' proposal for a National Dividend resets the anomaly of the fraudulent distribution to ensure sufficient purchasing power is placed into the hands of each individual to liquidate prices at the point of sale. A balancing of financial/economic values. This resolves the millennia old manipulation of the financial system for personal aggrandisement while impoverishing others.

The great reset by Klaus Schwab and others can be overcome. We do not have to accept a fate of debt slavery over the whole world. Each individual holds a legitimate claim from the original source of sustenance - God and His providence - our cultural inheritance. This inheritance is being filched by the money-power as their own property, when it rightfully belongs to each as their share from God - our rich cultural inheritance; and for which we can project towards our future progeny as their own rich cultural inheritance - effectively reproducing.

The maintenance of the fertility of the soil is the first condition of any proper and permanent system of agriculture. This template of life also promotes the maintenance and development of culture and civilisation.

Government is there to serve - public servant. Managing affairs locally for those affected by these decisions is the most effective form of government and the model to pursue - the opposite to world government. Sitting on our hands is not going to bring this about. The warning is there to the servant given one 'talent' who hid and buried it (not putting it to good use).

We are called out at this time in history because within each is the capacity to work (worship) towards overcoming this tyrannical grab for power by the money-changers who are within the temple, and must be evicted.

Locally managed government; locally sourced, owned and managed industry; and a locally managed financial/economic system is the antidote to world government.

The kingdom of God is within.

And my people, upon whom my name is called, being converted, shall make supplication to me, and seek out my face, and do penance for their most wicked ways: then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their land. 2 Chronicles 7:14
