THE CONVERSATIONS THAT MUST BE ENTERED INTO By Arnis Luks

I grew up in a time when the cowboys and Indians were regularly depicted on TV, the Indians always insisting that the white-man speaks with forked tongue. I assumed this meant that the commitments given by the white-man were never upheld, which may have held some truth in it. It's only in studying Marxist-Dialectics that I realise there is a more sophisticated approach that needs to be considered.

It was reported recently that Hungarian-American George Soros's 'Open Society' was funding Hamas and other terrorist organisations. On face value this doesn't make much sense until I appreciate that both sides of the narrative are being controlled, and at times it becomes necessary for both sides to suffer, as do in this instance both Palestine and Israel. Supporting and only promoting Hamas as the voice for Palestine, stifles any other legitimate Palestinian Voice to be heard. In the haze of war or genocide, truth is the first casualty.

Ukraine Example

With the British and American directly supporting the Ukraine, firstly to establish the administration with the 2014 coup d'état, then to ensure conditions were prepared by the Nazi-Azov Battalions with the indiscriminate killing of 14,000 civilians in the Donbass Region, thus legitimising Russian military intervention. With their support of military training and 'limited' arming of the Ukraine nationals, this ensured the destruction of the Ukraine military and the displacement of some 10 million Ukrainians. The policy was to destroy and displace the people from their homeland. This was achieved by managing both sides of the narrative, both the (US/UK controlled Ukraine, and Russian) administrations working collaboratively for a common policy-objective.

Financing in Order to Destroy :: OnTarget Vol 59 No 06:

“US website ‘Veterans Today’ provided an insightful article on the financing and political support for AZOV / Hunter Biden / Zelensky which came from the same financial source:

Hamas Founder's Son Worked for Israel - The Israeli newspaper Haaretz (2010-ed) said Mosab Hassan Yousef, 32, son of the Palestinian Islamic movement Hamas founder Sheikh Hassan Yousef, was an informant for Israel's domestic security service known as the Shin Bet, beginning in 1997.

Ground War As A Legitimate Military Training Exercise

The real-life training of a ground war with Russia against Ukraine, has allowed the Russian military to perfect their craft in the modern setting of tank-traps, drones and satellite imagery. The US in the Middle East conflict against Saddam Hussein Iraq, had the significant advantage of night-vision-technology which was not available to the Iraqi forces. Similarly, Russian support for Syria allowed the elite Russian pilots to train in real-time. No doubt similar training and weaponry testing is occurring in the Ukraine and Middle East, in fact wherever a war front is occurring.

The Israel-Palestinian war is not a war at all. It is the destruction and displacement of the Palestinian people. The collective demonising of all Palestinians because of Hamas is simply a necessary tactic to legitimise the pogrom - the annihilation of the Palestinian people, who are semitic and resident in Palestine for millennia. It is their homeland in which 2 million are currently residing in their open air prison. Headlines such as this 'World Reacts To War As Israel Retaliates Against Hamas ...' rationalises the annihilation.

The presence of two aircraft carrier groups in the Mediterranean, is to ensure the genocide of these predominantly Moslem people is not interfered with by neighbouring Moslem countries. Should they choose to retaliate, even with another false flag, the most advanced and sophisticated weaponry will be unleashed upon them and their peoples. There is only one policy – the monied policy. Vanessa Beeley (UKColumn 27th Oct 2023) provides ample evidence of the Zionist occupation of both, the Jewish and Palestinian peoples in the greater Israel: <https://www.ukcolumn.org/video/uk-column-news-27th-october-2023>

The Nameless War

The Nameless War was written by Capt AHM Ramsay, a former member of the House of Commons for the seat of Midlothian and Peeblesshire, UK. Interestingly, as a then current sitting member of the UK Parliament (May 1940), he was arrested and placed in Brixton prison for the duration of WWII until September 1944, without charge and without due judicial process. On the day after his release, he resumed his seat in the Parliament until the end of that Parliament the next year 1945. An almost complete reproduction of this written title is available on the Internet from which we downloaded a copy and placed into our PDF library:

Statements to the press by António Guterres, Secretary-General of the United Nations, while acknowledging abhorrent attacks are attributed to supposedly both sides, he advocates a negotiated peace rather than military intervention to protect civilians. No peacekeepers made available for the 2 million Palestinians. This managed dissent approach ensures the annihilation and displacement of Palestinians, which is the real objective of that military campaign.

There is no difference between this campaign and the collapse of three towers 9/11 that legitimised American military campaigns into the Middle East. False flags are nothing new for power mongers who would destroy whole nations to serve their own strategic purposes.

Benjamin "Bibi" Netanyahu is the Prime Minister of Israel. He has Lithuanian and Belarussian bloodlines not far from the Ukraine, an historical homeland for Ashkenazim. A good part of my own bloodlines comes from north of there.

“In the late Middle Ages, due to widespread persecution, the majority of the Ashkenazi population steadily shifted eastward, moving out of the Holy Roman Empire (of the German Nation - Central and Western Europe -ed) into the areas that later became part of the Polish–Lithuanian Commonwealth; these areas today comprise parts of present-day Belarus, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Poland, Russia, Slovakia, and Ukraine,... in 1930 comprising 92% of the world's Jewish population.”

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ashkenazi_Jews

The world-famous author Arthur Koestler wrote the book 'The Thirteenth Tribe' to record the Kazarian roots of those currently living in occupied Palestine:

https://alor.org/Storage/Library/PDF/Koestler_A-Thirteenth_Tribe.pdf

The Kazarians took on their new religion in the Middle Ages and are non-semitic.

If Koestler is correct, diaspora/dispersion may be the wrong descriptor for those Kazarians living in the middle east. Non-semitic is more realistic.

The pogrom against the semitic-Palestinians deserves attention, even while both sides of a very controlled reporting are simply managed dissent. Once this managed dissent is understood, then the real position of the political-left aligning with Hamas becomes clearer as the dialectical- continuation of world government policy to the benefit of central banksters...

'A' fights 'B' for the benefit of 'C' - including the destruction of the first-nation peoples of Palestine.

Ukraine and Russian War - In Perspective

Volodymyr Zelensky, in an appeal to the Israeli parliament, did he call for the Ukraine to become part of 'greater Israel'? Some reports I viewed used that exact terminology. Other reports used the words 'big Israel'. The inferences between 'greater' and 'big', even across translations, are startling. Is the displacement of 10 million Ukrainian people, and the liquidation through war of the greater male population of Ukraine part of a bigger picture not yet fully revealed? Is the same policy of pogrom for Palestinians and Ukrainians simply two fronts of the same war? Time will tell. In war there is no shortage of suffering for all parties.

200 Years Together by Aleksander Solzhenitsyn may shed further light on this important historical and political subject that must be entered into :

New Speak - 1984

In George Orwell's dystopian novel 1984 the official language of Oceania is "new speak." A place where the meaning of words is lost in ambiguity. In a recent ABC article by Tamara Clark and Emile Pavlich:

‘First Nations take legal action over alleged lack of consultation on Fractured Rock Water Resource Plan’
<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2023-10-26/first-nations-fractured-rock-water-resource-plan-legal-action/103021156>

they open the piece with the phrase 'A confederation of 20 First Nations groups...'

The Oxford dictionary defines 'nation' as a country considered as a group of people with the same language, culture and history, who live in a particular area under one government. There are some 2-3 hundred differing Aboriginal languages or dialects and even more tribes. The Aboriginal high- (or) traditional-culture is a hunter-gatherer. The opening phrase would be more accurately described as 20 tribal representatives. New Speak is an exercise in ambiguity. Little wonder the Trivium requires grammar - the correct use and meaning of words, as the first discipline of education. If we can't define what we are talking about then it is forever a non-sense. It is not meant to be understood, but rather full of vagaries and inferences and not specific at all (newspeak)

Former Prime Minister John Howard has dismissed the “absurd” idea of an Indigenous treaty, insisting treaties are only made with sovereign nations.

“We don’t have treaties with bits of ourselves, and it only has to be stated to be realised as a complete absurdity,” he told Sky News host Sharri Markson:

<https://www.skynews.com.au/opinion/sharri-markson/john-howard-dismisses-absurd-idea-of-an-indigenous-treaty/video/d4a0897beb2109682c15049ddce5b025>

Without stretching my thinking too far, I believe it is absurd to be handing management of huge reserves of national assets over to bits and pieces of ourselves.

Upon reading this article I immediately thought of the establishment of East Timor to negotiate over to transnational commercial entities the vast reserves of natural gas being exploited off the East Timor coast. The establishment of that nation-state, like Panama, was to ensure the commercial exploitation with the minimum of compensation to the newly established nation.

Handing over vast quantities of national assets to diverse tribes for exploitation, will provide a field day for the seasoned transnational negotiators, like vultures coming in for the prey. John Perkins was an 'Economic Hitman', and the 2004 version of this same title explains in great detail how these masters of exploitation send in their vultures to the unsuspecting future-victims:

Without a developed and mature diplomatic corps, these tribal entities will be putty in their exploitative hands. This is what 'land rights' is really about - the

WHAT DID YOU INHERIT? By Neville Archibald

These four words might be the starter for a macabre conversation after the passing of a wealthy relative. In a Hollywood movie it might be “Brewster's Millions”, where the inheritor of a vast fortune is required to pass some stupid, but life affirming test to get this fortune. Then again we might be talking genetics, the traits we inherited from our family: my father’s blue eyes, my mother’s widows peak or a longer second toe.

These four words; however, go so much further than the everyday person thinks. To inherit, means to receive from one who came before.

If you take a walk into your local library, or better yet, a university library, filled with the knowledge from past and present people, all that you see before you is also your inheritance. A cultural and scientific inheritance.

We should all realise that we stand on the shoulders of those who have come before us. From our first beginnings man has passed down inherited wisdom, the secret of fire, the planting of crops or the best way to hunt.

When we get to modern times, those first three are still as valid as they ever were and are supplemented by so many more that it takes a vast library to contain it. Our collected wisdom. We are sent to school to learn the basics and when we finish we have still only scraped the surface.

This cultural heritage that surrounds us is also a exploitation and commercialisation of the vast resources of the Commonwealth of Australia for a pittance. The Aboriginal counts for nothing in this age of the Capitalist/Communist nexus. Our diplomatic corps, politicians and the bureaucracy which allowed this are either operating out of their depth, and should be sacked, or, complicit and supportive of the policy objectives, and should be sacked. The Australian people, including all the Aboriginals-in-need are finding little real support from these transnational elites. There is only one policy – the money-power policy.

State governments are ignoring the referenda result and continually initiate Voice proposals locally. Shared governance is part of this initiative for asset exploitation. Settling matters arising from these state-based Voice policy-objectives will now be placed into the safe hands of our courts, in spite of the referenda result. Activist judges are carefully selected, not elected.

Secret societies working vigorously behind the scenes, uniting the work of contrasting-entities to pursue only one policy. Australia, including the Aboriginal people, are all being taken to the cleaners for sure. Our governments are defying the will of the people, in preference to pursuing this One World policy of transnational exploitation: <https://water.dpie.nsw.gov.au/plans-and-programs/water-resource-plans/status/nsw-mdb-fractured-rock>  wealth and it bequeaths to us the ability to have a life more abundant. In the days of Merrie England (around 1200AD) we went from working all the time, just to survive, to a point where the church could decree 150 holy days per year, where there was to be no work. It could do this without causing any impoverishment. This time was spent in the creation of massive churches, in music and art. It allowed the culture of the time, to flourish. (for a longer description see:

Financial Credit versus Real Credit by Jeremy Lee

If you compare this to today, where many work two jobs, where time off for cultural pursuits is far less, despite all the labour saving devices and methods developed since then. One must wonder why.

Our food production once measured in terms of an acre, being the area a man and his horse could cultivate in a day; to now, where that acre can be finished in a mere 10 minutes. In a world where canned food output in a season can be accomplished by a very small workforce, yet feed thousands upon thousands.

If we have had these advances and can feed ourselves with ease, why then do we find ourselves unable to replicate the kind of achievements that our predecessors did?

To answer this, we must examine closely our financial system, for it is by this system that we are limited.

A study of the concept of money will show you that it has no worth in or of itself, it is only the promise it represents.

It is the utilisation of that promise which is at fault. (For more information on the concept of money watch Retell the Story - Jeremy Lee)
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=N-aM4JY8zCg>

This is where the Social Credit movement differs from our established society at present. The current controllers of our world at large have instituted a monetary system based on scarcity. One which restricts the full use of our inherited wealth. For wealth is not just money or objects, it is also in the abstract in knowledge.

If our financial system is failing us, and I contend it is, then reform of this system is imperative. To be stuck in a world where it's abundance can never be realised, where we can never achieve our full potential, simply because of an artificial limitation is madness.

Take the time to learn, to educate yourself. Use some of our inherited wisdom, do some online courses to prove to yourself that what we accept as normal in our current financial world is not normal. It does not represent the reality of today.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rkg9ca_DJIE

So then when you are asked the question, what did you inherit? By virtue of belonging to the human race you can confidently say all knowledge. It then depends on how you wish to use it. In the bible the promise is that man will inherit the earth and all its abundance. Like the character in the Hollywood movie we too must realise how to spend this vast wealth responsibly. Making sure we do not squander it senselessly or use it recklessly causing great sorrow. That we can split the atom because we know how, does not mean we should, just to watch the fireworks.

That we can genetically manipulate a plant, animal or human virus, is again, not something to be undertaken lightly, if at all. The gaining of understanding should also come with an increasing respect of its dangers.

On a less cautionary note this gain due to inherited knowledge is and should remain available to us all. The proceeds of and the benefits accrued also should be made available to all. Not just for the profit of those in control.

There are many entrenched ideas around this subject. Sometimes it can seem confusing and will go against the grain for you. Learned behaviour can be hard to breakaway from. The social normalities we live with, are things it is often wise to question, especially if they are not living up to expectations. Why do we do things like this? Is it possible to do it better, easier? New inventions or significant improvements are all built on rebellion against previous thinking.

That the world is round, was a rebellion against the flat earth theory of its time, it caused havoc. Ships crews would mutiny against a captain who was intent on sailing "off the edge of the earth".

This concept of a wealth abundant all around us, one that should be available to us via our financial system, is an upset of a similar magnitude.

Those in control of this power of finance have held the reins for so long, they will not give up without a fight.

This time we are the captains of an idea, trying to valiantly sail into a future of realised abundance, but being stopped by a small crew of money lenders, pulling the ropes of our financial sails, reefing them in to slow us down, not wanting us to see the wealth available just over the horizon.

The view on the other side of this equation is limited only by our imagination. ***
