Vital Information on Communist Menace Suppressed

Radio Talk by ERIC D. BUTLER over 3CS Colac

Over the past few months the dally press of the capital cities has been devoting considerable space to the menace of Soviet Russia, It is something that this press rather belatedly admits that the controllers of Russia are a menace to Western civilisation, but well-informed students of international affairs cannot easily forget that it was the same press which, only a few years ago, was publishing reams of the most misleading and dangerous nonsense lauding Stalin's vast concentration camp. And, even now, the daily press is making no attempt to expose the real truth about the menace of International Communism.

It will be recalled how in 1946 we dealt extensively with the Canadian disclosures on Russian espionage tactics and Communist infiltration methods. The information we made available then could easily have been given the widest possible publicity through the daily press, but nothing was done about the matter.

It is true that the Melbourne Herald and several other daily papers published a few articles on the Canadian espionage revelations a few months ago, but these articles were most misleading and did not touch the basic issues discussed in the Canadian Royal Commission Report.

A study of the record of the press over the past twenty years reveals that it has consistently failed to warn the peoples of the British Empire against their enemies—at least until the policies of these enemies can no longer be denied or ignored.

Press Omissions

The press did little to tell the British people the truth about German rearmament right up until the Second World War had almost started. Douglas Reed, famous British publicist, and foreign correspondent for the London Times in Europe for many years, has revealed how his warnings about German rearmament were suppressed by that newspaper.

It is inconceivable that the press of the British Empire has only recently awakened to the fact that the controllers of Soviet Russia have never deviated one iota from their policy of world domination.

Why does the press consistently deny or ignore the existence of our enemies until it is almost too late to do anything effective about them? It has fawned upon every international organisation created for the purpose of destroying the sovereignty of the British Empire.

Instead of depending upon themselves, the British peoples have accepted the fairy story that the United Nations Organisation will ensure world peace. It will be recalled that it was our misplaced faith in the League of Nations, which resulted in our defences being seriously depleted while our future enemies were arming to the teeth. The same thing is happening again. It is true that Soviet Russia is a prominent member of the United Nations, but only to further her propaganda. While platitudes about world peace have been mouthed at the United Nations, the controllers of Soviet Russia and satellite countries such as Yugoslavia have maintained large armies.

U.N.R.R.A. Facts

Another international organisation used to weaken the British Empire while building up the Soviet tyranny was UNRRA. The press has still made no attempt to tell the peoples of the British Empire the truth about this organisation. In fact, one Sydney paper, the Sydney Morning Herald, recently went so far as to refuse to advertise a most revealing little booklet called The UNRRA Infiltrators.* Amongst other interesting things, this booklet reveals how UNRRA was used to pour enormous quantities of British food, agricultural machinery, and other valuable materials into Soviet-dominated Europe.

In other words, the British peoples were told that they must continue with severe food rationing in order that they could build up their enemies.

The first British controller of UNRRA in Germany, General Sir Frederick Morgan, created a world-wide stir when he said that, under the cover of the exodus of large numbers of so-called refugees from Eastern Europe, Russian espionage agents were being sent to Western Europe, Palestine, and elsewhere.

Palestine Position

The troubles of Palestine are obviously connected with Russian policy, as we are going to learn before very long. It must not be forgotten that Russia sup-

Russia

Russia Gets 46 Ships

(Australian Associated Press)

ROME, Sunday. —Russia will get the greatest number of ships — 46, including a battleship and a cruiser—in the final allotment to the Allies of the Italian Fleet.

This decision of the Big Four Naval Commission was announced by Italy today.

Britain and the United States were entitled to 28 and 26 ships, respectively, but they renounced their claims on condition that Italy scrapped the vessels.

France receives 43 ships, including three cruisers. Greece gets one cruiser, and one auxiliary craft. Yugoslavia gets 17 minor ships, and Albania one gun-boat.

Italy retains two battleships, four cruisers, four destroyers, 132 small and auxiliary craft.

Australia

Copland's Role

One of the main arguments used by Labor to remove the U.A.P. from office was the fact that Professor Copland had ill advised the Government on financial matters. They declared he should be sacked.

Since Labor took over, however, the same professor has gone from one stepping-stone to another.

As Chancellor of the new National University at Canberra he will draw a salary of £3,000 per annum, and in addition will have a £400 entertainments allowance free of tax. This is typical of many such examples, which should convince the electors that they are getting the same results from either party, and they are not good results.

CANBERRA, Thursday. -- The Prime Minister (Mr. Chifley) today told the House of Representatives that the Government had been advised not to adopt the principles of the New Zealand free medicine scheme because it was apparent that the scheme had been abused.

RESULT OF BRITISH RULE IN INDIA

We think that it is high time that some Member of the House of Commons of, say, the character and type of Mr. W. J. Brown, the Independent Representative for Rugby, should take up seriously, and push through to an exposure, the nature of the bookkeeping, which appears to accompany the liquidation of the British Empire.

To take the Indian sub-continent as an example, Great Britain has developed over 43,000 miles of railways with stations, bridges, administrative offices, and auxiliary works; provided irrigation works for 27 million acres of otherwise nearly useless land; developed first-class harbours at Karachi, Bombay, Madras, and Calcutta; built some of the world's greatest bridges and trunk roads; developed modern power systems, hydro-electric and otherwise; transformed the great Presidency cities from slums into sanitary, attractive, well-built settlements, traversed by wide tree-shaded boulevards, built public and business administrative offices unexcelled anywhere; rescued the forests from almost complete destruction and so checked soil erosion—to put the matter shortly, transformed a sub-continent.

Not merely has this been to the immense advantage of the indigenous inhabitants, but (until it was discovered that we were so imbecile that we would allow any amount of mud to be thrown at us, and believe we deserved it) the performance was the envy of the whole world, and has never been approached by any other country, European, Asiatic, or American.

"THE NEW TIMES" INDEX

Arrangements have been made to supply all "New Times" readers with an index at the end of every six months. We feel that the new format of the paper makes it much more suitable for filing purposes and that those keeping files would find an index of great value. The first index will cover the first six months of 1948.

We suggest that those who desire to file their "New Times" for reference purposes purchase two copies weekly—one for file and one for use among contacts. Readers who do this will not only be benefiting themselves but will also be helping "The New Times."

We now evacuate the scene of 150 years' intensive and successful effort, not merely under a stream of abuse from the sob-sisters of the Middle West and the aliens of Leeds, Bradford, the London School of Economics, and Chicago, but we appear to owe "India" £ 1,500,000,000. In other words, we have to work for nothing on three years' total exports of the United Kingdom at 1936 levels, for the benefit of "India" alone, without paying for a single pound of imports from India or anywhere else, before we have liquidated the balance of money cost to us of 150 years of Indian development.

The same tale meets us at every turn—Burma, the Argentine, China. Alone amongst "victorious nations" we stagger under impossible tasks; and we work without pay, subject to contempt and in two years bereft of even prestige. Either our negotiators are traitors or they are so incompetent that they are not fitted to manage the traditional welk stall.

We need clear information of every international transaction from the agreement made by Isaacs in Washington in 1917 (probably the basic agreement) accompanied by balance-sheets of the assets transferred, together with the replacement values at present price levels. Unless we are very much mistaken, the British public is being subjected to a "steal" which leaves any previous steal in history on the level of petty larceny. All the tentative experiments in procedure can probably be identified in the oil and railway rackets of the Rockefeller-Vanderbilt era.

ERIC BUTLER IN WESTERN N.S.W.

At the invitation of the Citizens' Rights Association of N.S.W. (Western Group), Mr. Eric Butler visited Dubbo on Friday, March 5, for the purpose of giving special lectures to a weekend Training School at which representatives from Citizens' Rights Associations of Western N.S.W. centres were present. Reports indicate that Mr. Butler's visit was very successful.

He arrived in Dubbo on Friday morning, March 5, and at lunchtime gave a 15-minute radio talk on "The Federal Constitution and the Prices Referendum." Between 500 and 700 people gave him an excellent hearing at a public meeting on the Friday night. The local papers published excellent reports of Mr. Butler's address.

Mr. Butler delivered five lectures at the Training School held on Saturday, March 6, and Sunday, March 7. His lecture on "International Communism and the Zionist Menace" was broadcast from the studio of 2DU Dubbo on the Satur-

The Divine Right Of Parliament

"Herbert Spencer was undoubtedly a prophet in his day when he said that the Twentieth Century would be a struggle to free mankind from the divine right of Parliaments. It all adds up to the fact that the rights of an Englishman, or an American either, mean nothing, unless a multitude of individuals are eternally alert to defend the rights of any ONE who is attacked. When people become indifferent to the mistreatment; and especially when they become indifferent to the abuse of the power of the State, they are ripe for slavery. The only way a man can preserve his own rights is by fighting for the rights of the other fellow."

—The Individualist (Virginia, U.S.A., April, 1947).

Individuals and Society

To crush what is spiritual, moral, human—so to speak—in man, by specialising him; to form mere wheels of the great social machine, instead of perfect individuals; to make society and not conscience the centre of life—this is the dominant drift of our epoch.

day evening. This lecture created much discussion. In introducing his lecture on "International Affairs," given on the Sunday, Mr. Butler said it was impossible to discuss International Affairs intelligently without an understanding of the ramifications of the Zionist international financial groups. Many asked for copies of Mr. Butler's Book, The International Jew.

Mr. Butler arrived back in Melbourne on Wednesday of last week.

PRODUCTION AND INCENTIVES

This journal has consistently stated over the past few years that increased production of consumer goods is one of the first major steps we must take towards preventing the disintegration of our community. But we have also stressed the fact that greater inducements must be the driving force of any campaign of increased production. These inducements must not only be made possible by a drastic reduction in taxation; it must also be made clear that the present financial rules shall be suitably modified to permit increased production to be distributed to consumers.

In his recent appeal to workers to increase production, the Prime Minister, Mr. Chifley, made no mention of the fact that the very financial and economic policies he is relentlessly pursuing are one of the greatest barriers to increased production. Mr. Chifley stands condemned as either a knave or a fool. As he is always presented by his publicists as a "financial wizard," we must assume that Mr. Chifley was appealing for increased production with his tongue in his cheek. Or, perhaps, he was trying to get "onside" with the daily press, which keeps up a chant about increased production being the solution of all our problems, and criticises all those who urge that something more than increased production must be suggested to the workers.

The Melbourne "Argus" of Wednesday, March 10, contained the following significant reports "Big Union Rejects P.M.'s Plea . . . The Federated Engine Drivers, and Firemen's Association last night rejected Mr. Chifley's plea for more production. A Trades Hall meeting resolved to tell Mr. Chifley that members believed that increased production would cause an industrial crisis unless the purchasing power of most people was increased."

There is no doubt that all workers still remember pre-war days when there was adequate production with large numbers of unemployed and a general deficiency of purchasing power in the community. It is not surprising, therefore, that Trade Unionists are extremely doubtful about the proposition that increased production will automatically result in a steady increase in the standards of living of the people. They recall the bitter lessons of history.

Every well-informed person knows that, apart from the "crippling effects, of taxation, many workers feel that the less they can do, the more certain they are to have permanent employment. Many of them recall years of unemployment before the war.

The most smashing blow that the non-Labor parties could deliver against the Socialists and Communists would be an unqualified declaration that they are in favour of such financial reforms which will permit the benefits of increased production to be available to all individuals irrespective of whether their services are required in the production system or not. But we feel that there are many people in the community who will do anything to defeat the Communists—except support any proposals to modify those financial and economic policies, which are the greatest assets the Communists, have.

Vital Information on Com. Menace Suppressed

ported the disastrous partition plan for Palestine. The direct relationship between the Palestine question and Russian policy is one of those vital subjects which the daily press ignores, thus providing further evidence of the fact that it still refuses to face up to the real Communist menace.

Another important aspect of the Communist menace, which the press ignores, is the fact that Communist ideas have been furthered by an exploitation of the conditions resulting from the policies of our present financial and economic system.

How many daily papers throughout the British Empire have ever even briefly referred to the power of the German-Jewish international financiers of New York? These financiers are not afraid of Socialism and Communism; they obviously regard these movements as necessary weapons of destruction as a preliminary to the creation of the World Monopoly State.

The Depression Policy

Every well-informed person now admits that the Great Depression was the direct result of financial policy originated in New York. In other words, the international financial groups of New York dominated by the Warburgs, Brietungs, Morgenthau, Baruch, and others of the same ilk, created conditions, which were a godsend to the Communists everywhere. It was Lenin who stated that "Revolution is impossible without a nation-wide crisis (affecting both the exploited and the exploiters)." The crisis of the Great Depression was followed by the upheaval of the Second World War. And we know that the international financiers were responsible for Hitler's rise to power.

Financial policy has been directly responsible for the progressive centralisation of all industry into bigger and bigger units.

The gradual elimination of small-decentralised economic units is the first step towards complete State control. Stalin has made it very clear that the widespread ownership of the means of production makes the Communist revolution almost impossible.

Centralisation of Industry

The centralisation of industry into bigger and bigger units means that more and more workers are brought together at the one centre. Direct contact between a personal owner of an industry and his employees becomes impossible. This is where the Communist agitator on the industrial front steps in. As industry has become more and more centralised, so in turn the Unions have become more and more centralised. The Communists are well aware that the present financial policy is their greatest ally.

That is why they bitterly oppose people such as the Social Crediters who point out that a modification of the present

MR. ATTLEE AND WHIG POLICY

Perhaps the salient feature of the present World situation is that Great Britain ("Britain") is in the remarkable position of being without a friend in any current controversy. Just what really is our policy in regard to Palestine, no one seems to know; but, whatever it is, it has succeeded in antagonising Jew, Arab, and Mr. Ben Hecht. What we contemplate for India when Mr. Nehru seeks refuge in Wall Street is not clear; but everyone is agreed that as a performance our postwar handling of him is only paralleled by Mr. Kerensky's display of statesmanship in the Russian Revolution.

Mr. Attlee's administration seems equally unhappy at home; nobody loves him and everyone feels that a country, which will tolerate his Aneurin Bevan and Emanuel Shinwells, must be decrepit or it would take action.

Yet in this connection, it must be recalled that Mr. Attlee himself is far more honest than many of his detractors. In 1934 he declared that "we," the Labour Party, had quite determined that they were not the Party of the people of this country, but of the world. Since then, of course, it has been made plain that the world does not include infra-tinkercusses. It is doubtless true that he was speaking for the benefit of his predominantly alien supporters, whether in this country or elsewhere; but so far as we are aware, he spoke in English, and he ought to have received attention. Because he gave no indication, and no assurance, that any part of the world outside this country would pay any attention to him; and, in the event, no one outside this country, and a rapidly decreasing number of people inside it, does pay any attention to him. What he succeeded in doing, as anyone outside the detestable Fabian atmosphere knew would be done, is to facilitate the enslavement of his constituents for the benefit of his hidden financiers.

In placing Mr. Attlee for the moment in the pillory, we have no illusions in regard to the part played by the alleged Conservatives in the armistice period. A very considerable amount of effort was devoted by Social Crediters to uncovering the continuity of the Whig influence from the South African War onwards, and Mr. Churchill, Mr. Eden, Mr. Harold Macmillan, and, in fact, the whole operative framework of the party which smugly allows itself to be labelled "Tory," are nearly pure-bred Whigs. We have previously referred to what is perhaps the outstanding historical novel of this century, the American Mr. Kenneth Roberts's Oliver Wiswell, and his explanation of the loss of the American Colonies, the inhabitants of which were preponderantly loyal, but it is so germane to the present position that we give his estimate of the Whigs at some length:

"Why shouldn't you find Howe's behaviour unfathomable? For years, in this country [England], the Whigs were in power, and had things their own way. All good Whigs had splendid government positions, and had splendid salaries for doing nothing . . . The Whigs are out in the cold, Oliver, and they don't like it . . . They're doing everything on earth to get back into power again. They're attacking the Tory Party in every possible way, and stopping at nothing.

The Tory Party is the Government, Oliver; so every Whig is against the Government. The rebels in America are against the Government; therefore the Whigs support the rebels. That's the only reason Pitt and Burke make speeches in favour of the rebels—to embarrass the Government. If the rebels should be defeated, the Tory Government would have been successful; the Tories would remain in power . . . The English don't like to admit it, but . . .

A.P.P.U. Blames Taxes For Fall In Primary Production

All State delegates attending the Federal Council of the Australian Primary Producers' Union meeting in Melbourne this week agreed that the serious decline in primary production was due to excessive taxation. Delegates from Tasmania, South Australia, Victoria, and New South Wales were present.

State delegates were unanimous that some immediate taxation relief should be given primary producers on personal exertion incomes. To enable a case to be submitted to the Federal Treasurer, the State executives will be asked to supply supporting evidence.

The executive agreed that farmers should be encouraged to apply book-keeping, costing, and recording of their activities for the future benefit of primary industries.

The Victorian Wool Committee is to consider a possible solution to overcome the shortage of shearers. It was stated shearers were difficult to obtain and the position was deteriorating.

Tasmanian delegates spoke of the necessity for immediate importation of American potato forks. It was decided to bring the urgent need for 1,000 dozen of these to be imported under licence before the Minister for Trade and Customs, Senator Courtice.

Tasmanian barley growers will be supported in their demands for a price increase for malting barley in an endeavour to encourage production. This barley is also considered to be of a high standard, and, if grown in Tasmania, would obviate the necessity of shipping barley to Tasmania from the mainland.

It was claimed it would not only benefit farmers, but also Australia's national income.

The possibility of using indexed figures the Whigs, in their attempt to get back into power, aren't even hesitating to wreck the British Empire . . . Nearly every member of the Whig party, in Parliament, for purely political reasons, has seized every opportunity to give aid and comfort to the enemies of his country. Never in any nation has anything been seen like the malignant and daringly outspoken treason of the English Whigs . . . General Howe is a Whig." (pp. 384-5).

Compare Mr. Roberts's description of the eighteenth century Whig with the Socialists. It is only necessary to understand that Whig (largely Jew) strategy has been refined to control both parties (so that in fact the Parliamentary division is not Labour v. Conservative, but P.E.P.-Fabian v. Back Bench) to perceive that the mass-migration of "Liberals" to "Conservatism" when the Whig tool, Lloyd-George, had served his purpose while wrecking his party, led by Alfred Moritz Mond, not to mention the Rothschild espousal of "Labour," was primarily designed to ensure that "Mr. Attlee" would have a free run in his solicitude for the alien, whether within or without our gates.

CAN THE LIBERAL AND COUNTRY PARTIES DEFEAT THE SOCIALIST MENACE?

A Vital Question For All Genuine Anti-Socialists

To be produced shortly as a booklet by the Victorian Social Credit Action Group, we are publishing extracts from this valuable essay on our "Conservatives" and the Socialist threat: —

Standing as a U.A.P. candidate for Yarra (Victoria) in 1940, Mr. F. L. Edmunds, now Liberal Member for Hawthorn in the Victorian Parliament, replied as follows to a Labor questioner who "heckled" him about boards: "The Labor man is the last who should attack boards. Boards mean pure socialism, and Mr. Menzies is the biggest socialist in the country" (vide Melbourne Age, September 7, 1940).

Probably no aspect of Socialist restriction of primary production has created so much adverse criticism in Australia as the wheat restriction scheme of the war years. A survey of the bitter criticism of this scheme reveals that all critics naturally assume that it was initiated by the Labor Government. They are wrong. This Socialist policy was introduced by the Menzies Government on November 29, 1940. This was done by regulations administered by the then Minister for Commerce, Sir Earle Page.

Those naive people who believe that there would have been no post-war regimentation and Socialistic controls if Mr. Menzies had been Prime Minister instead of Mr. Chifley, should carefully study the following report from the Sydney Morning Herald of August 20, 1941:

"The Prime Minister, Mr. Menzies, in a speech to 300 business men who entertained him at a dinner at the Australia Hotel last night, expressed his conviction that the war-time controls now being exercised by the Federal Government would continue to operate after the war ..... 'I believe that the new order is being built now..... In the last two years you have seen the introduction of profits control and prices regulation. You have seen new departments lay their hands on private enterprise, and policies pursued which are designed to affect the cost of living and interest rates. I hope that none of you will imagine that these just and equitable things that have been done during the war will cease when peace has been won. They will not.'" Mr. Menzies did not explain why he and his colleagues were unable to introduce a New Order before the war. There has certainly been a continuation of those "just and equitable things" which Mr. Menzies said should be continued after the war. Mr. Chifley and his backers have seen to that.

Not only has Mr. Menzies sponsored Socialist policies; he is on record as proudly claiming that he is a Socialist. While in Great Britain early in 1941 he said:

"I always tell my Opposition friends that the only difference between us is that I am theoretically non-Socialist, yet an amazingly practical Socialist, while they are theoretical Socialists. People will take things from us they wouldn't take from the Labor Party. . . . It is a question of speed. You get two views, which, in theory, are violently opposed. In practice, the extreme course of today is a commonplace of tomorrow" (vide Melbourne Age, March 3, 1941).

Here is an open admission of the fact that the first steps towards centralised control can be most successfully taken by so-called anti-Socialist Governments. This admission by Mr. Menzies makes it very difficult for the genuine anti-Socialist to feel confident that a mere change of politicians at Canberra would defeat the Socialist and Communist menace. Something more than a mere statement of a "change of heart" by Mr. Menzies is required. The electors want to see definite evidence of constructive policies based upon clearly enunciated principles.

(To Be Concluded.)

ANTI-FEDERALISM

The Premier (Mr. Hanlon) remarked the other day on the growing anti-Federal attitude of some people.

It must have been one of them who was overheard to say at the Australia Day dinner that the Commonwealth Government was adequately represented there by a series of apologies.

Action Group Appeal

Response to the appeal for fighting funds by the Social Credit Action Group has been excellent, and we wish to take this opportunity of thanking those supporters who have contributed, for their generous and valuable assistance.

But we are sure there are many of our supporters who intend to contribute who have not yet done so. Remember, these funds are urgently required, and our activities are getting nearer to that stage when such financial support may be clearly recognised as a vital investment for our future.

Send all donations to the Secretary, Mr. P. W. Keogh, c/o Box 1226L G.P.O., Melbourne, or to the Social Credit Action Group, c/o Box 1226L G.P.O. Make all cheques payable to the Action Group.

GARBAGE INTO FERTILISER

The following report is taken from the "Auckland Star" of January 4th, published under the heading "Modern Method of Turning Waste to Valuable Uses": —

Plans for the commercial development of a new type of garbage destructor that would transform all refuse into high-grade fertiliser were outlined in Melbourne recently by Mr. R. D. Mould, of the Sandringham City Council

They are of interest to Auckland in view of the possibility of the City Council taking action to compost sewage and garbage.

Mr. Mould said that even the most modern methods of destruction by fire were inadequate.

The solution of the problem, which called for bold measures, was possible in a way that would ease the financial strain on every municipality and transform the present menace and liability into an asset.

Agricultural scientists recognised that humus, or decaying vegetation, was the best fertiliser.

By a new system of garbage disposal this process had been shortened from years to hours. The plants already were in extensive use in America, and one had recently begun operation in Sydney.

It was considered that four plants, two serving the inner municipalities and two the outer, would cover the whole of the greater Melbourne area.

Uniform methods and periods of collecting household garbage and all types of refuse from markets and similar centres would relieve councils of much work and expense and would clean up the garbage evil.

Under this system, garbage was carted in covered vehicles to the converter sites, where it was tipped on to conveyors discharging into big steel bins.

On the conveyor, all tin cans and metal waste were removed electro-magnetically, compressed into blocks hydraulically, and fed into special furnaces, which recovered the tin, lead, and iron separately.

From the holding bins, the garbage was fed through a machine, which chopped it into small bits and transmitted it to the top storey of a completely enclosed multi-coloured circular steel conveyor. Inside the mass was treated and constantly turned in its passage from floor to floor.

In the bacterial-fermentation process, great heat was developed, and after about eight hours a day, a sweet-smelling, greyish substance was discharged. According to Mr. Mould, this is perfect humus, ready for bagging.

"In one day science converts this problem into nature's best fertiliser," said Mr. Mould. "Extensive tests have determined its value as comparable with chicken manure."

Use of Animal Urine

Undoubtedly one of the most wasteful policies in most modern farming is the non-use of animal urine.

At least four-fifths of the potash in animal manure is in the urine.

It contains half the nitrogen.

THE BOOK OF THE MOMENT

"The Truth About Social Credit"

In the controversies now raging around the nationalisation of banking issue, can YOU clearly explain the Social Credit viewpoint? Can you show your friends why Social Credit is opposed to nationalisation of banking?

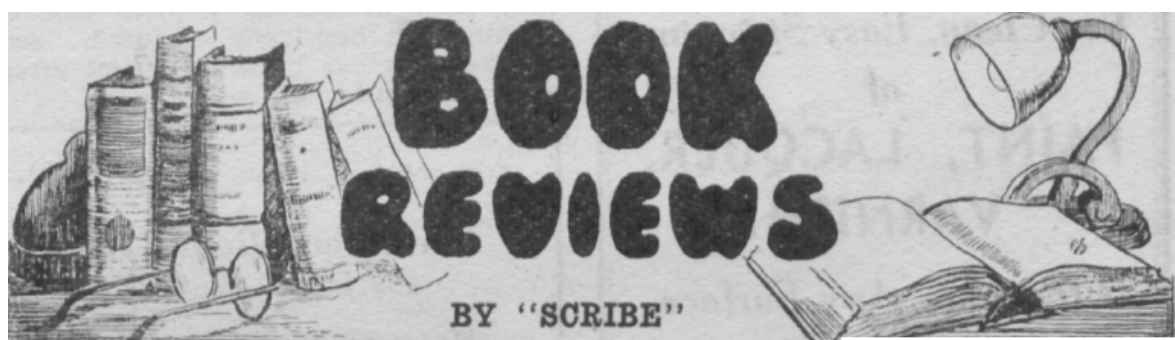

Mr. Eric Butler's "Truth About Social Credit" should be given the greatest possible circulation at present. It is simple, but sound. It deals with every question likely to be raised during the present banking battle. No Social Crediter should be without at least one copy of this valuable booklet at the present time.

THE FIRST ART

"Now in the course of nature the art of agriculture is prior, and next come those arts which extract the products of the earth, mining and the like. Agriculture ranks first because of its justice; for it does not take anything away from men, either with their consent, as do retail trading and the mercenary arts, or against their will, as do the warlike arts."

—Works of Aristotle, Vol. X.

"Will There Be A Second Black Death?"

The above is the title of a little booklet which should be in the hands of all those interested in organic farming and gardening.

Written by Friend Sykes, one of England's most outstanding farmers, it proves conclusively the direct connection between artificial chemicals and the growing incidence of disease in stock. Sykes sold one of the best farms in England at £100 per acre to start farming on land worth £4 per acre.

He relates how by correct organic farming methods he has achieved magnificent results from country previously described as "just space out-of-doors."

In view of the startling results he has achieved, it is not surprising that Sykes claims that, with the exception of citrus fruits, tea and coffee, Great Britain could sustain double the present population.

We recommend Sykes's booklet as an excellent introduction to organic farming and gardening. Price, 7d, post-free.

Vital Information on Communist Menace Suppressed

system to be placed under the direct control of the individual.

Not only are the present financial rules and the results of those rules, aiding the Communists; the present taxation and other policies pursued by the Canberra Government are also creating conditions, which the Communists are not slow to exploit.

For example, rising prices are the direct result of the Federal Government's economic policies. The Government does as its Socialist economic "advisers" suggest. We must therefore presume that these "advisers" are deliberately pursuing policies designed to produce unrest in the community.

Communists Exploit Crisis

It is fantastic to suggest that those imposing the present disastrous economic policies do not understand what financial rules would permit the advantages of the modern power production they are doing. Recent reports from all over Australia reveal that the Communists are skilfully taking steps to exploit the present shortages and rising prices. Vigilance Committees to police prices are being established in many centres.

Under genuine free competitive enterprise the individual can look after his own affairs without the aid of Vigilance Committees. If he is not satisfied with the prices and services of one business, he can simply transfer his business elsewhere.

Unfortunately, however, under the "New Order" being imposed upon us, rationing and quotas are the order of the day.

"Under the counter" trading and all kinds of other evils have grown up.

Watching the gradual deterioration of conditions, there is little doubt that many business men are determined to make as much as they can and then get out of business. There can be no sense of stability under existing conditions.

The New Gestapo

The Communists now propose to take advantage of the present unsatisfactory trading conditions to set up a Gestapo system for use against the businessman. We can rest assured that it will be used to try and drive from business those who are politically opposed to the Communists and Socialists.

The daily press can make no great contribution to a real exposure of the Communist menace unless it starts to tell the people of the powerful financial and allied groups which have produced the very conditions so essential for the work of the local Communists.

Its record over the past 25 years does not indicate that it will face the real issue.

Electors who, try and assess international and national affairs by what they read in the daily press can be nothing but hopelessly confused. And confusion is one of the greatest assets the real Communists have.

Communists Issue 10 Commandments for Red Youths

A press release from Bern, Switzerland, on April 30, 1947, contained the text of the Ten Commandments of Communism. To suppress opposition the Communist Party urges its followers to deny that it opposes religion. But when secret orders are given to the members of the Party they are told that destruction of religion must be their first concern.

The headquarters office of the Communist youth in Novosibirsk, in Soviet Russia, published "ten Communist commandments," to guide Communist youth in furthering world revolution. The "commandments" attack religion and the clergy of all denominations as the greatest barrier against world Communism. Following is the text of the "commandments":

1. Never forget that the Clergy is a declared enemy of the State and of Communism.
  2. Try to convert your friends to Communism. Do not forget that Stalin, who gave to the Russian people its new constitution, is the leader of the anti-Gods not only in the Soviet Union but throughout the world.
  3. Try to persuade, but do not force, your friends to stop going to Church.
  4. Watch out for spies; denounce sabotage.
  5. Spread atheistic literature among the people.
  6. Every good Komsomol is also a militant atheist. He must know how to shoot and be expert in military discipline.
  7. Work eagerly to prevent any religious element you may notice from influencing your neighbors.
  8. Every atheist must be a good Communist. Watching the security of the State is the duty of every anti-God.
  9. Support the Atheist Movement by financial gifts that will especially aid the propaganda of foreign organisations, obliged through circumstances to work in secret.
  10. If you are not a convinced atheist you will not be a good Communist and a faithful citizen of the Soviet State. Atheism is permanently linked with Communism and the two ideals are the basis of Soviet power in Communist Russia.
