AUSTRALIA'S IMMIGRATION POLICY UNDER GROWING ATTACKS

Speaking at a recent political meeting, the Prime Minister, Mr. Menzies, said that he had returned to Australia with his views on the White Australia policy unaltered. He also said his views were "unalterable." When the Ceylon High Commissioner in Australia, Mr. B. R. Perera, issued his recent arrogant and insulting statement criticising Australia's migration policy, the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Arthur Calwell, admirably reflected our own sentiments when he said that the Prime Minister, as Minister for External Affairs, should tell the High Commissioner to mind his own business. Mr. Calwell said Australians were determined to preserve the homogeneity of their people as strongly as the Indians, the Chinese and the Africans.

There is no doubt that the views of both the Prime Minister and the Leader of the Opposition reflect the views of the overwhelming majority of the Australian people. And there is good reason to believe, judging by correspondence in the daily press, that these views have been strengthened by events in Africa. But there is no room for complacency concerning Australia's immigration policy. Subversive forces are intensifying their activities to undermine resistance to its abolition. The Communist Party's policy is, of course, clear. But it is not the Communists—at least, not the known Communists—who are spearheading the attack on an immigration policy, which has kept Australia free of the racial problems, which have caused so much social friction in other countries; the main internal danger comes from the so-called intellectuals and their allies, the wholly-minded theorists.

The role of the daily press is to publicise the views of the intellectuals and theorists, while at the same time losing no opportunities to try and persuade the Australian people that their immigration policy is contrary to "world opinion" and that it would be in their own interests to start modifying it. There is not the slightest doubt that the daily press everywhere is serving the cause of world revolution. Why did sections of the Australian press recently decide that a Communist-inspired move in the United Nations concerning New Guinea necessitated the sudden discovery that Australians in New Guinea were also guilty of "racial discrimination"? We appreciated the crack of the Australian in New Guinea who told one journalist that, while greater education facilities may be needed for New Guinea natives, there was an even greater need for the education of "backward Australians" who accepted as the truth about New Guinea what they read in press headlines.

The attack on Australia through New Guinea will certainly be extended to a direct attack upon Australia's immigration policies when the time is opportune. Events are now moving so rapidly that this attack could come shortly. It will certainly come when the Afro-Asian bloc and the Communists dominate the United Nations. Although press reports state that American leaders are now appalled at the disaster in the Congo following the premature end of the colonialism, and are beginning to wonder whether their attacks upon the European colonialism are not merely providing support for the Communists, the policy makers in the U.S.A., the international Money Power, are well aware of what they are doing and can be relied upon to exploit the situation in Africa when it is time to reorganize. Dollar loans will then be necessary. The native leaders will then find that they are only pawns in a game they do not understand.

Any breaking clown of Australia's present immigration policy would help no one, not even the Asians and others who might come here, except those who would exploit the inevitable results. A firm stand should be taken without any weakening whatever. Even a small non-European minority in this country could be used as a powerful lever to influence internal policies. We notice with interest that the Communist-Zionist front organisation in the U.S.A., the National Association for the Advancement of Coloured People, is telling; the Republican Party that they must "liberalise" some of their policies if they are to obtain the Negro vote. We do not want that type of development in this country.

The time has arrived for a more forceful and positive defence of the present immigration policy. An inspiring lead has been given by the recent

Magnificent Response to Special Two-Year Self-Assessment Scheme A Final Appeal to Those Who Have Not Responded

There has been a magnificent and most inspiring response to the recently issued Confidential Report in which supporters were informed of the urgent necessity of making available a much greater amount of financial support in the immediate future. The pattern of events since this Report was issued leaves no doubt that the world revolution is rapidly gaining in momentum and that Western Civilization is in process of disintegration. We firmly believe that the position is far from hopeless. But it is desperate.

THE SPIRIT CAN TRIUMPH

And it is clear that there is much worse to come before we can hope to reach the dawn of a better day. This truth must be faced, not in the spirit of pessimism, but as a challenge to be met by those who believe that the spirit can triumph over the material; that the course of history is not "inevitable" and can be altered by dedicated men and women of strong faith exercising their most divine attribute: individual initiative. Whoever wrote those sinister documents known as "The Protocols," in which is outlined a revolutionary programme similar to that convulsing the world today, a great truth is revealed when it is said that there is nothing more dangerous in the world than individual initiative, particularly when associated with knowledge. Quality has always triumphed over quantity in the creation of a Civilization, and it will prove decisive in the present battle for Civilization.

THE SMEAR CAMPAIGN

The agents of world revolution in every Western country are well aware that a comparatively small number of dedicated people who know what to do and how to do it, are a deadly menace to their programme as it reaches the stage where an increasing number of people begin to realize what is happening. That is why there is an intensification of the smear campaign and other tactics against patriotic movements and their leaders everywhere. Time is running short and all obstacles to final success must be removed. The vicious smear campaign launched against Mr. Eric Butler nearly twelve months ago was designed to destroy a man who, according to one of the local agents of the revolutionaries, was a danger, not only because of what he said and wrote, but because it was obvious he had good friends in high places.

In spite of recent claims that Mr. Butler is being "embarrassed" by the smear campaign and other pressures, Mr. Butler has recently initiated a number of important moves, which are going to have a far-reaching effect on the Australian front of the revolution. The smear campaign has produced new and growing support in those circles where it is most required. Every pound of financial support pledged now is an effective answer to those whose very arrogance will prove to be their Achilles heel. No sum of money, however large, can prove of any value if given only when complete disaster has overtaken us. It is the money given before a supreme crisis, which makes possible the chance of victory.

INSPIRING RESPONSE

Prior to the launching of our special two-year assessment scheme, a mere handful of supporters were pledged to a regular flow of support totalling approximately £1,250 per year. We are confident that this figure can easily be increased to £3,000 per year for the next two years if the majority of supporters who have not yet responded and who are able to do so, follow the magnificent example of those who have. Some of those who have been contributing sacrificially for years have increased their pledges for the two-year period. We have been deeply moved by the increased giving of those already giving, particularly by the response of one dedicated Christian, who we will not embarrass by naming, whose pledge has been increased from £60 to £80 per year. This man is not a wealthy man, but works for wages. Amongst those who have pledged themselves for the next two years is one Victorian country supporter whose contribution will be £100 per year. A number are pledging £50 or more per year, including one young supporter who has only completed his first training class.

A few pledge forms still continue to come in, and we now estimate that pledges now total approximately £2,000 per year. While this increased flow of support will be a major contribution towards our total expenditure on all aspects of our growing programme of activities, we are now making a final appeal to the majority of supporters who have not yet joined the two-year self-assessment scheme, to do so immediately. It does not matter how small the amount pledged. A further £1,000 a year could be provided by a thousand supporters pledging, on the average, only £1 each. This surely is not too much to suggest when in a few years we could lose everything unless we win through.

PLEDGE IMMEDIATELY

We are finalizing this appeal because it is essential that we know immediately what amount we can rely upon for the major challenge we are proposing over what could be two decisive years. This is an hour of decision for all those who know the truth. Each person must ask himself whether he is giving of his best in time and money. A number of supporters have given donations, pointing out that for various good reasons they are unable to use the

THE FINANCIER - SOCIALIST PLOT

In an article written in 1941, "Wheresoever the Carcase Is . . ." C. H. Douglas explained how International Finance has aided and abetted Socialism. Douglas outlined the main tenets of Socialism as follows and brilliantly summarised the special interest of International Financiers in Socialism:

- (1) A preamble that sets out the many glaring defects of the present Economic and Social Systems. (No mention or criticism of Finance permitted.) Obviously this gets a majority vote at once.
- (2) "Labour creates all wealth." Wealth is the object of life, especially if not used but exported. Therefore Present labour has a right to all wealth so long as it exports it. Anyone who has the enjoyment of wealth without labour is a parasite. (From this postulate is derived the curious inversion that anyone paid by the State is ipso facto not a parasite.)
- (3) The holding of property, particularly land or buildings, by an individual, is robbery of the public and is likely to lead to the use of property for pleasure. The holding of property by any organisation is better, and the larger the organisation and the more secure it is from criticism by individuals, the better it is. The State, which is immune from prosecution by legal process, is better still, at the moment, but a World State, which would be omnipotent, would be best of all.
- (4) Everything can be reduced to a book of regulations. For this reason, a civil servant in Whitehall, or Washington, or Geneva, can farm land in Ross and Cromarty, or Cheshire, or Alberta much better than the farmer who lives on the land. Or if he can't it doesn't matter much, does it? Nobody knows the Civil Servant's name, he'll never see the farmer or the farm, and anyway, both the farmer and the Civil Servant will be dead soon.

- (5) The main objective, therefore, is to take everything from the individual, vest it in an untouchable organisation, the larger the better, and thus change the choice of minor tyrannies, which are vulnerable into an overriding single tyranny, which is invulnerable. Taxation is the primary tool by which to attain this desirable end, but restrictive Law, and in particular Licence Law, is a valuable auxiliary. But Law is the Agency both of taxation and Licensing.

When you have done this, you can put everyone on the wage and salary list, and invent a job for them, even if it's only filling in forms to show how many people are filling in forms. Then you will have solved the unemployment problem, which is the curse of Capitalism—if you don't know enough to recognise it as the coming of the Age of Leisure. And if people don't like filling in forms, well. "He that will not work, neither shall he eat."

It is clear, I think, that it is exactly in the realm to which Socialism has contributed nothing, the realm of individual initiative, invention, and scientific discovery, that we have made our progress towards a leisure civilisation, security, and culture. And exactly in the realm in which Socialism operates exclusively, that of Law and the infringement upon the liberty of the individual, that the major and increasing frictions of Society occur, and the stultification of Science is accomplished. It is not the concern of Science to deal with Distribution. And with regard to Finance, which is the mechanism of Distribution, Socialists and the Financier have always been of like mind. In this, we approach the answer to our original question - - why does Socialism receive support from International Finance and specifically German-American-Jew Finance? That answer is that Law places the sanctions of the State behind the collection of taxes. Socialism with its slavish adulation of the State, aims continually at the transfer of Property to the State. This property then becomes available as security for State Loans created by the Financiers out of paper credits—i.e., the monetisation of the collective credit of the community concerned. The Bondholders are exactly what their title would imply—they are the slaveholders of the "New Order." Just enough of the Bonds are distributed to the Public to obscure the real nature of the transaction and to create a vested interest in the protection of the Financier.

A LETTER FROM SOUTHERN RHODESIA

We have received the following interesting and informative letter from H. R. Hart, Southern Rhodesia:

I had intended writing a very vindictive letter about my fellow-countrymen in England who seem to spend most of their time going on strike, or holding protest meetings on behalf of the poor down-trodden African in this part of the world. I could point out that when women and children were being butchered in Kenya, there were no protest meetings in London's Trafalgar Square. Neither do I seem to remember protest meetings of this magnitude, when unarmed Hungarians were attempting to grapple with Russian tanks, and were mowed down in their thousands.

One would have thought that there might have been some protest from the British people, when their politicians were vying with each other for the honour of shaking Mr. Khrushchev's hand. (The League of Empire Loyalists and others in Great Britain did protest during Khrushchev's visit. Ed. New Times). I could also say that I hardly thought it "British" to expect Kenyans to sit down at the same table with a native who was primarily responsible for butchering their women and children, and calmly discuss their own sell-out!

I could point out the slimy manner in which England has engineered these sell-outs, and the fact that although democracy has ceased to function in these newly "liberated" African States and large numbers of their black friends are now languishing in gaol, yet I am unable to hear even a faint noise from Trafalgar Square. But as I said at the beginning of this letter, I have no desire to come to blows with my fellow countrymen.

I feel no animosity towards the British people, because I honestly don't think they know what is involved, and I don't suppose they will ever be allowed to find out. They and their children are "brain-washed" through the medium of the press, radio, Church and various Communist inspired organisations. Like most Englishmen, I was very pro native when I left England, which is not surprising considering that I had been suitably indoctrinated with the doctrine that all South African are swine, whose favourite pastime is ill-treating their black population. It was impressed on us that "all men are born equal", which is as logical as arguing that because all bulls are cattle, that all bulls are equal. Imagine my surprise when I found that the vast majority of natives were better off than I had been in London. And as for those terrible South Africans, I found them kindly people. Their only crime was their refusal to acknowledge a semi-civilised savage as an equal!

IMMIGRATION POLICY UNDER ATTACKS

Victorian Returned Servicemen's Conference which lost no time in removing from its agenda paper the motion by the director of the University's Audio and Visual Aid Department, Mr. Newman Rosenthal, requesting that a quota of Asian migrants be allowed to settle in Australia. Compromise on fundamental principles is disastrous in these perilous times. Those who argue that no one can have a proper pride in his own race and kind and their history without necessarily being arrogant or offensive to other races, should be told that they have succumbed to the collectivist and levelling-down philosophy which leads direct to World Tyranny.

ANNUAL DINNER NOT MERELY SOCIAL EVENT

The New Times Annual Dinner is not merely a social event; it is one, which commemorates another year of service to the cause of Truth. It is therefore the responsibility of every supporter to make every effort to attend, not only for the pleasure and inspiration he will obtain, but in order that his presence will assist others.

Please keep the date free—Friday, September 23. And the Seminar is the following day, Saturday, September 24.
