The price of Freedom is eternal vigilance—

Thought for the Week: "Uniformity is the watchword of the totalitarians, the socialist politician, the socialist schoolmaster, and the socialist industrialist. Deviation from uniformity (from the party line) is considered the greatest political crime, and it carries the penalty of complete exclusion from all organs of publicity.

'The uniqueness of the individual', is essentially a Christian conception, and is anathema to the Planners...."

- James Guthrie, in To What End? (1952).

TOTALITARIANISM IN NEW ZEALAND: Mr. Eric Butler reports from New Zealand where he is currently lecturing under the auspices of the New Zealand League of Rights:

Immediately upon my recent arrival in New Zealand, to lecture primarily on the threat to freedom by UN-sponsored Human "Rights" Commissions, I was brought face to face with the escalating menace of totalitarianism in "God's own country". The Race Relations Board has written to the New Zealand League of Rights demanding that the League gives a written assurance that it will not stock or sell certain books, one being "The Hoax of the Twentieth Century", by American author, Dr. Arthur Butz. As witnessed by the Canadian situation, where the Butz book has been banned, even for use in educational centres, "The Hoax of the Twentieth Century" is regarded by the Zionist mafia and its creatures as a major target. As I write the New Zealand League of Rights is obtaining legal opinion on where it stands on the issue of the Butz book. It is also proposing to follow the lead of the national weekly, "Truth", in publishing correspondence from the Race Relations Board, "Truth" editorially said that a high percentage of violent crimes in New Zealand were committed by non-Europeans. In spite of threats by the Race Relations Board, "Truth" has to date refused to back down in any way.

Clearly the maximum publicity is the only way to resist the Human Rights totalitarians. When Christchurch businessman Mr. Eric Sykes advertised for a Christian foreman some years back, a complaint was laid before the Human "Rights" Commission and Sykes was prosecuted. The two Christchurch papers were also prosecuted for having published the Sykes advertisement and found guilty. The case cost Mr. Sykes thousands of dollars, but the resulting nation-wide publicity saw the end of any further prosecutions - at least for the time being. But now the totalitarians are on the move again, with the League of Rights the major target.

Perhaps it was more than a coincidence that on the Phillip Adams visit to New Zealand a few weeks before my arrival, well-known radio New Zealand interviewer Jessica Waddell opened an interview by asking for comment on "fascist" Eric Butler. Mr. Adams lost no time in telling New Zealanders that I was the "most dangerous man in Australia", and that he was devoting himself to destroying my influence. He linked me with Mr. John Bennett and Professor Geoffrey Blainey. Being anti-Christian herself, Jessica Waddell no doubt felt at one with Phillip Adams as he says his goading of the Christian Church is his idea of good fun. Jessica Waddell once interviewed me on her programme, agreeing basically with most of what I said. She knows, of course, that I am not a "fascist", but she got such a fright as a result of the torrent of highly organised complaints that she never had me back again!

Striking posters are now going up in public places in New Zealand, headed DISCRIMINATION, which is "unlawful" on the basis of sex, race or religion. And "if you feel you have been unjustly treated, consult the Human Rights Commission or The Race Relations Conciliator." This is, of course, an encouragement to every misfit to lodge complaints, in confidence, against their fellows. The battle for freedom in New Zealand is clearly about to enter a new phase.

MR. JEREMY LEE REPORTS:

LANGE, HAWKE AND ANZUS: Australians and New Zealanders are now witnessing the final dismembering of our defences. Public reaction to the threatened destruction of the ANZUS treaty has forced P.M. Hawke to adopt a more cautious posture than his N.Z. counterpart; but the performance of his Government to date inspires little confidence.

One of the A.L.P.'s first acts was to appoint Mr. Richard Butler - former husband of Senator Susan Ryan - as Ambassador for Disarmament to the U.N. This was in keeping with a campaign run by the United Nations Association in Australia prior to the Federal election, and for the disarmament programme sponsored by "Parliamentarians For World Order" - an association of politicians from countries in the West pushing for World Government.

Last December, Australia, for the first time, voted for a nuclear-freeze resolution in the U.N. The National Times (Feb. 8-14, '85) said:

"... The resolution urges: "The USSR and the US, as the two major nuclear weapons states, to proclaim... an immediate nuclear arms freeze which would be a first step towards a comprehensive programme of disarmament". The resolution further states that a freeze would embrace:

* A comprehensive test ban on nuclear weapons and of their delivery vehicles; * The complete cessation of the manufacture of nuclear weapons and of their delivery vehicles; and * a ban on all further deployment of nuclear weapons and their delivery systems...."

That resolution, which Australia voted for in the U.N. last December, is the precise position New Zealand has now adopted.

No wonder the U.S. finds it difficult to trust the Hawke government. Current events have been timed to a nicety, from the USSR's point of view.

Victorian RSL President Bruce Ruxton, writing in the Toorak Times on January 27, issued this graphic warning:

"...An item of concern is the Soviet build-up at their Cam Ranh Bay base in Vietnam. Five more TU-16 Badger nuclear bombers have arrived in Vietnam to bolster the already large strength of Badger bombers in Vietnam (now 14). The Soviet military might in Cam Ranh Bay, including the enlarged garrison of Soviet sea-going infantry, could easily cut off support and shipping lanes, including all important Middle-East-Japan oil route. The Soviet is known to have at least twice as many submarines operating in the Pacific as the US Navy. The Soviet island north of Japan - Etorofu, is getting the new Flanker and Fulcrum low-flying jet fighters, and many more ships are destined for the Pacific to bolster the already-large Soviet fleet of 600 ships stationed in the Pacific. These new ships include more of the KIROY-class 28,000 tonne nuclear-powered missile-carrying cruisers, and the huge deep water Alpha submarines. The large Soviet military presence, together with troubles in various Pacific nations augers for a not-so-nice future in our part of the world....."

THE LOW-DOWN ON LANGE: Mr. B. A. Santamaria, writing in The Australian (March 27, '85) said:

"... Mr. Lange was returned in an election which took place on July 14 1984. On July 15, exulting over the consequences of his victory, Radio Moscow's domestic service expressed the Soviet's appreciation of what was actually happening in the South Pacific: "..... Implementation of New Zealand's Labour's election pledges" said Radio Moscow, "might set off a chain reaction leading to the collapse of the ANZUS block. The example of New Zealand might also be followed by Australia...."

Mr. Santamaria went on; "... The catalyst for change in New Zealand was the establishment of the pro-Soviet Socialist Unity Party of N.Z. in October 1966 ... In 1980, the Soviet Ambassador, Sofinsky, who had been a senior KGB officer in London, was expelled from N.Z. when caught red-handed passing money to the S.U.P....."

Mr. Santamaria's article went on to show how the communist-controlled Socialist Unity Party in N.Z. first took over the Federation of Labour, (the equivalent of Australia's A.C.T.U.), and from there gained majority support in the Labour Party itself.

"... To drive home the communist victory, the N.Z. Labour Party... carried a resolution to withdraw from the ANZUS alliance. Mr. Lange was then only deputy leader of the Labour Party; yet as Prime Minister he claims to support ANZUS, while he knows very well that his party's policy is to withdraw. The progressive deterioration of the N.Z. Labour Party into a condition of de facto Soviet control provides the central reason why the Lange Government has pursued its present policy.."

CHIPP OFF WHOSE BLOCK?

The National Times (Feb. 8-14, '85) said; "Democrats Leader Don Chipp was posturing in New Zealand this week over nuclear ships and ANZUS. Deriding ANZUS as a 'con', he drew attention to the treaty's lack of real security guarantees for Australia and New Zealand. Compare this with Chipp in Parliament on May 22, 1969: "... The Prime Minister brought back a reaffirmation of the ANZUS Treaty by President Nixon in such unequivocal and categorical terms that gave heart to every member on this side of the House who still believes that the ANZUS treaty is the most precious piece of paper in Australian archives..."

All we can say is: We're not surprised!

CAPITAL PEACOCK: The Chronicle (Toowoomba, March 11, '85) reported; "The Federal Opposition would not vote against capital gains tax legislation even though it opposes the principle of such a tax, Opposition Leader Peacock said yesterday. Speaking on television yesterday, Mr. Peacock said the Opposition would not vote against any element of the Government's Budget, even if it disagreed with parts of the Budget legislation, and this included capital gains tax...."

JUDICIAL VENOM: Yes, we've passed 1984. This is 1985! We can still recall the days, long ago now, when a judge was the model of respectability.. The very peak of good taste was expected of him. Now (1985) we have a judge of the High Court of Australia about to face criminal charges; and another judge (both judges former A.L.P. Ministers) making insulting remarks about the British Prime Minister, and a former Prime Minister of Australia. Mr. Justice J. McClelland ("Diamond Jim") - atomic tests, in Australia, Royal Commissioner, says (The Age, March 25th) that "he had to be a bit rude". Did he have to be? We know it would not have been difficult for him; but we wonder what the British officials have to say? We are sure of one fact: viz. the Royal Commission into Atomic tests in Australia is part and parcel of the Aboriginal Land Rights campaign.
