Thought for the Week: "The enemies of our culture have been planning and working for many years (long before 1936) for the destruction of our culture and people. They have not been particularly secretive about this (it is merely not widely publicised). It is well documented that they aim to subdue us by gaining control of the education systems and institutions of our countries. They truthfully say that if they can condition the minds of the youth of a nation for just one generation, then that nation will belong to them...."

"....If, in the cause of this endeavour, children are led to destroy body and mind with drugs; to kill themselves in motor accidents; to commit suicide - if their bodies are wrecked - if their minds become warped by fantasies and delusions so as to make them incapable of appreciating the human reality, then - that is not failure - that is success."

- Alan Gourley, in Assault on Childhood (1986)

THE DEBT BOMB TICKS ON: "Trade figures next week will bring small comfort two years after the dollar collapsed in 1985. Huge foreign debt shows how politicians trivialise and ignore impending crises."

- Des Keegan, in The Australian, February 14th.

The point which Des Keegan makes is that the politicians of the major political parties are more concerned with their survival in the current power struggle than with the more urgent realities of Australia's "debt-bomb", along with high inflation and civic decay. Civic decay; meaning increasing crime, street violence; domestic violence; abuse of children, etc.; is no longer a "sleeper" political issue - it has arrived!

Today's news bring awareness of low morale in the police forces, speeding forced resignations, and early retirements: recruiting appears not to be replacing this unfortunate "wastage". The police forces are dispirited by the State's over-lenient sentencing (in Victoria) regime: perpetrators of horrific crimes may soon no longer be sentenced to "life" imprisonment. The "bleeding-hearts" and out-right political subversives are ever up in arms against punishment for violent crime, yet all but ignore the plight of the victims - if such are alive that is.

The Soviet Union, beloved of many of the above, keep their official executioners busy!

Australia has an internal debt-bomb also. Those plastic cards are dragging more and more ordinary Australians into the debt morass: it is increasing significantly with the passing of the years. This, of course, is related to the violence (above), particularly domestic violence. Many rows between husband and wife are over money: violence and divorce often follow. The children suffer the most! Deprived of stable homes and the love of both parents: children need both parents, and the love of them both. Cruelty often follows from step-parents and de facto relationships. Blood is thicker than water.

What will any new political alignment in Australia do about the external and internal debt-bombs?

Mr. and Mrs. Australia want sensible, workable, policies. Vague rhetoric won't suffice. We are all aware of the attacks bearing down on the family. We all know that Social Security is being abused. We all know Education is in a mess; with Mickey Mouse subjects and Humanism and even some outright subversion being rammed into the little minds of our children. We know all this. Don't take it out on the teachers; most of them don't like it any more than you do. Take the axe to where the policies, teaching policies, are being decided.

The Fraser Government had its chance to at least right a few wrongs. It didn't do so. It gave us retrospective legislation; the Human Rights Commission, the incipient legislation as the base for Affirmative Action in Commerce and Industry, the World Heritage listings upon which Tasmania was prevented from having its Franklin Dam. These were central-ist political initiatives, and an attack on State rights, by so-called non-Socialist government. No wonder Sir Joh talks of "15 years of the Whitlam Government" meaning that the Fraser Government took over from where the Whitlam Government left off.

We assert, with confidence, unfortunately, that unless the debt-bomb is defused, and with this - lower interest rates, lower taxation; then all the well-meaning talk in the world to lament our decaying society will prove useless. Social evils can and do flow from the evil(s) of debt. When poverty comes in the door, love flies out the window", our great-grandparents used to say. It is still true; it always will be.

We agree that the HawKeating Government should go, as it is exacerbating the fragmentation of the Australian society with its onslaught of Fabian Socialist policies; more and more bureaucracy - to be funded by more and more taxation, at the expense of farmers, small businessmen, the ordinary Australian family. But that's only a first step.

After that there must be concrete policies to root out the rot. We have not yet been fired with enthusiasm for any so-called anti-Socialist groupings - Coalition, New Right, Sir Joh factor, etc. But perhaps a start is being made - perhaps.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE PHILLIPINES?

We hear quite a deal on radio with respect to the Phillipines, but do not read all that much in the print media of Australia.

However, we shall tell you, the supporter, what is going on in the Phillipines; the classic Communist struggle for capture of the Government of that unfortunate country.

It does not seem to be disputed that the Marcos regime was a military dictatorship; and like all dictatorships, corrupt to an extent. There is no doubt that Marcos had, and still has for that matter, a strong following in his country. Strong leadership always attracts much support, even if that leadership is not incorruptible.

We strongly suspect that Communist agents and forces within the Phillipines were under instructions to assist Mrs. Corizon Aquino in the elections which brought her to the Presidency of her country. That was step number one - the destruction of Fernando Marcos! There have been attempts to bring Marcos back to the Phillipines, as Mrs. Aquino is not satisfying the top Army brass in her stance against the Communists. Perhaps she owes them (The Communists!) a favour. Probably, Marcos would have staged a successful comeback had it not been for the opposition of the United States. Marcos was prevented from returning to Manilla from his present base in Hawaii, the 50th American State.

Corizon Aquino has tried to do some type of deal with the Communists, but she has found out now that you have to keep feeding them; they don't go away. There was that 60-day truce, but that's all over now. What's next? O.K.! More and more pressure on the Central Government in Manilla via military guerilla warfare, with arms pouring in from Vietnam, and with captured American weapons from the days of American support for Marcos, Really, America is letting the Communists claw control of the Phillipines away from Manilla. Why? Maybe the U.S.A. hasn't recovered from Vietnam, with that (self-inflicted really) defeat.

Vietnam was a political defeat. Vietnam was lost on the streets of Washington, Chicago, and Sydney, and Melbourne, etc. The Vietnam War could have been decisively won, so the top generals claim, any time - from as little as six weeks, to six months at the most. The will was gone. Allowing America's sons to shed their blood in a no-win war; a war not intended to be won; was a moral crime for which those responsible have yet to pay. It is slowly coming out. Slowly. What about Australia's sons who gave their lives? For what?

The Communists in the Phillipines are there, and growing stronger to "pressure" Manilla. Failing a revolutionary Government, which we can't envisage in the short term, then the pressure will be stepped up until Manilla allows Communist representatives in the Government. Two or three at first (in the key portfolios) - then more, until the Government collapses under the weight of revolution. There will be more murders; more "disappearances", more blood in the streets. Then the big clean up, just like South Vietnam; then Communist "peace". But not for Australia!

BRIEF COMMENTS: We now have more information concerning Ernst Zundel's trial appeal in Toronto, Canada. The Globe and Mail of January 24th reported that "The Ontario Court of Appeal has ruled that Ernst Zundel .....must have a new trial on charges of publishing false news about the Holocaust. The court said that the jury at Mr. Zundel's trial were seriously misled about the law, and that Mr. Zundel had a right to introduce slides, models and books to show he honestly believed in the truth of his publications.

The guilty verdict in the 1985 trial has been overturned because of three major errors by the trial judge, namely that he failed to allow the defence to delve into the impartiality of prospective jurors; he refused to allow the defence to introduce important evidence; and that in his final appeal to the jury, the presiding Judge had seriously misled it about the law.

Zundel says he wants a new trial because he has important evidence to present. He clearly sees that a new trial would provide him with another forum from which to criticise the Holocaust myth. This is the last thing the Zionists would want. Canadians are waiting to see what the Ontario Attorney-General will do.

The late Sir Raphael Cilento warned in his last public address, Australia's Racial Heritage ($1.25 posted) that large numbers of Asian immigrants could pose health risks. With the AIDS plague literally sweeping Central Africa, proposals to allow black Africans into Australia must be rejected on health grounds alone. If World Health Organisation estimates are correct, 30 million Africans are already carrying the disease. Zaire is one of the African States worst affected. During the 1970s several thousand educated blacks from Haiti worked in Zaire, bringing the disease back to Haiti. Haitian refugees have helped to bring AIDS into the United States. The U.S. Centre for Disease Control reported last year that in Haiti 36 per cent of the AIDS victims are black women. White homosexuals are just about the only segment of the European population in the U.S.A. contracting the disease.

BRIEF COMMENT: Japan appears to be suffering from "The troubles of prosperity". This phrase was actually stated by Sir Robert Menzies in the earlier years of his Prime Ministership; although one of his speech-writers probably dreamed it up, if the truth is known.

Now Japan's steel industry is in deep trouble; the giant steel combines are reducing staff by 20% - 30%.

The reason? They can't sell their steel. The reason? The highly-valued yen, principally, and hot competition from Taiwan and South Korea. Example? Australia; who can't afford a new Japanese (or any) car? Even a small to medium Japanese car sets the purchaser back something like $15,000. Small wonder that new car sales are the lowest for umpteen years. If "General" Keating's policies persist, the new-car sales will be even lower.
