The price of Freedom is eternal vigilance —

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "It is 'education' which has enabled the monstrous imposition of socialism, and at his investiture as Rector of Edinburgh University, Mr. Malcolm Muggeridge said of education that it 'had become a sort of mumbo-jumbo or cure-all for the ills of a godless and decomposing society Whether it was juvenile delinquency, high-school pregnancies, or drug-addiction among Brownies, he said, the solution is always the same - more education'.

"A few sane and cultivated men and women do call the process (education) into question; but the majority of leaders, many of them unrecognised paranoics, bent on imposing uniformity and technology on the masses, are accelerating the process which can only end in our destruction - as planned."

- Dr. B.W. Monahan, in The Moving Storm (1969)

A WELCOME WORD OF WARNING: "The long-term mission to repair the planet is probably the most worthy project humanity has embarked on and is long overdue.

"But this objective is in danger of being hijacked by cunning politicians pedalling (sic!) apocalyptic forecasts for short-term gains."

- Les Hollings, in The Sunday Herald (Melbourne), August 20th.

We agree with Mr. Hollings when he claims, "The environment is the biggest issue after the economy. To the scientists' horror, their scenarios for a greenhouse effect have been turned into a firm forecast."

We learn (we knew already) that the Bureau of Meteorology is making known extracts from "The Climate Issue" which clearly has it that it is not, at this stage, possible to predict climate changes over Australia: there is just insufficient evidence.

Statements like the above, by scientists of unquestioned repute and integrity, are not getting through to the people at large. Why? Can the mass media be accused of some type of collusion with the hysterical greenies and "cunning" politicians. It appears so.

Mr. Hollings quotes Robert White, President of the U.S. National Academy of Engineering, who warned at the 1989 meeting of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, "... We are confronted with an inverted pyramid of knowledge. A huge and growing mass of proposals for policy action is balanced on a handful of real facts."

In spite of this "the cunning politicians" see in the Green Hoax an excuse to get away with a mass of restrictive legislation: the political centralists (including very definitely the Fabians) are already talking about "referendums" to roll the States. They don't SAY that in ugly words, but that is what they mean.

Mr. Hollings points out some of the likely developments which could accrue from an unsound "apocalyptic view". A phasing out of coal exports: coal can cause acid rain. The cleanest power is hydro-electric, and that comes from DAMS (are you listening, Tasmanians?). More nuclear power-plants?..

We urge readers to arm themselves with a copy of Green Hoax by David Thompson. It is a well prepared analysis of the present scare Greenhouse Effect and Ozone Layer debate. To drive our point home we supply a partial list of headings of chapters in progressive order: 1) The Greenhouse Effect. 2) Where Did It all Start? 3) An Uncritical Media Quotes Hansen. 4) Greenhouse Fraud. 5) Scientists Interviewed. 6) No Conclusive Evidence. 7) "Ozone Hole" 30 Years Old. 8) Disclaimers Never Make It to the Press. 9) Why are the "Ozone Holes" Natural? 10) C.S.I.R.O. Evidence On U.V. Radiation. 11) The "Rising Sea Levels". 12) The Australian Media. 13) Panic and Hysteria. 14) THE POLITICS OF "GREENHOAX": The Fabian Programme/A Fabian Victory/ Fabians Go "Green". 15) Attack on Private Property. 16) Erosion of Sovereignty. 17) More United Nations Conventions. 18) The Subversion of the "Green" Movement. 19) Enter the A.L.P. 20) The Bankers Move In. 21) Global Television Extravaganza. 22) Under the Whip of Debt..... These headings (above) should give supporters a pretty good idea of the contents and thrust of GREEN HOAX. The orders are now flooding in, but we can meet them, although there may be a delay of a few days in despatching orders as we exhaust one batch from the printers and have a brief delay before the next batch arrives. Price: $6.00 posted. SIX COPIES FOR $25.00 POSTED. Order from League Bookshops.

A GOOD BUDGET - BUT A ROTTEN ECONOMY: "Yes, it was a good Budget. But it's the rotten economy Mr. Keating must be judged on.."

- David Potts, in The Financial Australian, August 17th.

Mr. Potts and many other writers on the economy, do think that we are to have that new "Buzz Phrase" - "A hard landing", even a "crash landing" .. meaning, of course, a recession; even depression.

Mr. Potts and others of his persuasion fear a wages blowout around the corner. No fall in inflation is likely; not with a wages blowout.

Mr. Hawke must be in an awful quandary with respect to the date of the next Federal elections. He and Mr. Keating think that the economy will be "on course" (Mr. Keating's pet phrase) next year; the Budget has hosed down the irritable pensioners and the underprivileged - fairly plain sailing ahead. The so-called Opposition is just terrible: Andrew Peacock flies off at a tangent with a half-baked scheme of tax-protected interest earnings. Pie-In-The-Sky stuff. Mr. Hewson, the Shadow Treasurer, isn't saying anything.

We just don't know what "wash" Australia could face from overseas financial developments. The Japanese economy is fragile, in our view; and one can only begin to understand the commercial and industrial contraction in Australia if Tokyo called its (financial) Legions home. Not even Mr. Keating could prevent this from happening.

No, we can't see any improvement in the Australian economy in the short, or even the intermediate, terms. We expect the gradual squeeze on taxpayers to continue along with the drive by International Finance to drive the various nations into a Global Economy.

Can things go wrong? Sure they can. There is no hope of ultimate freedom and sovereignty for the individual unless "things do go wrong" for the powers of International Finance ..

"No solution to our (finance-economic, social) ills is possible which does not transgress the tenets of orthodox finance" .. C.H. Douglas.

BRIEF COMMENTS:

The world's master forgers are at work. There are big bucks for those who can copy (expertly) official papers, records, etc., and especially for those who wish to enter Australia, albeit illegally. One of the most audacious forgeries was a recently uncovered Australia Card - for a Canadian.

Readers will recall that the League and other freedom loving bodies were largely responsible for the defeat of the heinous Australia Card. No matter, the copiers were and are at work.

The Sunday Herald (Melbourne), August 20th, reports there are approximately 80,000 illegals in Australia. Most forged papers are produced in India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and the Phillipines.

This is "Camp of the Saints" stuff, forecast by Frenchman Jean Raspail in 1973. Copies of "Camps" still available: $10.00 posted from G.P.O. Box 1052J, Melbourne, Vic., 3001.

Mr. Ian McLachlan is talking tough, and he isn't in the Federal Parliament yet.

He addressed that most conservative H.R. Nicholls Society (we wonder if they are really as conservative as they think?) most recently where he called for legislation to break union monopolies, dismissing any warnings of industrial chaos.

Mr. McLachlan is the endorsed candidate for the Liberal seat of Barker (S.A.).

What politicians say in Opposition (or out of Parliament) and what they DO in office are often unrelated. We'll see how Mr. McLachlan performs when in Parliament. His stint as head of National Farmers' Federation didn't impress us.

We refer to our "Thought for the Week" (education) .. The Australian Council for Adult Literacy's recent survey revealed that 11% of Australians over 15 could not identify the expiry date on the driver's licence. Some 38% of Australians could not calculate the change they should receive from a $5.00 note for a meal from a menu (less than $5.00).

How about this one? The pollies will be thrilled! There were some 875,000 invalid votes cast last election (federal) and the Australian Electoral Commission estimates that as many as half of these could be as a result of voter inability to understand written instructions. Good on compulsory voting!

Only Australia and Belgium in the Western world persist with this silly compulsory practice. We would certainly expect that the percentage of informal votes is small in other countries (we have no figures). Our view is that compulsion forces an irresponsible vote, and the sooner it is abolished in Australia, the better.

The Sunday Sun, August 20th, quotes the Office of Multicultural Affairs which claims that Australians will be 20% Asian in 40 years from now. Senator Ray (Minister for Immigration) poo-hoes the notion: he says something like 14%.

We notice that the "Office of Multicultural Affairs" admits that the Anglo-Celtic percentage of the Australian population is expected to drop from 75% (they hate admitting that it is this high!) to 60% in the same 40 years.

Professor Charles Price, of the Immigration Research Centre in Canberra, argues that the Anglo-Celts (and that would be most of us) must be "sold" multiculturalism: we must feel that we "belong" to it. How? By fragmenting us! How?

We must be separated into pockets. We must no longer "feel" Anglo-Celt, but Welsh, Scots, Irish, English.. Maybe traditional dislikes and hatreds can yet again be ignited and fanned. "Remember Culloden", will say the Scots to the English .. "How about Waterford", will say the English to the Irish .. If we are fragmented and fighting among ourselves, then perhaps we won't be so averse to the Pakistanis and Tamils.

We wouldn't bet on it, Professor.

New identification for Australians.. In The Sun (Melbourne), August 19th .. "Police want help to identify a man hit by a car .. 25-30 years old, 162 centimetres tall, and CAUCASIAN." That says it all. We need to identify the RACE of Australians now.
