

A WEEKLY COMMENTARY

ON TARGET

- NEWS HIGHLIGHTS
- BACKGROUND INFORMATION
- COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

The price of Freedom is eternal vigilance –

Print Post Publication Number 381667 00258

Vol.36, No.1

January 14th, 2000

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "Planning involves many factors which are quite unfamiliar to those outside a small circle of experts. All plans are the static incarnation of ideas. In nearly every case they block other plans. In small matters this may not be very important, but in Government Plans it may be decisive. Many large Plans are made without consideration or knowledge of effects, such as soil erosion, which may take years to ensue."

"The physical world is a congeries of balances; not a small watercourse locates itself without a reason. And these physical balances have social and political effects...For these and other far-reaching reasons; it is necessary to recognise that size introduces an unfamiliar quality into the idea of the Plan."

C.H. Douglas, November, 1950.

KONRAD KALEJS' ORDEAL by Betty Luks:

When one sifts through the material touching on 'war crimes' it is clear that in war both sides commit terrible acts, and the conclusion is reached that when it comes to WW2, it is well past time to forgive and to get on with life.

But, if one can't forgive, then obviously it is to the powerful and victorious that goes the revenge. Eighty-six year-old Latvian-born Australian citizen, Mr. Konrad Kalejs, is the latest person to incur the wrath and full force of the propaganda machine of organised Zionist-Jewry. He is alleged to have been part of a Kommando Unit responsible for the murder of 30,000 people in German-occupied Latvia during WW2.

Although the Australian Government has insisted there is not enough evidence to bring this man to trial, the Zionists intend to hound him – possibly to his grave. Mr. Graham Blewitt, former head of the Australian Special Investigations Unit (SIU) said that under his direction, Mr. Kalejs had been properly investigated, "The best we could come up with was that he was a member of the Aja's Kommando Unit. But we couldn't find anything that would implicate him in any crimes for which he could be prosecuted in Australia." – The Australian, 7/1/2000.

If the shoe was on the other foot, would the Ukrainians, the Hungarians, the Latvians, Lithuanians and Estonians like to take their revenge on those who took part in the brutal murders, tortures, imprisonment and enslavement of so many of their own countrymen over the last 80 years? And wouldn't a list of those prominent in the 'soviet revolutions', whether in Ukraine, Hungary, Latvia, etc., reveal the roles of many Jews in those revolutions?

The Russian-Soviets invaded the Baltic States in 1940 and large numbers of Jews welcomed the Russians and sided with them – against the Latvians. On the night of June 14th, 1941, the Russians herded 30,000 Latvians into cattle trucks and shipped them off to Siberia. Many of them to their certain death, others to forced slavery, starvation and other inhumane conditions.

Although the Latvians had been under the rule of German Barons for well over 700 years, up to WW1, and looked on the Germans as their enemies, when Hitler's armies drove the Russians out, the Latvians saw the Germans as liberators. It was explained to the younger generation thus, "If a bear is tearing you apart and you are saved by a wolf, you are thankful to the wolf."

What of the Jew Béla Kun – whose master, Lenin, ordered the transformation of Hungary into a Soviet-Republic, or the Jew Tibor Szamuely, who became Prime Minister; or Alexander Barbai, or Joseph Pogány (alias Schwartz) and many others, for which there is evidence of their crimes. Jews such as these men committed terrible acts against the Hungarian people. ("An Outlaw's Diary" by Cécile Tormay).

What about the Russian Revolution? Victor Marsden of the London Morning Post, correspondent in Russia at the time of the Bolshevik Revolution compiled a list of 545 early Bolshevik officials. Of these 454 were Jews. I wonder what the Russian people would do if they had the power world-wide-Jewry now has? What of the Jewish international bankers who bankrolled the Bolsheviks? Are they not guilty of 'war crimes'? Is there not the blood of millions on their hands?

What about the present Israeli-Jews? Four years ago a retired Israeli general admitted to killing 49 Egyptian prisoners in 1956. The Israeli attorney-general ruled that despite the available evidence the general would not be prosecuted because the crime took place too long ago!

THE POLYUKHOVICH TRIAL:

In 1991, eminent South Australian, Sir Walter Crocker, joined the protest staged by League of Rights supporters opposed to the Polyukhovich War Crimes Trial. He carried a placard that read, "Vengeance and Hatred Poisons People as Well as Communities". At the time, Sir Walter said he believed the trials were, along with the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, a contrivance to use guilt for support for Israel. He felt strongly about what the Zionist-Jews did to Kurt Waldheim, former President of Austria. He accused them of destroying the President of Austria.

Touching on his experiences during the early formative years of the United Nations, he explained, "I happened to be in the UN in its first four years and that was when Israel was first created. The spectacle of the power of American Jewry, the financial power and the intellectual power was absolutely overwhelming. The creation of Israel meant of course that all the Arabs living in Palestine, as it was then called, were going to be driven away from their homes." (Adelaide Advertiser, 13/11/91). No 'war crimes' trials for those Jews!

If the Polyukhovich trials were used as a 'smoke screen' for what the Jews were then doing somewhere else in the world, maybe we should look to see what they are now up to.

Further reading: National Suicide by Antony Sutton; Censored History by Eric D. Butler; Communism Unmasked by Jean Patrice; Controversy of Zion by Douglas Reed. Prices on request from your State Book Service.

WATER: AN ESSENTIAL OF LIFE:

"Water, being a liquid, is an easily centralised essential of life; and yet one of the first conditions on which we live upon this earth is that it should be to a large extent decentralised. Rain is decentralised water, charged with oxygen. To the extent that it is retained in the soil where it falls, plant and animal and human life becomes possible. Where plant growth is established the rain enters the soil gently, the soil, being broken up by roots into a crumbly texture, and containing a good deal of absorbent organic matter, retains both air and water, and any surplus of water supplies the underground reservoirs where porous rock is present, and oozes out steadily in springs, which maintain a relatively even flow all the year round, as do the rivers into which they flow."

"With the destruction of plant growth by the clear-felling of forests, overgrazing, over-cropping, or the destruction of soil structure by the use of unbalanced fertilisers, or other forms of mismanagement imposed upon the modern farmer by centralised forces, the conditions for life cease. The rains run off the surface, carrying the soil particles with it. The underground water level sinks. The flow of springs becomes irregular. Floods and droughts characterise the river system. Soil which has taken centuries to grow is swept away in a few years, silting up the river beds (thus causing floods) eventually finding its way into the sea. Deprived of its binding organic matter, the soil crumbles into dust and is blown away on the winds.

"Thus we have to realise that floods,...droughts, dust storms, dust bowls and deserts,...are largely man-made..." On Planning the Earth by Geoffrey Dobbs.

Dr. Geoffrey Dobbs wrote Part 1 of this remarkable little book in 1944. His warnings have proved accurate as Australians now face the huge problems of their polluted waterways and the push for the monopolistic control of her water supplies. Australia, we are told, is facing a water crisis, this being part of a much wider environmental crisis. The Australian has been carrying a series of articles, drawing the reader's attention to the problems of the salts, sediments, sewage, agricultural and industrial pollution and algal blooms. What the paper did not – and will not – deal with is why there is clear-felling of forests, overgrazing, over-cropping, or the destruction of soil structure by the use of unbalanced fertilisers, or other forms of mismanagement imposed upon the modern farmer by centralised forces.

In a recent radio interview the Member for the Kimberleys (WA), Mr. Ernie Bridge, also a member of a group named "Watering Australia", criticised the present short-sighted, narrow approach governments and other authorities were taking. Australia, he said, has vast sources of untapped water supplies and mentioned rivers such as the Fitzroy and Clarence. Whilst not advocating that these rivers should be exploited to the extent that we have exploited the present water systems, he believes the authorities are just grappling at the edges of the problems, advocating additional water controls and restrictions instead of venturing into bigger schemes and releasing the vast untapped, unused potential supplies.

Now, if you were behind a plan to pressure government into 'privatising' (monopolising) a resource, and planned to gain control over that resource, would you want it to be plentiful – or 'scarce' and easily controlled? We need to be reminded that in times past, the great empires of the world have created all the man-made deserts of the world, and that the mass of mankind was centrally controlled by an oligarchy.

ADDRESS TO PALESTINIAN SOCIETY IN LONDON by Judith Empson:

"It was the Middle East which gave birth to the three religions of the One God. In our time it became the fountainhead and shrine of a fourth: Oil. The Middle East contains about 75% of the Western World's oil reserves, but the right to profit from this valuable material belongs, with few exceptions, to five international trusts which operate around the (Persian) Gulf, in which British, United States, French and Dutch interests interlock and interlink. They share in the loot with a handful of puppet rulers...

"The names of the companies are better known than the geographical designation of the places; Esso (Exxon – Rockefeller's Standard Oil), Gulf Oil (later Chevron), Texaco, Royal Dutch Shell and BP (British Petroleum). These companies are the omnipotent dictators behind official governments and the chief pressure group behind the decisions of the State Department (US) and Whitehall. Through interlocking directorships with the leading banks they control the loan market, insurance companies and airlines. They have their men in the Treasuries, the War Office (Ministry of Defence) and the Intelligence Service...

"One can say without exaggeration that for the last century we have been the pawn of Oil Imperialism. The oil companies are closely interlinked with South African and Congolese interests for the supply of industrial diamonds needed for drilling gear, to Namibia for the supply of platinum used as a catalyst for refining; to the world's steel manufacturers for pipelines, pumps and infrastructure of the whole industry, and to Israel for bromine from the Dead Sea used for the manufacture of aviation fuel..." (from British On Target).