

A WEEKLY COMMENTARY

ON TARGET

- NEWS HIGHLIGHTS
- BACKGROUND INFORMATION
- COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

The price of Freedom is eternal vigilance -

Print Post Publication Number 381667 00258

Vol.41, No.31

August 12th, 2005

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "The spiritual life of the country and the nation, which is its culture, is being subjected to a deadly attack. There can be no peace until one side or the other is defeated... The immigration and the culture which is being forced upon Great Britain by every device of propaganda and covert political, social, and economic pressure is not fundamentally European, is not accompanied by immigration of European stock, and is as incompatible with the native culture as was European culture with that of the North American Indian. It is just as arguable, and it is very loudly argued, that a small influx of foreign strains can be absorbed without great disadvantage. But it must be small, and it is essential that it should be absorbed. Our alien population is not small (its dimensions are systematically falsified), it is increasing, and it is not being absorbed. In spite of strenuous denials it is certain that the dominating influence in the State at this time is alien in culture, whatever the particular passport of its protagonists may be." – Clifford Hugh Douglas in "The Brief For the Prosecution", 1944

THE BOMBING OF MULTICULTURALISM by James Reed:

It is interesting to observe the Australian media's response to the multiculturalism angle on the London bombings, given that the terrorist cell of suicide bombers were "home grown" – three of the four suicide bombers were British-born of Pakistani origin. Yet, they had such a hatred for their "homeland" that they were prepared to die themselves to kill the British. If ever there was an argument against the creation of multiracial/multicultural societies, this is it.

Britain has bent over backwards to stamp out "racism" – meaning, opposition by White Britains to coloured immigration and multiculturalism. Thus, the High Wycombe church was told by the Local Council that it could not publicise its Christmas services because it might offend other religions. There are thousands of examples of this. White nationalists are prosecuted and imprisoned for objecting to what is effectively a policy of genocide. However, extremist Muslim clerics have been free to preach anti-West hatred and recruit British Muslims for the Taliban.

Britain has been planning a law against incitement to racial hatred, along the lines of the Racial and Religious Tolerance Act of our own Victoria. The aim of the law was to prevent people making a link between terrorist attacks and Islam. However, the law would not be enforced against the extremist clerics for as we well know, these laws are put in place to keep White Europeans in their place. A recent poll by ICM in Britain found that 13 per cent of Britain's 1.6. million Muslims support al Qaida – and that is 206,000 people. One would have thought that if anything constituted a 'link', that did. But not so in Britain.

IN THIS ISSUE: • Thought For The Week • The Bombing Of Multiculturalism • "'Outing' The Racist" • Destructive Deconstructive Nonsense • "Operation Kratos" • The Common Law And Common Sense • Confessions Of A Communist

"ON TARGET"

August 12th, 2005

Page 1 (121)

The suicide bombers came from comfortable families and were not economically destitute. They had no criminal records. They were "assimilated", part of the melting pot. Mike Steketee of The Australian (The Weekend Australian, July 16th-17th, 2005, p.28) is a long term defender of immigration and multiculturalism. He dismissed the idea that Australia could follow in Britain's footsteps as ethnic conflicts "seldom take root in Australia in a violent way". Really? Australia has yet to have a death toll to rival the London bombings, but it has had bombing, arson attacks, murder, race-based rapes and riots, all of which have spread from ethnic racial conflict.

It is true that Australia has less Muslims, and certainly less radical Muslims than Britain, as Steketee notes. That doesn't show that a terrorist attack is less probable; the probability of a terrorist attack is not related in any mechanical way to population densities. A more important factor is vulnerability and terror impact.

Steketee and others cannot seriously face the prospect that Australia faces exactly the same threat as Britain, as that would mean that Australian multiculturalism, a religion for the new class intellectuals, was also flawed.

Greg Sheridan ("Europe's Big Challenge", The Australian July 21st, 2005, p.11) has said that a Muslim majority in Europe "will present daunting problems for an integrated Continent". Muslims will outnumber non-Muslims in all of Western Europe by mid-century. That view is at the high-end, but is likely to be true given what we know about the eclipse of White populations elsewhere in the world. After a certain point Muslims would reach such political power that they would control the nation's immigration policy, so that ethnic swamping would occur. Europe has the lowest fertility rate in the world (thanks to women's lib) and the Middle East and North Africa the second highest.

Even Sheridan is concerned that this demographic change will bring problems. Remember this is the writer who for years joyfully embraced the Asianisation of Australia and the eclipsing of the Anglo-Australian population. For one thing 1-2 per cent of Europe's Muslims are involved in "extremist activities" – that is, up to 480,000 potential suicide bombers.

Maybe it is time for a genuine debate – and referendum – on the questions of immigration and multiculturalism.

"'OUTING' THE RACIST" by James Reed:

Professor Andrew Fraser was "outed" by two articles in The Australian, July 20th, 2005, and July 21st, 2005) as having "racist" beliefs. He offered legal advice to the Patriotic Youth League and was taken to task for criticising Sudanese migration to this country. In a letter to the Parramatta Sun he said:

"... an expanding black population is a sure-fire recipe for increases in crime, violence and a wide range of other social problems... The fact is ordinary Australians are being pushed down the path to national suicide by their own political, religious and economic elites."

"Look at the annual HSC results – the consequence of which is that Oz is creating a new heavily Asian managerial-professional ruling class that will feel no hesitation... in promoting the narrow interests of their co-ethnics at the expense of white Australians."

DESTRUCTIVE DECONSTRUCTIVE NONSENSE by James Reed:

The Weekend Australian, July 23rd-24th, 2005, devoted a number of articles to the issue of postmodernism in secondary schools and lower. Postmodernism is the creation of largely French and European Jewish intellectuals (Lyotard, Foucault and Derrida, etc) which sees mainstream Western literature as racist and oppressive of the coloured people of the world, women, homosexuals and other "cool folk". "Texts" need to be deconstructed or exposed as ideology. The problem here is that there is no objective meaning or truth in the postmodern world, so the choice of supporting the oppressed is purely arbitrary. One could just as easily opt for neo-Nazism or radical Islam on the same philosophy. And if history is just a myth, events such as the Holocaust and World War II itself for the likes of Derrida and other radical relativists must also be bunk. For these reasons postmodernism is out of fashion in today's post 9/11 university. Sure, politically correct ideologies like Feminism flourish, but an alternative non-relativist (i.e., all truth is relative) foundation is sought.

Secondary school English today pushes postmodernism and is also seen in the form of "critical literacy". Thus one secondary school teaching guide instructs children to look behind the story to find the concealed ideology – which of course is then looked at in typical crass Leftist fashion. The "Three Little Pigs" is a capitalist story about the virtues of property ownership. Well, so what? What's wrong with the freedom and independence that an individual gets from owning private property, Ms Feminist Teacher? Sorry James, you just failed Year 12 English Lit!

The imposition of debunked philosophical garbage upon the young diminishes their ability to appreciate literature and to develop their literary skills. Trendoid philosophies such as postmodernism are really ideological weapons, used in an on-going psycho-political war, where at stake is the survival of Western civilisation. For our politically correct secondary teachers, it seems that being able to read, write and comprehend without major errors is intrinsically 'right wing'. All students then need to be reduced to the level of non-English speaking, or, English as second language refugees, so as to obtain a state of politically correct grace.

"OPERATION KRATOS": London Met Police Special Operations Unit "Shoot to Kill"
by Michel Chossudovsky, Professor of Economics at the University of Ottawa and Director of the Centre for Research on Globalization (CRG). He is the author of a forthcoming book, America's War on Terrorism, Global Research, 2005.

British 'Cops' Trained in Israel: The cold blooded murder of Jean Charles de Menezes, in the Stockwell underground was no accident. London Metropolitan Police had approved a policy of "shoot to kill": a controversial tactic deployed only in the most extreme circumstances but one police have been preparing to use for the last two weeks.

The shoot to kill policy was undertaken under the auspices of "Operation Kratos", named after the mythical Spartan hero. It was carried out by the London Metropolitan's elite SO19 firearms unit often referred to as the Blue Berets. The latter are described as the equivalent to the US SWAT teams, yet in this particular case, they were not wearing uniforms.

The training of the SO19 marksmen was patterned on that of Israel. They had been briefed "by officers who had been to Israel to meet their counterparts there and pick up tips gleaned from the experience of dealing with Hamas bombers".

"During the Kratos briefings, the Met team were told that, contrary to their normal arms training, they should fire at the head rather than the chest. Although the chest is easier to hit, it is not as reliable in causing instant death, giving a bomber a chance to detonate his device..." (The Scottish Daily Record, July 23rd, 2005).

The "Israeli counterparts" refers to Israel's National Police (INP), Shin Bet (the Israel Security Agency) and Israel's Ministry of Internal Security. But the police antiterrorist operations conducted by the INP against Hamas and Islamic Jihad are carried out in close coordination with the Military (Israeli Defense Force) and Mossad. Israel has also collaborated in the training of members of the FBI and the LAPD. Top law enforcement officers of the FBI were trained in Israel under a program sponsored by the Jewish Institute for national Security.

See:- <http://www.jinsa.org/articles/articles.html/function/view/categoryid/2168/documentid/3020/history/3,2359,2166,2168,3020>

SO13: The Anti-terrorist Branch Of significance in setting the antiterrorist policy under "Operation Kratos", is the so-called SO13 or Antiterrorist Branch.

The various special operations units including SO13, Special Branch and SO19 of the Met police are overseen by Andy Hayman, the recently appointed assistant commissioner. The SO19 is one of several entities under the jurisdiction of the Met police.

Once SO13 and Special Branch decided to carry out Operation Kratos, specific guidelines were provided to SO19 to carry out the "shoot to kill agenda."

Essentially what we are dealing with is the formation of a death squadron mentality under the auspices of what is stilled officially considered a "civilian police force".

Despite the controversy surrounding the shoot-to-kill operations, London mayor Ken Livingstone "had nothing but praise for the police". Rather than condemning the killing and calling for an investigation, he casually laid the blame for the death of Jean Charles de Menezes on the terrorists:

"The police acted to do what they believed necessary to protect the lives of the public... This tragedy has added another victim to the toll of deaths for which the terrorists bear responsibility." (BBC, July 23rd, 2005)

THE COMMON LAW AND COMMON SENSE by Ian Wilson LL.B.: One of the respectable Freedom Movement publications has devoted considerable space to the issue of fundamentals and foundations of the common law. It is rightly observed that the modern court system is an old boys' club where the ordinary people are precluded from obtaining justice because of legal technicalities. If the common law is hard to understand then it can't be too "common". Well, it is not. The common law is simply court judgements. It has nothing to do with "law understood by the common people". Simple tribal societies may have operated that way but not modern legal systems. This is a fundamental mistake made by the "common law" movement of largely well meaning non-professionals.

Thus what about a class action for an end to solicitor legal representation so that a person may be represented in court by another person not a legal practitioner? Well that issue is decided by statute in all States and the statutes are characteristically clear and crisp on that point. Otherwise there would be no "legal brotherhood" would there?

The class action is doomed from the beginning. Instead of pursuing idle dreams it would be better if well-meaning activists studied law, obtained their qualifications and then helped people.

CONFESSIONS OF A COMMUNIST by James Reed: Long-time League supporters will recall that Phillip Adams has been an equally long-term critic of the League. The League, in his eyes, is "extremist" and "racist". You see for the politically correct, any attempt by White European people to defend their race and culture is "racist".

In The Weekend Australian Magazine, July 16th-17th, 2005, Adams gloats that he has received his ASIO file. The file documents his life as a "teenage Bolshevik" and then card-carrying member of the Australian Communist Party. And there it stops; for supporting refugees, Asianisation and other nasties is part of what it means to be a politically correct journalist today. In one or two articles Adams has stated that Communism has been a bloody and failed experiment.

He is one of only a few of the Left to recognise that they backed a side that killed more people than Nazism. But where is his guilt, and where is the guilt of the Left?

There is more guilt splattered around by our 'intelligentsia' about Australia's White Australia policy by ten thousand fold, than about the hundred million or so people butchered in the name of Communism. I ask again: where is the guilt of the Left?

"ON TARGET" is printed and published by The Australian League of Rights, 145 Russell St., Melbourne.
Postal Address: GPO Box 1052, Melbourne, 3001. Telephone: (03) 9650 9749, Fax: (03) 9650 9368.

Subscription $40.00 p.a.