

A WEEKLY COMMENTARY

ON TARGET

- NEWS HIGHLIGHTS
- BACKGROUND INFORMATION
- COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

The price of Freedom is eternal vigilance –

Print Post Publication Number 381667 00258

Vol.45, No.33

August 28th, 2009

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "New Loan Promises To Save U.S.A., Global Capital: The international banking firm of Soros, Tsuris and Soros has joined with Goldman, Ponzi and Sachs in announcing plans to finance a one hundred and fifty trillion dollar ($150,000,000,000,000) loan to the U.S.A., made possible through a complex arrangement involving OPEC, the Bulgarian Central Bank, Cosa Nostra, the Colombian Drug Cartel, Albania, the Vatican Zionist Minion, and the Little Sisters of the Poor.

The globally secured financial giant, long run by mathematical geniuses from the top secret HPOIIICNUTOH (high priests of international investing of intriguing complexity not understandable to ordinary humans) expect to raise this historic amount via the sale of still to be created world government backed and guaranteed bonds, drawn on faith, hope and a complete and total lack of charity, in keeping with the constraints of harsh reality and profit seeking.

"Though there are neither bonds nor investors at the moment," said firm spokesperson Bernardo Batista de Rothschild, "we know that the incredibly high interest rates we will offer – 30-35% – assure that very soon there will be many rushing to our doors, their brokers, our banks, their keyboards, or other text devices, with thumbs, cheque books, credit cards, and promissory notes at the ready."

The American stock market rose to its highest level in two hundred years at this news, while unemployment dropped from its previous high of 44% to its lowest point in months; 39%. "Things are finally looking up," said president Palin, "and our long recession may finally be over.... Again!"

Frank Scott: Mr. Scott writes political commentary for Coastal Post, The Independent Monitor and on his shared blog at: <http://legalienate.blogspot.com>

RUDD'S CARBON POLLUTION REDUCED TO A HAIR'S BREADTH... It is good that the issue of 'greenhouse gases'...'climate change'...'global warming'... whatever it's latest term... has been clearly put into perspective for 'the man in the street'. Andrew Bolt, Herald Sun, Friday, August 14, 2009, did just that:

"Michael Smith's editorial on 4BC yesterday seemed to go down very well: Here's a way to understand Mr. Rudd's Carbon Pollution Reduction Scheme. Imagine 1 kilometre of atmosphere that we want to rid of human carbon pollution. We'll have a walk along it.

- The first 770 metres are Nitrogen.
- The next 210 metres are Oxygen.

In this issue: • Thought For The Week • Rudd's Carbon Pollution Reduced To A Hair's Breadth • Our Decadent Politicians • Dr. Fredrick Toben Imprisoned For Three Months • They Dare To Bare – While We But Stare! • Will "Perfect Storm" Blow The Evil Unis Away? • Multiculturalism And The Cult Of Food

"ON TARGET"

August 28th, 2009

Page 1 (129)

- That's 980 metres of the 1 kilometre. 20 metres to go.
- The next 10 metres are water vapour. 10 metres left.
- 9 metres are argon. Just 1 more metre.
- A few gases make up the first bit of that last metre.
- The last 38 centimetres of the kilometre – that's carbon dioxide. A bit over one foot.
- 97% of that is produced by Mother Nature. It's natural.
- Out of our journey of one kilometre, there are just 12 millimetres left. About half an inch. Just over a centimetre. That's the amount of carbon dioxide that global human activity puts into the atmosphere.

And of those 12 millimetres Australia puts in .18 of a millimetre. Less than the thickness of a hair. Out of a kilometre. As a hair is to a kilometre – so is Australia's contribution to what Mr Rudd calls Carbon Pollution.

Imagine Brisbane's new Gateway Bridge, ready to be officially opened by Mr. Rudd. It's been polished, painted and scrubbed by an army of workers till its 1 kilometre length is surgically clean. Except that Mr. Rudd says we have a huge problem, the bridge is polluted – there's a human hair on the roadway. We'd laugh ourselves silly.

There are plenty of real pollution problems to worry about. It's hard to imagine that Australia's contribution to carbon dioxide in the world's atmosphere is one of the more pressing ones. And I can't believe that a new tax on everything is the only way to blow that pesky hair away. Perhaps we all need to just take a few deep breaths."

OUR DECADENT POLITICIANS by James Reed: In this article, I want to be very cosmopolitan and criticise B. Hussein Obama, Arnie "I'll be back" Schwarzenegger, make fun of French President Nicholas Sarkozy and conclude with a swipe at Kev '09 Rudd. A lot of work so let's get going.

Obama and Gates: Obama my boy, what a thing to say! What were you thinking? Hussein has said that he believed that the police who arrested radical Black professor Henry Gates "acted stupidly". Obama is a mate of Gates and despite alienating police across the country still said: "I have to say I am surprised by the controversy surrounding my statement, because I think it was a pretty straightforward commentary that you probably don't need to handcuff a middle-aged man who uses a cane, who's in his own home." The statement shows Obama's bias and narcissism.

The question at issue was whether or not Gates was breaking into his own home. Further, Gates was arrested for disorderly conduct (a charge now dropped) in the street. A photo of Gates (The Weekend Australian, 25-26/7/09, p.11) shows him with his mouth open, screaming his politically correct heart out.

Obama the next day said that he should have "calibrated" his comments more carefully: meaning that he spoke without having someone draft a speech for him, a dangerous thing to do. So to defuse racial tensions, he decided on an Oprah-style solution "for both parties to come to the White House and have a beer". How very Kevin Rudd-like!

But the point remains that both Gates and Obama are claiming that racial profiling occurred. Obama said that Blacks and Latinos have been "stopped by law enforcement disproportionately." Yes, that is a fact, just as Blacks and Latinos disproportionately commit more crime. But in this case, Gates was not profiled as such, but was caught at the scene of the alleged crime: end of argument.

The good thing is that the "gee-whizz" "we have a Black President" bubble has burst. Obama could only trade on his skin colour for so long. His popularity in the opinion polls is starting to slide. Some polls put him at 55 per cent, none above 60 per cent. This is a rapid fall in a short time and with any luck it may continue to plunge to the ground.

He has huge difficulties with his policies for health and climate change. Now there is even public mention of the Obama birth certificate controversy, namely that Obama was not born in Hawaii, but Kenya. Mention is made in The Australian 29/7/09. It seems likely to me that the elites were so keen to get a Black Leftist president that they did not bother about constitutional dotting of the "i's" and the "t's". The original birth certificate does not appear on the internet and the refusal to release it and Obama's use of the law to stop attempts at getting it, indicate to me that the guy is shonky.

Further, Fox News Channel commentator Glen Black said on the 28 July, 2009, Fox Friends morning show, that Obama is a racist. Gasp! The Black president, brought up by Leftists, trained by the cosmopolitans... a... racist? Better yet, Beck said that Obama has a "deep-seated hatred for White people or the White culture". Keep up the good work Beck – while you have a job!

Arnie and the Knife: Let us not forget Arnie Schwarzenegger, still Governor of California. Arnie has put a video on his Twitter page showing him looking lovingly at a 60cm folding knife and talking about the State's budget crisis. According to Arnie, a former actor and body builder, and soon to be a former governor, he was just having a bit of fun. Fun sacking people? I hope he enjoys being kicked out of office just as much, as his popularity is about 30 per cent and falling. He won't be back!

Sarkozy Aerobics: The French President Nicolas Sarkozy has collapsed from overwork (or is it oversex?) The president has had a personal coach who put him on a strict diet and a "regime of pelvic floor exercises". What! Was she training him to recover from birth...?!

Kevin – I Have Not Forgotten You: Kevin Rudd though wins the James Reed political correctness award of the week. In the course of the "bash up an Indian" debate, he said: "The Indian community has made a vital contribution in cinema, music and food. We have deep affection for your cuisine. Imagine if we didn't have Indian food, we would have had 100 years of English food – would you subject anyone to that?"

The Indians were "shocked" about Rudd allegedly trivialising the attacks. The media did not analyse Rudd's comments. None of the Mediterranean journalists took him to task. What about our wonderful Greek, Italian, Arab, etc., food. But beyond that Rudd is making a racist remark about the English. But of course the English are fair game and as they gave us the modern world, decadence requires that the elites tear them up. So Kev, you are a ...winner!

Not a politician but a spectacle: Close runner up is not a politician but a spectacle – the Indian "racism" debate. An undercover reporter, an Indian female, was viewed by the Indian media as being subject to a "racist" assault. She was assaulted by a person while she was exposing the Indian migration scam. Unfortunately for them her attacker was Indian! (The Australian, 29/7/09, p.1) As journalist David Penberthy has put it: "Violence against Indians in Australia is now so out of control that Indians have started attacking each other."

As I see it, the "racism" chant is being used by Indians as a smokescreen to cover Indian migration scams. Oh, yes, India is also a "racist" country by the standard definition. How about some discussion about that?

DR. FREDRICK TOBEN IMPRISONED FOR THREE MONTHS: As reported on the Adelaide Institute webpage: Thursday, 13th August, 2009, Dr. Töben's appeal was heard today, beginning at 10.00am. Numerous arguments were put forward by the defence barrister Mr. David Perkins. At the end of the hearing the three judges retired for approximately three quarters of an hour. Upon their return, they read out the verdict, that the appeal had been rejected, and ordered that Dr Töben begin his sentence immediately. He peacefully accompanied the two Federal Policemen who arrived dressed in business suits. Initially he will be taken to Yatala Labour Prison, from where it will be decided to which prison he will serve his sentence.

THEY DARE TO BARE – WHILE WE BUT STARE! by James Reed: So-called "conservative" columnist for The Australian Janet Albrechtsen (The Weekend Australian, 8-9/8/09, p.19) has observed that Julia Gillard is looking different these days – yes, well... "good". Yes the flaming-red radical leftie hair has gone to be replaced by softer feminine centralist tones. And there is colour – more colours in her face. It seems, according to Janet, that some conservative types are experiencing primal "turbulent and unpredictable urges" towards our own deputy Prime Minister. Janet does not tell us whether these types are male, female or mutant, but it matters not. You see, Janet says, Julie has her eye on King Kev's '09's throne. Yes Janet, I said all of this before you – the League got in there before The Australian.

What I find really interesting are photographs of Russian leader Vladimir Putin on holiday in southern Siberia. Here is this fitness fanatic and weightlifter, with rippling pecs (chest muscles) riding a horse wearing no top at all! Yes, he dares to bare! But what if this political strip tease catches on? What if Big Kev '09 feels the urge to reach for the blow-dryer and rip off his white business shirt? What if republican Malcolm Turnbull decided to do the same?

And I suppose, somewhere out there in the wilds of Canberra, perhaps in the press gallery, there will be those primal conservative types, unable to control "turbulent and unpredictable urges" towards Deputy Prime Minister Julia Gillard, who may be hoping that she too will follow in the horse-prints of Vladimir Putin.

WILL "PERFECT STORM" BLOW THE EVIL UNIS AWAY? by James Reed: It was dear to my heart to see the headline "Unis Facing 'Perfect Storm' before Rudd Funds Arrive", The Australian (3/8/09 p.1). Universities are biting their teeth waiting for $5.7 billion from Rudd. The unis are facing a financial crisis caused by a fall-off from the international student market and other losses from investment income. In my opinion the evil universities are getting what they deserve.

Financial starvation should be their fate and I hope that no $5.7 billion comes to rescue them. Let them sink! Let them die! They are evil, politically correct institutions whose demise would improve the nation!

MULTICULTURALISM AND THE CULT OF FOOD by James Reed: One of the standard multiculturalist arguments is: look how bland Australian food would be without migrants. Rudd, et al, have all said this: it is the standard diet. And yet the "argument", if one can dignify such nonsense with that term, is absurd. Couldn't Anglo Saxon chefs read cook books or train overseas? Couldn't a handful of chefs have been imported as guest workers to train local chefs here before returning home? Why the surplus millions of non-chefs?

Beyond this though, the argument from food smacks of urbanite elitism, the Don Dunstan syndrome. Look how sophisticated we are! The recent MasterChef Australia TV series was not merely about cooking, but about the cultural values of food. The ethnic cuisines served up to three judges, who were all over weight, may have tasted "good", but in health terms, such food would kill you quick. The Anglo-Saxon diet of meat (preferably lean and especially oily fish) with a variety of vegetables is far superior to the high carbohydrate, high saturated fat multiculturalism food.

There was no epidemic of obesity, diabetes and syndrome X on the Anglo Saxon "bland" diet. The explosion of ill health corresponds to Australians eating multicultural, ethnic food – and we must include American fast-food in the list. In short, multiculturalism is literally killing us! Multiculturalism is a health hazard!