THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "The U.N. has been completely insulated from any kind of external oversight or independent police investigation by diplomatic immunity arrangements since it began. The unsurprising result is it is corrupt. They ran a now-exposed Global Warming scientific fraud apparently to justify a global financial fraud – namely their proposed annual climate tax on Sovereign Nations rising to $ 100,000,000,000.00 per annum to operate a global climate bureaucracy.

The U.N. needs to be sealed off and investigated by police post haste before they destroy all the evidence. Sadly it won't happen for a while yet. Nonetheless the U.N. are now admitting their Global Warming Report had more errors than they previously admitted. This is nothing but a limited hangout – that is, it is a damage control exercise intending to mislead people into thinking their Climate Report was something less than a deliberately bogus report full of fraudulent information used to justify their false climate conclusions justifying their global taxation agenda.

Numerous independent real Climate Scientists have identified tampering with raw data to create false conclusions, destruction of data not supporting their bogus thesis, e-mails showing collusion to fix the evidence, and much more – completely discrediting the U.N.'s report and with it their credibility as an organisation worthy of trust.

The U.N. should be regarded as having become a criminal syndicate safe house and dealt with accordingly... Our politicians need to be awakened from their dreams, abandon their commitments to a nonsensical and destructive legislative agenda, and be persuaded to legislate instead in accordance with scientific and economic reality for the common good."

AN ALTERNATIVE AUSTRALIA DAY ADDRESS by James Reed: Tolerance, tolerance, tolerance... diversity, diversity, diversity. As expected the usual mantra was chattered by the spluttering class for Australia Day. The Australian always has a 'feel good' story on page one celebrating "tolerance,... diversity" but this year page one featured "Navy Errors Blamed for Fire" (The Australian, 26/1/2010, p.1). Asylum seekers were intercepted at sea by the navy. They were allowed to keep cigarette lighters and matches (imagine the human rights abuse if they had them taken away). One man was seen to make a "throat slashing gesture". Then the ship was ablaze.

Just like in the "stitching up the kids' lips incident", 'the Australians are at fault' it was heard before the Northern Territory Coroner. Indeed the navy should not have rescued its own personnel ahead of the illegal aliens! There is liberalism and political correctness gone mad. Save the other – even an "enemy" – before yourselves. Thus a female sailor was rescued in a launch before a boatperson.

So, the navy should have saved the boatperson/alien and let the sailor drown? Kiss your navy goodbye. Who would want to serve under such conditions?

Sorry? – oh! that's the game plan is it – for Australia not to have border protection at all.

Finally we have Tim Soutphommasane ("Let's Celebrate Our Sense of Belonging", The Australian, 26/1/2010 p.12) which absurdly claims that a citizenship ceremony is the best place to make sense of Australia Day. That is like saying that a visit to a kindergarten is the best place to make sense of the entire education system! But that is what Australia has become. Indeed, the best symbol of contemporary politically correct Australia is the hearing before the Northern Territory Coroner that the navy requirement of rescuing its own personnel, ahead of illegal aliens, contributed to the death toll.

Could one imagine the Chinese – or any non-Western country entertaining such a view?

THE GLACIER OF TRUTH by Brian Simpson: The Church of Climate Change is facing tough times. First there was the leaked e-mail saga and then the naughty northern hemisphere weather that just refused to warm. And now, the scandal of scandals: the so-called peer reviewed IPCC admits that its 2007 predictions that the Himalayan glaciers were set to disappear by 2035 were based on the lone opinion – yes, not scientific research – of one researcher. ("U.N.'s blunder on glaciers exposed" The Australian, 18/1/2010, p.1)

The IPCC has admitted a lapse in standards. But doesn't "glaciergate" call into question the entire IPCC process? How much alleged science and peer review is just the inner chattering of the climate "boys' club"? When will the glacier of truth finally reveal the great new world order scam of climate change? Soon, I believe, for already, cracks in the ice of falsehood are appearing.

MORE CLIMATE CHANGE LIES by James Reed: It is a full time job now, keeping track of the shonky research behind the UN IPPC – Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. First there was the shonky claims on glacier melting rates and now the claims of a link between global warming and a rise in the frequency of natural disasters such as hurricanes and floods has been challenged. That claim was made by the Third World in an attempt to scam US$100 billion from the West. But as far back as 2008 the IPCC knew that the link had not been scientifically proven, but did not tell governments. ("U.N. caught out again on climate claims", The Australian, 25/1/2010, p.1). So there really is a climate change conspiracy – by definition!

The League saw this long ago, as soon as the evil "U.N." label was attached to the debate and writers at this site, especially Betty Luks, have kept you up-to-date.

Note: For those interested in tracing the pedigrees of the idea of a 'one-world government', the League recommends the following books and DVDs:

One of the first 'modern' books to expose the roots of the 'environmentalist scam' to public scrutiny was "A Conspiracy Called Conservation" by Doug Jensen published in 1984. At the time of publication this book was dismissed as too 'alarmist and exaggerated', but 26 years later proves the author was 'right on the money' and understood what were the final aims of the revolutionary environmentalists.

In the Introduction Mr. Jensen wrote: "Today, in Australia, led by "progressive" New South Wales, we are witnessing leftist politicians and extreme activists in the various "conservation" bodies and bureaucracy demanding that government policy be determined by decisions of polities "planning bodies", "advisory councils", "advisory committees", "concerned citizens committees" local soviet – those "unsung heroes" of the NP&WL Service (National Parks & Wildlife Service) – who in the 80's are demanding "all power" to their 1980's version of Lenin's Soviets..."

Copies of this valuable book are still available for $8.00 plus postage.

"Heaven+Earth" by Ian Plimer. Written by a scientist about the pseudo-science behind the push of 'global warming' and carbon reduction. $35.00 plus postage.

"None Dare Call it Conspiracy" by Gary Allen. A few copies of this best seller are still available. Written in the 1970s Gary Allen traces the links, the nexus, between the rich Capitalists and the Communist agents working to subvert America. $10.00 plus postage.

"The Red Pattern of World Conquest" by Eric D. Butler. In the 1980's Eric gave us an overview of 'behind the scene' world events. This helps the reader to grasp the bigger picture. It is more devious than the mock-battles modern Left/Right political parties would have us believe. $6.00 plus postage.

"Globalisation: Demise of the Australian Nation" by Graham Strachan, B.Sc., LLB. How well he sums up the present situation for the 'ordinary Australian'. "All in all, the people who built civilisation and still believe in it enough want it restored. They are the class enemy, of the Capitalists, the Socialists, and the Money-lenders. They are the ones whose values have to be undermined, overturned and eradicated so the world can be 'free', so the Globalist ideology goes..." Price: $18.00 plus postage.

OR WATCH THE FOLLOWING DVDS:

"Apocalypse No!" Christopher Lord Monckton on the climategate scam. From the Minnesota Free Market Institute a one- and-a-half hour DVD of Lord Monckton's speech on 14th October, 2009, Vital viewing! Special price $10 posted.

"The Fall of the Republic" features a number of legal, economic and historic researchers tracing the forces behind the push for a World Government. It includes valuable sections on the Derivatives Scam and names those within the Clinton administration who were behind the push to repeal laws that would have landed them, and their fellow conspirators, in gaol if still in place.

American folk have produced over two hours of viewing. They warn the viewers the one-worlders will dump the American dollar when they think the timing is right – with resulting hyperinflation, thus wiping out the American (and Australian) middle class.

The issues facing Americans are the same as those facing Australians... global governance (read world government), climate change scam, climate cops, political, corporate and financial corruption, a rising 'police state' – and much more. Special price for over two hours of viewing: $12.00 posted from Heritage Books, P.O. Box 27, Happy Valley, 5159.

DVD Special: Australian League of Rights' Exhibition at the Constitutional Museum, Adelaide 1983. Dis-uncovered among the League's video-archives was a film of the opening of the Australian League of Rights' 1983 Exhibition at the Constitutional Museum, Adelaide, South Australia. Frank V. Bawden, South Australian State Director opened the evening event, Jeremy W. Lee gave an explanation of the various panels on display and Eric D. Butler presented the opening address, giving the background to the origins and organic growth of the League. Doug Holmes has put it on to DVD for us all to view. The quality of the film production leaves a bit to be desired but one soon forgets that as they become engrossed in Eric's address.

Price: $10.00 posted from Heritage Book Services P.O. Box 27, Happy Valley, 5159.

THE FATE OF U.K. UNIVERSITIES by James Reed: It seems that U.K. universities are in an even worse state of decadence and decline than Australian. Rapid Islamisation and Jihadist indoctrination has led to the U.K. students being recruited for Somali's jihad. Richard Kerbaj in the Sunday Times of 24 January 2010 has said:

"Students from some of Britain's top universities are travelling to Somalia to fight with a terrorist group linked to Al-Qaeda. Almost a dozen young British Muslims, including a female medical researcher, are said recently to have joined Al-Shabaab, an extremist rebel organisation blamed for hundreds of deaths in the east African state.

Somali community leaders in the U.K. say students from the London School of Economics (LSE), Imperial College and King's College London are among those who have been recruited within the past year. The youngest recruit is believed to be 18.

One LSE graduate who grew up in Britain is said to have called his pregnant wife from Mogadishu, the Somali capital, telling her: "I am here defending my country and my rights. Look after my daughter. I don't think I will see you again."

An investigation by The Sunday Times into the terrorist "pipeline" to Somalia substantiates claims that Britain has become a fertile breeding ground for Al-Qaeda. It follows the case of Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab, the London engineering graduate accused of trying to blow up almost 300 passengers on a transatlantic flight on Christmas Day.

The security services believe that Britons travelling overseas to train and fight in lawless countries such as Somalia and Yemen pose a serious risk on their return to the U.K. They have previously suggested that at least two dozen Britons have gone out to Somalia to take up arms and even become suicide bombers, but community leaders believe the figure could be more than 100.

Al-Shabaab – Arabic for "the Youth" – wants to impose sharia across Somalia and is engaged in a violent struggle against the country's western-backed government. Experts regard it as an African franchise of Al-Qaeda. It has been proscribed by most western countries, including America and Australia, but has escaped a ban in Britain.

Sheikh Mohamed Ahmed, a moderate religious leader from north London, warned this weekend that Al-Shabaab is exploiting the loophole to recruit youths in the capital. Although many of them were born in Somalia, they have grown up in the U.K. and are British citizens.

"It's unbelievable," said Ahmed. "The group's supporters and recruiters are free to do what they want."

Ahmed said some families had received anonymous phone calls from Al-Shabaab recruiters urging them to send their children abroad in the name of Islam. "The police said they cannot take action until they [the recruits] do something," he said..."
