THERE IS ONLY ONE PARTY NOW: AND HOW THEY PARTY! By James Reed

This is odd, or is it? <http://www.abc.net.au/news/2018-05-14/liberals-back-move-not-to-contest-fremantle-perth-by-elections/9758716>

“Senior Turnbull Government ministers have endorsed the Liberal Party’s decision not to contest two federal WA seats in upcoming by-elections, saying it would have been a waste of ‘limited resources’. The Liberals will not run candidates in the federal seats of Fremantle and Perth following the resignations of Labor’s Tim Hammond and Josh Wilson. Mr Hammond said the toll the job was taking on his family was too great, while Mr Wilson stood down in the wake of the High Court’s latest ruling on dual citizenship. Federal Finance Minister Mathias Cormann backed the move to not run Liberal candidates in either seat.”

So where does this lead? Will the parties simply divide territory and ultimately toss a coin to decide who becomes dictator? It makes as much sense. Surely, the point of democracy is for there to be opposing points of view. If funds are short then do what the small parties do and have chook raffles. ***

THE BETRAYAL OF RHODESIA By Nigel Jackson

A report in The Australian (12-13 May) headed ‘Mission to kill Mugabe foiled’ provides further insight into the internal treachery that led to the downfall of Rhodesia and the subsequent ‘despotism’ of Robert Mugabe. Earlier Ian Hancock and Peter Godwin in Rhodesians Never Die (Pan Macmillan, 2007) dealt extensively with the critical role played by Rhodesia’s head of intelligence, Ken Flower, who was secretly disloyal to Ian Smith and the Rhodesia Front government of 1965-1977. The Australian’s report by Valentine Low, originally published in The Times in London, claims that attempts in 1979 by the Rhodesian SAS to assassinate Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, leaders of the two main African nationalist parties (or terrorist organisations, as some would say), were foiled by internal leaks to the British, who then tipped the targeted men off in time for them to escape the assassins. Low is quoting a new book, We Dared to Win: The SAS in Rhodesia by Hannes Wessels and Andre Scheepers. David Owen, British foreign secretary in 1979, is said to have confirmed the story thirty years afterwards, including the role of Flower. His justification – that ‘Mugabe was at that time... the genuine choice of the Rhodesian people’ – is highly suspect. Would Mugabe have needed to resort to bestial acts of terrorism if that was the case? Despite the scepticism of Hancock and Godwin, I think that The Australian League of Rights was correct to support independent Rhodesia in those crucial years. The tragic history of that nation merely confirms the ongoing truth of Saint Paul’s famous statement that Christians are opposed to hidden evil in high places. Australia at the present time appears to be being white anted as was Rhodesia then. ***

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Many would agree that the cities cannot cope with more migrants since the un-natural population increase has tested infrastructure to the limit. Evidence of this can be witnessed mornings and late afternoons where city streets are grid-locked with traffic. Add the inadequacies of hospitals, for example, and one can see why the Big End of town now wish more migrants to be sent to country areas. While country towns have generally seen a decline in population, they will not want more people just for the sake of it. Where there is a need for workers, more will be accepted provided they are willing. More people collecting welfare will not be a benefit.

When will the business world and MP’s like the PM and his Treasurer get the message that we do not want any more migrants? We do not want more people when robots are taking the human jobs on a daily basis! We do not want more people who do not accept the Australian culture but who wish to change our country into one similar to the one from which they fled! Can we learn from the destructive situation apparent in the UK, Sweden and the like? More migrants will be accepted only when Australians approve by referendum. Having a referendum coincide with the next election would seem a good idea. Ken Grundy, Naracoorte SA ***

IS FOOD RACIST? IS AIR? By Tom North

Another day, yet another challenge to push political correctness to places where no man has gone before. Sorry, genderised person:

http://www.ithaca.com/news/policy-expert-explains-that-yes-food-can-be-racist/article_9612ae1a-539c-11e8-9733-773e398cfb16.html

“Doctor Milton Mills explained these inequalities of the US Department of Agriculture’s dietary guidelines at length, painting a picture of the historical negligence of the US government when it comes to crafting their food recommendations to the dietary needs of minorities in the country, led most notably by its impact on African-Americans. Mills is an Intensive Care Unit doctor in Washington, D.C., and a noted speaker on the topic of disease prevention through dietary methods, shunning the typical western diet in favor of eating a plant-based diet. Even the foods marketed and conventionally considered healthy can be dangerous, Mills said. One of the leading perpetrators of this is the inclusion and prominence of dairy in the food pyramid and generally recommended for healthy growth. While this may have some merit for Caucasians (though Mills disputes research on animal dairy’s efficacy in bone development, the scientific community seems divided), the problems for minorities with dairy are clear. The incidence rate of lactose intolerance in African-Americans hovers around 75 percent, more than three times higher than the incidence rate of those with Anglo backgrounds in America. Other minorities are also diagnosed with the condition at far higher rates, led by East Asians at 90 percent.”

Although I started out with the noble intention of satirising these claims, on deeper reflection, maybe the good doctor is right after all, that there are racial differences in food assimilation, and some races do not digest some foods very well, such as dairy products, and lactose. That in no way is any sort of “inferiority’ at all, or racism, but just a racial fact. There does need to be greater awareness that some diets will be detrimental to some racial groups, but the failure to do this is not racism, but due to anti-racism, the deliberate politically correct drive to paper over racial differences. As this example shows, the anti-racial mania can actually harm groups it is allegedly supposed to help. ***

THE MODERN MULTICULTURAL FASCIST STATE By Michael Ferguson

Life moves fast. The German anarcho-tyranny has given itself new powers of surveillance, including that of opening mail. One can be sure that such powers will be used to open the mail, not of terrorists, but those criticising the terrorism of the modern state, as many protestors may believe. Not to be outdone the home of ‘1984, multicultural fascist Britain’ is now moving for six year prison sentences for those criticising Islam:

“People promoting ‘hostility’ towards a religion or the transgendered online could get much harsher sentences, of up to six years in jail, especial if they have a large online audience according to new proposals. The Sentencing Council for England and Wales has drafted changes to public order offences, including anyone perceived as targeting online a ‘protected characteristics’ including ‘race; sex; disability; age; sexual orientation; religion or belief; pregnancy and maternity; and gender reassignment’. The most severe punishments will be handed to those ‘in a position of trust, authority or influence and abuses their position to stir up hatred’, such as political leaders or figureheads and anyone whose offences are ‘persistent’. If an ‘offender was a member of, or was associated with, a group promoting hostility based on race or religion’, their sentence will also be harsher.”

<https://www.jihadwatch.org/2018/05/uk-proposes-six-year-prison-sentence-for-criticizing-islam>

So take that! Ah, green sweet Britain; beautiful one day, absolutely bloody tyrannical the next. After all, the Deep State would not want anyone drawing attention to the immense problem of freed terrorist suspects. Terrorism is all part of European societies’ decline. ***

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Australian

There is nothing in Mark Leibler’s latest advocacy (‘It’s all or nothing’ on Uluru Statement, 12-13/5) to dispel legitimate fears that the Referendum Council is pushing a fundamentally separatist agenda contrary to the interests and wishes of the great majority of Australians. National unity is the bedrock of our security as a people.

Despite his claims, it is not clear that the Uluru Statement is truly representative of ‘the wishes of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people’, for membership of the groups that eventually originated it was by invitation only.

Nor is it clear that any such ‘people’ can be or should be given any special constitutional status at this stage in history, when there has been so much marrying out.

Moreover, there is already widespread public distrust in Parliament and politicians, so it is unlikely that the electorate will accept the argument that any ‘voice to Parliament’ will not be treated as ‘a third chamber.’ In any case Australians of indigenous ancestry already have adequate means of achieving dialogue with their fellow Australians.

UN GLOBAL GUN CONTROL By John Steele

The UN, part of the globalist grand plan to create a one world New World Order, when it is not using climate change as a mechanism to attack national sovereignty, delights in addressing a whole range of social issues, which are none of its business, such as firearm rights:

http://www.shtfplan.com/conspiracy-fact-and-theory/shtf-warning-the-un-quietly-pushes-international-gun-control_05142018

“The United Nations’ International Action Network on Small Arms (IANSA) is finishing up their Global Week of Action Against Gun Violence. According to IANSA, the goal of the week-long meeting is “for us to advocate collectively for an end to illicit trade and misuse of small arms and light weapons.” We all know what that really means: the United Nations presumes they have authority over every human being on earth, and as such, seeks to ban guns from the slaves they want to control. Of course, they aren’t going to come right out and say it just yet. It took liberals decades before they simply admitted what we already knew: they are coming for our guns.

LETTING GEORGE RULE By Charles Taylor

Old George Soros is the man who keeps on giving ... to Left wing politically correct causes. This time George is funding Left wing candidates for local politics, namely district attorneys right across the US:

“Billionaire philanthropist George Soros has dropped at least $275,000 into district attorney races throughout Northern California, supporting candidates who advocate reduced incarceration and other criminal justice reforms. Such issues have long been a passion for Soros, who in past years has funded state ballot measures to legalize marijuana and weaken the “three strikes” sentencing law. He’s also tipped district attorney elections in other parts of the country — last year a Soros-backed political action committee helped clinch the win for civil rights attorney Larry Krasner in Philadelphia. This year, the liberal financier has funneled contributions into the California Justice & Public Safety Political Action Committee, which is paying for campaign mailers and advertisements in Alameda and Contra Costa counties, as well as Sacramento, ahead of the June 5 state primary. In Alameda County, the committee has spent $131,158 in support of Oakland civil rights attorney Pamela Price,

According to Townhall, the week-long initiative took place one month before the Third Review Conference (RevCon3) on the UN Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons. In 2005 the UN also adopted the International Tracing Instrument (ITI), which is a ‘politically binding instrument’ requiring States to ensure that weapons are properly marked and that records are kept. Moreover, it provides a framework for cooperation in weapons tracing – fulfilling one of the commitments governments made in the Programme of Action. Improving weapons tracing is now part of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.”

Isn’t amazing how good the globalists are at joining the dots, so that gun control suddenly becomes part of a warm and fuzzy agenda to produce ‘sustainable societies’, under the sustainable development agenda. Of course all of this is communist to the core, so the pieces easily fit together to form the ‘hammer and sickle’. ***

a candidate known for her sharp criticism of police. She is challenging District Attorney Nancy O’Malley — a more mainstream progressive seeking a third term — on the June ballot. “Soros is using his money and influence to fix that”, Cordell said. “He’s trying to bring in people of color and other candidates who want to change the system,” she said.”

Yep, if it works to undermine traditional society, George is onto it. But, what is sad is that there are no rich capitalists seeking to fund the alternative side of politics. Just name one. Sure, there may be the odd issue, but no-one with big money seeks to systematically undo what George the boy does. This indicates that our struggle, if it can be won at all, must be conducted by grass roots support. We can never afford to have rent-a-crowd because the money will never be there. Let alone can we expect capitalists to support the radical type of financial reform which social credit represents. The sensible Reduce Immigration Write On has not been supported by those with money, who claim to be concerned about Australia’s out-of-control immigration levels. So be it; we will do it on our own, without a little help from our ‘friends’. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_wG6CgmgnsU ***

To The Age What authority in terms of law (‘Aboriginal elders criticise treaty talks’, 15/5) does ‘Victoria’s historic treaty process’ really have? To most of us the prerogative of signing treaties seems to lie only with the federal government, which has full responsibility for foreign affairs. Can the Prime Minister clarify the situation for us? Looking at the photograph of a mere twenty or thirty persons, some of whom appear only part-Aboriginal. I do not see a group which I believe has the right in 2018 to make constitutional claims on my nation’s government. I doubt if they would be recognized by tribal law before the British settled here; and I doubt if they normally wear that ancient style of dress in daily life. In short, I believe that a fraud is being worked on the people of our state and on Australians generally.

THE HEART OF CHOCOLATE By Mrs Vera West

Dark chocolate is being increasingly seen as a healthy food in limited quantities, with beneficial effects upon the heart:

“A study published in the journal Heart has found that eating moderate amounts of chocolate can reduce the risk of developing atrial fibrillation (AFib), a life-threatening form of irregular heartbeat. Scientists at the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, together with the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health, Aalborg University, and the Danish Cancer Society’s Institute of Cancer Epidemiology used data from a large-scale cohort study of men and women in Denmark for their research.

“Our study adds to the accumulating evidence of the health benefits of moderate chocolate intake and highlights the importance of behavioral factors for potentially lowering the risk of arrhythmias,” added Dr. Elizabeth Mostofsky, the study’s lead author and an instructor in the Department of Epidemiology at Harvard T. H. Chan School of Public Health.

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-05-14-eat-more-dark-chocolate-to-resolve-irregular-heartbeats.html>

While there has been much published on the cardiovascular benefits of dark, unsweetened chocolate, effects on irregular heart beat is something new. Chocolate’s health effects seem to be negated with the addition of milk, and of course, one does not need sugar. Thus, the sort of chocolate to go for is at least 85 percent cocoa dark, and 90 percent is even better. The strong, bitter taste is at first hard to get used to, but soon you will love it. Chocolate is surely one of the beautiful things in life. It is sunshine in your mouth on a rainy day.

THE COMING BLINDNESS By Mrs Vera West

I do not know about you, but working on the computer to bring you the delicious articles I am known for, comes at a cost: neck pain, lower back pain, and that feeling in one’s eyes that they are on stalks, popping out of one’s head. Just imagine having to put in hour after hour as my co-writers do, why, it’s a wonder that they are not blind:

“Some experts say that using cell phones, TVs and tablets isn’t much different from looking at the sun when it comes to the damage it can cause your eyes. The blue light that is emitted from the screens of these devices happens to be precisely in the range where it can cause the most damage: around 430 to 440 nanometers. It may have a short wavelength, but its high energy means it penetrates right through the lens of the eye and the cornea to reach the retina in the back of the eye. This can cause macular degeneration and eventually blindness. Doctors warn that Millennials, who tend to spend lots of hours looking at screens all day, risk starting to go blind once they approach 50. Many people experience frequent headaches as a result of digital eye strain, and it’s not unusual for their vision to become blurry. (continued next column)

FORUM & BASIC FUND

The League has employed substantial funds for our online forums via youtube. Actionists are taking up the battles. There are also other initiatives that will be mentioned in future bulletins.

These initiatives can only happen because of the sacrificial giving from our supporter base to the basic fund. The fund currently stands at a little over $ 18 000. Thank you to those who have donated and for those who wish to assist us reach the target of $60,000 please send yours to our Office at Happy Valley, SA -- Nat Dir

According to ophthalmologist Dr. Alan Mendelsohn, looking at a screen for more than half an hour a day is risky.” <http://www.collapse.news/2018-05-09-mobile-devices-are-on-track-to-destroy-the-eyesight-of-an-entire-generation.html>

Of course, the computer lover-boys and girls see a tech fix solution here: use special light filters. Ok, but that is really just a band aid over a complex health problem, since excess computer use is leading to an epidemic of short-sightedness, and the very act of being seated is intrinsically unhealthy, for sitting for too long can kill you, even if you exercise as numerous other studies have concluded. That seems to be the Faustian bargain made with the devil for the black magic of the high tech society.
