THOUGHT OF THE WEEK: "It is fundamental that the freedom inherent in things should be conditioned only by the nature of the world, as one might say. The moment that conditions are made about making people wealthy, you are not making them wealthy in accordance with the wealth they might have from the free play of invention and progress and organisation. You are making them wealthy only according to somebody's conception of what should be the conditions under which they should be allowed to be wealthy. That is quite a different thing." C.H. Douglas, The Approach to Reality, 3rd ed. (London: K.R.P Publications Ltd., 1936), 11. ***

AUSTRALIAN SLAVERY By James Reed

"Forced labour," as defined by the International Labor Organization, is "all work or service which is exacted from any person under the threat of a penalty and for which the person has not offered himself or herself voluntarily." Forced labour though is precisely what the Liberal government is now forcing on the unemployed, under the guise of helping the farmers:

<https://www.msn.com/en-au/news/australia/dole-bludgers-must-work-on-struggling-farms-or-risk-benefits/ar-BBOiXF5?li=AAgfYrC&ocid=mailsignout>

"The Morrison Government has fired a warning shot at dole bludgers, threatening to cut benefits to job seekers if they refuse, with-out good reason, to take-up jobs offered on farms. "This is about doing everything we can to ensure Australian jobs are being filled by Australians," Prime Minister Scott Morrison said. "Our government has heard from farmers across the country about how tough it is right now to find workers, particularly at the height of harvest season for some crops." But in doing so, the Government also said they would consider examining options for additional overseas workers, if needed.

"Where we cannot find Australians to do the work, we cannot allow the fruit to rot," Mr Morrison said. "We will back our farmers and make arrangements through our Pacific Island worker and migration program to get the job done."

Of course, there always has to be an immigration aspect to everything, and much of the farm work in any case is taken up by migrant labour. No doubt, the Australian unemployed, reduced now to slavery, will do the work that migrants don't want! Further, rather than halting our insane, genocidal mass immigration program, the government has been told by their rulers to move migrants to country areas, because, I presume, such regions need more diversity. And, of course, the libtards proclaim that there will be jobs a plenty for the migrants in rural areas, even though local youth move out, not having jobs, and rural areas are so under-funded that they are collapsing. This is what the "rural crisis" means. ***

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Age If Adrienne Stone really believes that "unorthodox ideas should be welcomed and offensive ideas must be tolerated" in universities ("Free speech vital to universities", 16/10), then she should not be asserting that "anti-vaxxers, Holocaust deniers, flat earthers and others" should be denied a platform there. Dismissing these or any other positions as "nonsense" that "blatantly disregards" so-called established evidence is too risky and might turn out to be ignorantly prejudiced, as Galileo's case and others in history show. Stone's choice of these three categories is also questionable. There's not much sign of flat earth promotion around the world, but there's a large amount of what looks like carefully researched and argued material by Holocaust revisionists. Nigel Jackson, Belgrave, Vic ***

TSUNAMI SALAMI: WILL GOD DROWN AN EVIL AUSTRALIA? By James Reed

There has been a filtering of end times theological speculation in articles recently published at our noble site, such as whether Leftists will burn in the flames of hell. Another interesting question: but what about divine retribution today? Could evil places like Australia, as it now exists, face another deluge?

<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-6263213/Experts-warn-Australia-hit-destructive-60metre-high-tsunami-time.html>

“Experts have warned it is only a matter of time before Australia is hit by a devastating tsunami. They said the country's coastal cities have been fortunate not to be struck by a series of destructive waves triggered by meteor impacts or seismic activity. Past tsunamis, the most recent in 1491, have crashed over 60metre-high cliffs and sent seawater as far inland as the Blue Mountains, 50km west of Sydney. Dale Dominey-Howes, co-director of the Australian Tsunami Research Centre at the University of New South Wales said tsunamis posed a real threat to Australian cities. 'If it occurred without warning on a Saturday afternoon in summer the impacts would be catastrophic,' he told the Australian Geographic. 'I suspect it's only a matter of time before we are affected by something damaging.' Such a catastrophic event could go undetected until the last minute.

<https://www.australiangeographic.com.au/topics/science-environment/2010/12/tsunami-terror-from-the-sea/>

“Dr Ted Bryant, tsunami expert who recently retired from the University of Wollongong, has gathered evidence that monumental tsunamis have pummelled the east coast throughout history – and could do so again. He believes that, based on studies of sediment layers and rock erosion, six big tsunamis caused by meteorite strikes or marine landslides have hit Sydney during the past 10,000 years.

The most recent probably occurred in 1491, Ted says, and produced a wave that washed over the harbour's headlands, 60 m above sea level. That tsunami didn't travel far inshore, but others did. Ted argues that a tsunami that hit the Shoalhaven delta near Nowra, between 5000 and 4000 years ago, ran 10 km inland, while deposits near the Blue Mountains hint that another tsunami ran over cliffs more than 60 m high, and then rushed inland. A similar event today would have the potential for widespread destruction. And we wouldn't necessarily pick up an incoming comet or meteor, whose impact into the sea could trigger a tsunami. “An object a few hundred metres wide, more than likely, would just come in with no warning.”

Thus, a tsunami is sure to hit the coast of Australia, probably the east coast at some point in the near future and will drown Sydney, Brisbane, and maybe Melbourne. All of that diversity and our Asian future, all the migration, goes under water. It is almost too much to bear, which is why we need to “build a wall” at least 500 feet high to hold back the sea, as King Canute (990-1035 AD), demonstrated. ***

ARE THE LEFT DEMONICALLY POSSESSED? By Charles Taylor

Mike Adams has hypothesized that the Left may be demonically possessed. At first I thought that this was ridiculous, but I spoke about this to my pastor, who thought that he may be onto something:

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2018-10-10-democrats-possessed-by-demonic-forces-thought-experiment.html>

‘Markus Persson, the creator of Minecraft, just pointed out that the political Left has “literally been taken over by evil.” It turns out he's more correct than even he might realize. Over the last several years, Leftists have morphed into an irrational, hate-filled violent mob of “Demoncrats” that don't even resemble conscious human beings. Operating like a zombie swarm of mindless lunatics, they are now taking over entire cities like Portland, Oregon, where even the local police now stand down and allow deranged Left-wing mobs to run the city. Watch this astonishing video where an elderly white man is being harassed, racially verbally assaulted and then has his vehicle windows smashed by deranged left-wing lunatics who have taken over the city of Portland, apparently with the full permission of the snowflake mayor and the pathetic, spineless Portland Police: Many people believe that Leftists are literally being possessed by demonic forces that they've invited into their lives through the mechanisms described below. This could explain the hatred, the mindlessness, the desire for killing their opponents and their complete lack of anything resembling rationality or logic. Today's typical left-wing lunatic cannot explain anything they believe. Instead, they resort to screaming, accusing, kicking and crying. These are all expressions of lunacy, not rationality or reason.’

Ok, good old Mike then goes on a rave about the Catholic Church, but we won't go there because I don't want to offend any Catholic readers, unlike Peter West, who writes first mainly without thinking very much about people's feelings, thinking that truth is the only value.

Anyway, the demonic possession hypothesis is probably true, which means that our battle is part of the grand old battle of good versus evil. Reality is a minestrone, full of thick contradictions, and stocky paradoxes. ***

KILLING THE TPP By James Reed

The TPP has had a zombie existence since President Trump crushed the original plan under foot like crushing the head of a serpent. But, the evil globalist elites never give up in their eternal quest to destroy everything of value and sink the nation state, our heritage and future. However, while the program has crept on, it has had its setbacks, such as a blow delivered by the otherwise weak Centre Alliance:

<https://centrealliance.org.au/media/media/no-deal-centre-alliance-to-reject-tpp-11-enabling-legislation/>

"While Centre Alliance supports open and fair trade, the party will not be supporting TPP-11 enabling legislation," said Trade spokesperson Senator Rex Patrick. "The deal that has been negotiated by the Government is, on balance, bad for Australia."

Recently released modelling commissioned by Australian industry heavyweights shows that the deal would result in, at best, a 0.5% increase to GDP by 2030. This figure must be tempered by the fact that the Productivity Commission has found that predictions for growth and jobs from Free Trade Agreements (FTAs) have rarely been delivered because the economic models employed exaggerate the benefits, ignores many of the costs and assume away unemployment effects.

The modelling shows Australia's grain exports would not change at all under the deal and all other agriculture could decline. It also shows that durable manufacturing, a key sector of interest to Centre Alliance, would actually shrink under TPP-11.

"The questionable gains discussed in the modelling report in no way balance the negative aspects of the abolition of labour market testing for temporary workers and the inclusion of ISDS provisions that are an affront to our sovereignty," said Rex.

Noting the position of other crossbenchers and The Greens, Centre Alliance's decision means that the only way this flawed trade deal can enter into force is if Labor supports the Government.

"The Senate needs to draw a line in the sand. Over and over again it has expressed its concerns about these deals increasing the number of vulnerable migrant workers and allowing corporations to challenge Australia's rights to control its own public policy," said Rex. Labor has stated in its additional comments to the Joint Standing Committee On Treaties TPP-11 report that it "will not waive labour market testing as part of any free trade agreement" and "will not agree to Investor-State Dispute Settlement (ISDS) provisions in new trade agreements."

"Centre Alliance is presenting Labor with an opportunity to give effect to their own position," said Rex. "Labor should join us in sending a very strong signal that we do not enter into trade deals unless there is clear benefit, strong labour market testing and all ISDS provisions have been removed. We're not trying to kill the deal in its entirety, we're just trying to cut the cancer out of it."

The problem is, that to take the full cancer out of the TTP, is to take the TPP out of the TPP! But, that is precisely what must be done. Anyway, my hope is that another Global Financial Crisis, if not the final economic collapse of this fetid system, will bring all of these globalist fantasies crashing down. I get down on my knees before going to bed and pray for this every night. It is worth the pain of what the New Class are calling the coming economic "Armageddon," for Australia:

<https://www.news.com.au/finance/economy/australian-economy/how-to-prepare-for-economic-armageddon/news-story/08c0ab60e4184ee2d2f3e3d199a5a803>

The above article from the Murdoch press gives a good indication of the coming chaos that the elites have unleashed, with a recommendation to go back and read how people survived in the Great Depression; to hold "good money" such as precious metals, gold, silver and platinum, and diversify your income sources, as getting work is going to be harder that we imagine. ***

MULTICULT MASS IMMIGRATION MEANS NO DIVERSITY By James Reed

-"Queen" Ann Coulter says it better than anyone does:

<https://www.breitbart.com/big-government/2018/10/08/watch-ann-coulter-constant-immigration-will-lead-to-no-culture-across-the-globe/>

"New York Times" best-selling author and populist conservative columnist Ann Coulter says "constant immigration" to the United States and other countries will lead to "no difference" between countries and "no culture" around the world. During an interview on the Swedish television show Skavlan, Coulter said mass immigration to the U.S. makes the world less diverse, as countries begin to lose their culture and heritage.

"I feel like I'm the only one who really wants diversity," Coulter said. "If all we're going to have is this constant churning and constant immigration, we're all going to be ... we're all going to look alike, there will be no difference, there will be no culture."

That is the plan of the elites. Ironically, it started with the soft plea for "diversity," more exciting food, less boring Anglo Saxons, and it ends with not having any Anglo people or culture at all. Everything has to go; everything has to be replaced. As plain as that. ***

NO RODENTS ON FLIGHTS! WILL POLITICIANS HAVE TO WALK NOW? By Uncle Len

I am back, mentally refreshed from my stay in a psychiatric institution. It was great; showers (no showers in my shed, I wash very rarely), toilets (no toilets in my shed; guess how I handle that one, and two), and food not from dumpster diving. Sure I had a drip feeding powerful drugs into my veins 24/7, but I ask you, is this really something to worry about, when one can dine on a hot toasted cheese and tomato sandwich? Returning to my shed left me with a feeling of depression, but not enough to be put back in to the glorious mental health cycle. So, it is back to my eternal friends and support animals, the cockroaches. Speaking of emotional support animals:

<https://www.zerohedge.com/news/2018-10-10/>

woman-booted-flight-after-refusing-leave-her-emotional-support-squirrel

‘The ongoing controversy surrounding passengers’ demands to take their ‘emotional support animals’ with them on long flights took a hilarious turn on Tuesday when a woman was forcibly removed from a Frontier Airlines flight after she was told that her “emotional support” squirrel wouldn’t be allowed on board. Passengers were forced to deplane from flight 1612 from Orlando, Fla., to Cleveland on Tuesday when the woman refused to obey a request to leave the flight with her squirrel, at which point the airline called the Orlando Police, who escorted the woman off the plane. The woman argued that she included in her reservation notes that she would be traveling with an emotional support animal - though the airline argued that she did NOT indicate that said animal would be a squirrel, according to the Cleveland Fox affiliate. Frontier Airlines said it doesn’t allow rodents on its flights.’

Quite right too; think about where this could end if everyone was permitted to take on a plane flight their emotional support pets. Why, before long flights would resemble Noah’s Ark, as people attempted to take on flight animals such as horses, donkeys and maybe, in African flights, bull elephants. A line in the sand has to be drawn somewhere.

Don’t worry though about my psycho-physical decline, because most young people are on the same slippery slope, down, down, down:

http://www.shtfplan.com/headline-news/shocking-new-studies-find-that-americas-young-people-are-overweight-unhealthy-suicidal-and-addicted-to-alcohol-and-drugs_10122018

This is about America, because nobody does interesting research about Australia, but it may be the same, or worse; 1 in 3 adults eat fast food every day (85 million Americans), one third of American teenagers have not read a book in the past year, but the little darlings spend on average six hours a day on social media and computer games, enough to rot anyone’s brain. That is an excellent way of allowing civilisation to decay, and I am the master blaster of decay. ***

WHO NEEDS EVIDENCE FOR “HATE”? By Mrs Vera West

In the UK, the legal system has dropped one component of the traditional law of evidence, for now no evidence at all is needed to make a complaint for a hate crime, apart, I suppose, for the accused being white:

<https://www.breitbart.com/london/2017/01/10/>

no-evidence-needed-report-transphobic-hate-crime-new-cps-guidelines/

‘The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) has held a “public consultation” and issued “revised” guidelines on “hate crimes” and “transphobia”, which are likely to result in ever increasing numbers of people being dragged through court for speech crimes. As well as setting out policy on racism, homophobia, and “transphobia”, the new guidelines include the “first public policy statement on Crimes Against Disabled People” to stress the CPS “understand[s] the serious nature of these crimes”. The new guidelines reaffirm the fact that no evidence is needed to bring a criminal complaint against someone for a “hate crime”, as “reporting... is subjective and is based on the perception of the victim”. In order to treat a crime as a hate crime for the purposes of investigation, there is no need for evidence to prove the aggravating element”, the guidelines add. “Hate crimes” receive harsher sentences than other crimes, and “aggravating” factors are often vague. Day by day, the traditional rule of law crumbles. In the end, the law begins to lack authority and law needs that to survive. It is just not going to make it as the paradoxes now are too sharp and painful. ***
