It Can Happen Here Too! By Mrs Vera West	4

THOUGHTS OF THE WEEK: "The economic aspect of life has to a great extent overspread everything, because it has outgrown both political and cultural life, and it has acted like a suggestion on the thoughts, feelings and passions of men. Thus, it has become ever more evident that the manner in which the business of a nation is carried on determines, in reality, the cultural and political life of the people. It becomes ever more evident that the manner in which the business of a nation is carried on determines, in reality, the cultural and political life of the people. It becomes ever more evident that the commercial and industrial magnates, by their position alone, have acquired the monopoly of culture. The economically weak remain the uneducated. A certain connection has become apparent between the economic and the cultural, and between the cultural and the political organisations. The cultural life has gradually become one that does not evolve out of its own inner needs and does not follow its own impulses, but, especially when it is under public administration, as in schools and educational institutions, it receives the form most useful to the political authority. The human being can no longer be judged according to his capacities; he can no longer be developed as his inborn talents demand. Rather is it asked, What does the State want? What talents are needed for business? How many men are wanted with a particular training? The teaching, the schools, the examinations are all directed to this end. The cultural life cannot follow its own laws of development; it is adapted to the political and the economic life."

COLONISATION ON STEROIDS; RURAL CHINA TOWN By James Reed

Why does every city have to have a China town? Well, keep wondering because now this concept is being applied to the Australian country side as well:

<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2019-08-31/foreign-investor-plan-to-create-rural-chinatown-in-geraldton/8537422>

'Foreign investors have purchased hundreds of hectares of land in WA's Midwest with a view to establishing a rural Chinatown, including an English-language school. City of Greater Geraldton Mayor Shane Van Styn revealed the bold plan by developer PIP Holdings to create the suburb in the city's eastern fringe. It includes building homes specifically for Chinese migrants and associated service industries to cater to their needs. Van Styn said foreign investment could be just the ticket to revitalise the region's main city, located 400 kilometres north of Perth. But there are questions about whether the proposed development will help or hinder the region. Geraldton, a once-thriving city built on agriculture and lobster fishing, enjoyed a boom through iron ore mining and exploration but is now battling a shrinking population and rising unemployment. It was for this reason that Van Styn said he believed overseas investment would be the key to revitalising the struggling region. "They're proposing anywhere up to 1,500 houses, a commercial centre, and that school in the centre," he said. "This is proposing building two years' worth of houses in one single development, so it would be a building boom unlike anything ever seen.'

Ask yourself if any country in Asia, such as China would allow a parallel development, then ask why does Australia allow this? Not just allows it, but celebrates it!

Ok, given that we are the eternal colony, why not simply sell up the entire country in one great fire sale? Perhaps the Australian population could be valuated and sold as well? Sell everything; every lizard and every rock. Just sell us and put us out of our misery.

Australia exists now only as a social construct, not as a real nation.

DARPA GETTING DOWN AND DIRTY By Chris Knight

More on the US military industrial complex getting down and dirty on censoring free thought. If you thought that Big Tech was totalitarian, then you have not seen anything yet! These guys intend to play hard ball ... hell, they play with grenades, bombs and nuclear missiles! Even the name “DARPA” sounds bad, like out of some sci fi horror genre:

<https://www.rt.com/usa/467836-darpa-deepfakes-disinfo-malicious-dissent/>

“The Pentagon has unveiled an initiative to fight ‘large-scale, automated disinformation attacks’ by unearthing deep-fakes and other polarizing content – with the eventual goal of rooting out so-called ‘malicious intent’ entirely. The Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) is seeking software capable of churning through a test set of half a million news stories, photos, and audio/video clips to target and neutralize potentially viral information before it spreads. In DARPA jargon, the aim is to “automatically detect, attribute, and characterize falsified multi-modal media to defend against large-scale, automated disinformation attacks.” “Polarizing viral content,” however, includes inflammatory truths, and the program’s ultimate goal seems to be to stamp out dissent. The Semantic Forensics program will scan news stories and social media posts with a barrage of algorithms in the hope of identifying inconsistencies that could mark a story as fake. The desired program will not just identify a meme as inauthentic – it will identify the source of that meme, the alleged intent behind it, and predict the impact of its spread. To hear them tell it, the Pentagon just wants to even the playing field between the ‘good guys’ – the fake-hunters pursuing the cause of truth in media – and the ‘bad guys’ sowing discord one slowed-down Nancy Pelosi speech at a time. But the Pentagon’s targets aren’t limited to deepfakes, the bogeyman-of-the-month being used to justify this unprecedented military intrusion into the social media and news realm, or fake news at all. If the program is successful after four years of trials, it will be expanded to target all “malicious intent” – a possibility that should send chills down the spine of any journalist who’s ever disagreed with the establishment narrative.”

Trump, to his eternal shame is allowing the entire machinery of totalitarianism to be set up, and articles this week, including reports from Richard Miller in London, show how this agenda is already well advanced in Europe. Why the sheeple cannot see this is beyond belief. Do they think that they will be allowed to graze forever in peace? Define “useless eaters.” ***

PUNISH YOU EVEN BEFORE THE “CRIME” IS COMMITTED! By Richard Miller

Whoaha! Britain is fast moving ahead of even Sweden in the totalitarian stakes. The elites no doubt have armies of eager researchers working 24/7 to come up with ever more anarchotyranny:

<https://www.frontpagemag.com/fpm/274810/uk-you-could-soon-be-arrested-crimes-you-havent-robert-spencer>

‘Philip K. Dick’s story The Minority Report, made into a movie in 2002 directed by Steven Spielberg and starring Tom Cruise, takes us to a nightmarish Washington, DC, in the year 2054, where police arrest people based on crimes that psychics say they’re going to commit in the future. That dystopia could come to Britain 35 years early if the Tony Blair Institute for Global Change gets its way. According to The Guardian, the Institute has recommended that “a new law allowing for hate groups to be designated and punished before they turn to violence is needed in order to tackle far-right extremists.”

“Before they turn to violence” — that is, even if there is no indication that they will ever be violent.

The Guardian notes that the authors of Narratives of Hate: The Spectrum of Far-Right Worldviews in the UK, the Tony Blair Institute report calling for this, “acknowledge that the issue of linking violent and nonviolent extremism is contentious and steps would need to be taken to protect free speech.”

That’s window dressing meant to deceive the public into complacency. There is no way to criminalize certain opinions while protecting the freedom of speech. The Guardian continues: “The law... would designate hate groups as organisations that spread intolerance and antipathy towards people of a different race, religion, gender or nationality, the report said.”

The problem here is elementary, namely that the rule of law has always operated so that people were punished for things they did, not things they might do, or believe. By this proposed law, given the super-wide definitions of “hate” anything the elites do not like gets defined as hate, and shut down. Thus, for example, (Douglas-ed) social credit is an anti-globalist economics of national self-reliance, in policy, politics, economics and finance. Yet we have new class elites proclaiming that any criticism of globalism, like any criticism of immigration is racist. What is not “racist”?

Proceeding in this fashion a complete totalitarian society will be set up in record time. Can the British people tear themselves away from the soccer and warm beer to preserve the foundations of Western law? Yeah, sure they will; maybe after the World Cup.

LETTER TO THE EDITORS

to OT, Readers will recall how Professor Peter Ridd was dismissed from the James Cook University (JCU) for challenging views of some researchers claiming the Great Barrier Reef was declining due to Climate Change. Most people believe places of learning and research like JCU would be amenable to differing views and even expect them to follow through to seek truth. This was too much to expect from the taxpayer funded JCU which found it more suitable to dismiss the Professor. The Federal Circuit Court has determined that JCU is to pay $1.2m to Professor Ridd for his unlawful dismissal.

What a privilege it will be to attend the League Seminar on October 12 in Adelaide, where Professor Ridd will be the key speaker. It will be a 'not-to-be-missed' event.

to The Age, Barry Lizmore's claim (6/9) that "democracy is still healthy in Britain", thanks to the parliament's frustration of the government's Brexit plan, is the opposite of the truth. The ongoing efforts of Remainers to dishonour the clear 2016 referendum result show this beyond all doubt. Brexit Secretary Stephen Barclay is right ("Brexit in the hands of the Lords") to accuse the Conservative rebels and opposition of "attempting to stop Brexit altogether". The scaremongering objections to a no-deal departure from the EU are a ploy only, an attempt to hide the dishonesty involved.

Nigel Jackson, Belgrave.

to Inverell Times, After reading Dr Mary McMillan's "opinion" piece, I feel as irrelevant as a foetus in the current abortion debate. As a father and grandfather are my experiences through life of less scientific validity than hers? What I have witnessed, what I have learned through study after seeing the negative impacts of vaccinations. This she lumps together with moon landing deniers and other conspiracies to try and make all look ridiculous. Dr McMillan laments "anti-vaccination" people being given equal coverage in the media seeming to think that her scientific method is LAW law. So what of the everyday Joe and Mary who have a normal healthy child. They take it to the Doctor for its routine shots only to see an anything but normal response; either the child screams uncontrollably for days on end, or its eyes glaze over and switches off from the world around them, or the parents wake up the next morning to find their child has not. Are Joe and Mary any less able than Dr McMillan to register scientifically the cause and effect of their child's ills. That is what she is claiming over anti-vaccination groups as she chooses to label and smear them. Almost every person I have met who questions the safety of vaccines has had a child damaged by vaccines. This does not automatically make them all "anti-vaccination". What they witnessed is not baseless theory and speculation as Dr McMillan writes but a valid scientific observation and many a child has been the innocent and tragic victim of this "scientific" experiment. One size does not fit all. Every child has a different capacity to deal with the assault on their immune system that vaccines invoke. Do not tell me that I do not have equal rights or compelling argument to put before the public. Indeed, I believe it is a responsibility to warn others because of the massive vested interest the pharmaceutical companies have in the promotion of their product. The truth is, she will not debate the dangers of vaccination because the evidence of possible harm is overwhelming. Far from getting equal coverage many doctors and scientists seeking to warn us of the dangers of vaccines have been refused entry into Australia by our "health" department. Tell me Dr McMillan, why does the USA have a vaccine injury court which has paid out millions in compensation to parents of vaccine damaged children if no such safety concerns exist? WHY IS IT SO DOCTOR?

to The Australian, Henry Ergas ("Brexit reveals what Parliament thinks of the people", 6/9) cites an important statement in 1734 by John Wilkes that the whole power of electors is devolved upon MPs who must "regard only the public good in general". Parliament may indeed be sovereign constitutionally, as Ergas shows, but, once elected, MPs must seek to act honourably and righteously to defend the welfare of the nation.

There is good reason to feel that many of the MPs who have voted to frustrate the Government's Brexit plan were not regarding the public good in general, but serving an unelected elite and/or furthering their own careers. As regards the incorporation of the UK in the EU, there is a long history of deception of the public by MPs and elements in the mass media. The duplicity of Remainers has indeed "shattered the complex web of make-believe" that has hidden UK political realities. It turns out that, when the chips are down, Britain is not a democracy but an oligarchy.

to Liberty Planet, The Chinese "Social Credit System" has nothing to do with, and is the inverse of, authentic Social Credit as originated about 1918 in the United Kingdom by the late Major Clifford Hugh Douglas. The Chinese system is one of universal surveillance of the citizenry and is a totalitarian program of State-administered "rewards and punishments", i.e., "rights credits (access) and debits (denial)". Douglas was specifically critical of the Doctrine of Rewards and Punishments applied in this manner by external and centralized authority. Prior to announcement of the system the Chinese are believed to have engaged in heavy downloading of material from authentic Social Credit data bases. Their use of the name is grossly erroneous, misleading and believed to be deliberately and mischievously so. Wally Klinck, Canada

A South African doctor told a pregnant woman that the foetus is human and that abortion therefore would kill it. He gets sacked. It could happen here in Australia just as easily. But, if the doctor sang the praises of abortion, why, nothing would happen. That is business as usual:

<https://www.lifesitenews.com/news/>

doctor-forbidden-to-practice-medicine-after-telling-patient-a-fetus-is-a-human ‘August 30, 2019 (Society for the Protection of Unborn Children) — A South African doctor is facing charges of unprofessional conduct after telling a woman scientific facts about unborn children.

According to Sowetan Live, Jacques de Vos allegedly told a patient that “a foetus is a human” and claimed that abortion kills a human. After de Vos stated these scientific facts, his employment was terminated and he was prohibited from practising medicine. De Vos is now facing four charges of unprofessional conduct from the Health Professions Council of South Africa at an inquiry which has commenced this week.

According to the report, de Vos allegedly “infringed” the patient’s “autonomy with his anti-abortion utterances.”

GLOBALISTS THREATEN THE QUEEN: ARE YOU SAFE? By Richard Miller

God save the Queen! And may He protect Her from the insane globalists, who have invoked something of a historical threat:

<https://www.breitbart.com/europe/2019/08/29/>

off-with-her-head-soros-funded-best-for-britain-group-threatens-queen-over-brexit/

‘The EU loyalist Best for Britain group appeared to invoke the fate of the beheaded King Charles I after Queen Elizabeth II agreed to prorogue (temporarily suspend) Parliament for a few weeks before the Brexit deadline. Following news that the Queen rubber-stamped Prime Minister Boris Johnson’s request to suspend the parliamentary session — the longest-running for almost 400 years — so that his government can bring forward a new legislative programme on October 14th, the George Soros-funded group tweeted that it would “make no sense for the Queen to back this deeply undemocratic, unconstitutional and fundamentally political manoeuvre from the government,” in comments later attributed to its CEO, Naomi Smith. “If the Queen is asked to help, she would do well to remember history doesn’t look too kindly on royals who aid and abet the suspension of democracy,” the anti-Brexit group added darkly, appearing to allude to the fate of the monarch’s ancestor Charles I, who tried to govern without Parliament and was in the end publicly beheaded.’

If the globalist can threaten the Queen, just think about how they view little old you and me! ***

ON TARGET

“Based On Ideology, Not Scientific Fact”

SPUC Education and Research Director, Dr Anthony McCarthy described the charges as “based on ideology, not scientific fact.” Dr McCarthy said: “From a scientific point of view, the question of when a new human life begins is relatively uncontroversial. Human life begins at fertilisation as a single cell. Conception marks a change from cells produced by the father and mother, to a cell with a complete human genome that constitutes a new human being.” He continued: “The unborn life in the womb is undoubtedly human, and the evidence for this is overwhelming. As the parents are human — belonging to the species Homo sapiens — and the embryo is oriented to growing up just like them, the new living being is also human. That new life is obviously both very young and very small, but is no less human than we are now. “From a scientific and medical standpoint, the facts stated by Jacques de Vos are undoubtedly true.’

True? But today, truth is no defence under the new regime, for if the elites say that $2 + 2 = 5$, then that is what it equals. And, why not too, if everything is relative and a social construction. ***

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

What support is offered to the multi-thousands of brave people in Hong Kong who have been demonstrating for at least 13 weeks in their bid to live a life with some freedom? Life in the former British territory has obviously changed from freedom to tyranny. Mainland China is displaying typical totalitarian policies where every citizen is under constant public surveillance. Misbehaviour means extradition to the mainland where the punishment is likely to be incarceration in one of the ‘re-education’ institutions. I recall previous examples where the western world applied economic sanctions to nations with policies considered oppressive. Presently, I have noticed nothing more than a little wrist tap on China. Will Australia take the lead in genuinely supporting pro-democracy for Hong Kong?
