Steel Truth: Americans now doing something about the country's dire situation

<https://www.naturalnews.com/2021-10-22-steel-truth-americans-doing-something-about-situation.html>

Video showing a sheriff asking why the U.S. is currently in such a bad place. "I was wondering why we're in the position that we're in and I just wanted to make this quick video to tell you why. The short answer is that we allowed it to. We got lazy. Nobody wants to have accountability for their actions," he says.

"We've been hit by evil, make no mistake about it. Your health, your family, your liberty, your freedoms.

Everything has been attacked since day one." The sheriff calls on Americans to "start acting now" in order to get out of precarious situations. "Stop making excuses, don't be lazy, be smart. Make a plan, do what you can, network, get your personal affairs together and gear up"....

IT ALWAYS TAKES THE ONE TO STEP AWAY FROM THE CROWD By Arnis Luks

Previous generations had the (tongue in cheek) luxury of leaving their native homeland to find a better life somewhere else, with the hope of renewed prosperity and improved freedoms. Those that remained suffered their circumstances to the best of their ability. Nowadays there is no other place to go. We must either capitulate and accept the totalitarian imposed slavery; or we must harden ourselves to find a solution by working through our modern dilemma which is more of a spiritual-political nature than a physical reality.

We are being communised by Conservative and Labor political parties alike. Our traditional political alignments count for nothing. The treachery has occurred from the conservative wings of both parties, from Labor betraying their voter base and from Conservatives betraying their base of independent self-reliant small business. The betrayal has been towards collectivism, whether of the capitalistic/communist style of elites confiscating all the assets of the world unto themselves, or the socialistic/communistic style with the same elites who work through the state to administer and control the same assets of the world unto themselves.

A problem correctly stated is already half solved said CH Douglas. We are witnessing the massive expansion of government interference over the entire economic system, while at the same time driving everyone into a position of complete financial dependency upon government. The centralisation of political power is occurring in conjunction with the centralisation of financial/economic power into the hands of an elite cadre of financial and industrial interests. The counter to this is financial independence and economic self-reliance of the individual, sprinkled with a minimum of government interference and intrusion into the life of all - Douglas Social Credit.

Economic Democracy was the 1920 title CH Douglas gave to his first major work in answering this dilemma. If you have food in your belly, a home to call your own, and security from the wolves at the door, government becomes a minor affair where it rightfully belongs. "Economic Democracy" is more a fundamental principle of freedom than political democracy. As we witness the collapse of civilisation it becomes more apparent that food security is of primary importance. Without food security, the siege from government imposed totalitarianism would quickly become insufferable. With food security, the siege imposed upon us by our tyrannical government could be waited out indefinitely until the next election, (if we ever have one), or a break in the siege.

If your answer to the question of communism is 'no', then Douglas Social Credit is the solution. It doesn't matter whether it is capitalistic communism, or it is socialistic communism, collectivist communism is still slavery. Solzhenitsyn wrote "Live Not By Lies" as the solution against communism/collectivism. Communism survives only by lies. Every day our own Pravda (MSM) sets forth another set of lies. The truth will set you free. Christianity is Truth. Christianity is in the nature of all things as they are, and how they work best. Communism is man's attempt to usurp God from His Throne of Deity.

Each week I must set time aside to develop my thinking, to pursue further reading, to look at another facet of Christianity (Douglas Social Credit) as the solution. Each week presents more new lies for old.

“Summer Time Ends” by John Hargrave depicts English industrial life where a young, unmarried couple choose to start a family in spite of poverty and a precarious future. John Hargrave’s writing style is unique and worth persevering through, yet the circumstances depicted between the management class and the worker is consistently seen across each generation. Hargrave’s final resolution between the characters presents the Douglas Social Credit financial/economic proposal as the solution. This same proposal is also our solution for today, but few recognise the actual question being asked.

An Age of Plenty

We are at a stage of our intellectual development that machines are capable of removing the burden of hard physical labour. A logical progression of thought from this fact should provide material security - the fruit of the machine. Yet we appear incapable of harvesting our own cultural inheritance, being fed a never-ending diet of lies.

The Melbourne Cup is celebrated in the first Tuesday of November at the Flemington racecourse. I once witnessed a horse handler using a sparkler in front of the horse’s eyes to distract the horse while it was being placed in the starting gates. This is the predicament we find ourselves. All these hoaxes and every other sordid distraction is placed in front of our eyes to stop us seeing the abundance before us while we are being herded into a spiritually impoverished political prison.

Our rich cultural inheritance has been denigrated through our educational institutions to the point where individuals can hardly lift their eyes from the pavement. The deliberate fabrication of our history is a factual lie.

The devil and his workers are doing everything within their power to obscure the reality of our time.

The covid hoax, the climate hoax, the Y2K hoax, the war on terror, the Twin Towers (actually three) disintegrating in thin air, the Port Arthur massacre, have all been obstacles placed in our way to obscure the truth of material security and abundance that is ours.

That we would have eyes to see and ears to hear!

Few are prepared to step away from the security of the crowd, to maintain independence of thought or reason, and insist on bodily autonomy - my body my choice, for themselves or for others. Principles are no longer a necessary requirement in most vocations. Obedience is of greater value for employment, and now personal access. Live Not By Lies, was penned by Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn the night before he was arrested and exiled from his beloved homeland. He established a bar of personal integrity above security and lies. He thanked God for his imprisonment that caused his awakening. There is the same question being forced upon us. Will we awaken? How many will compromise - look at the academics, climate scientists, doctors, nurses, politicians, judges, journalists and preachers. Look at them all, because they represent our collapsing civilisation, just as we do. Their lies are more apparent because we look at them from a distance. It is much easier to see the fault in another than the plank in our own eye. Is it any wonder we have lost our way when there is no moral fabric amongst us.

Free, Moral and Responsible is a trilogy of inseparable virtues. We cannot bias onto one while neglecting the others. Some have tried by taking the job in the lure to regain their travel (freedom). They are now being held responsible for the job damage including their own life. They accepted the carrot too quickly. Those that still hold out against the forced job are getting the stick as punishment. Liberal and Labor governments alike are both communistic in deed - a criminal conspiracy of all.

One Who Stepped Away From The Crowd

Over my 40 years of living within the one electorate, I have been visited three times by potential candidates. Bob Such was one of those three who happened to visit on a blistering summer’s day nearly 40 years ago. We welcomed him inside and gave him light refreshments while we discussed things of a political nature. He struck me as an ordinary man who had gone back to school for personal development to pursue a political career.

Under the SA Liberal Olsen government, our state electricity commission was sold, even though Premier Olsen had given personal assurances this would not occur. At that same time the same Premier misled Parliament. He is the current SA Liberal Party President.

Bob Such was so disgusted that he resigned and stood as an independent. The electorate were satisfied sufficiently with his performance and continued to support him for many more elections until his untimely physical demise. This separating of himself from the corrupt party machine was a telling indication of his personal integrity. Our academics, climate scientists, doctors, nurses, politicians, judges, journalists and preachers who don’t wish to rock the gravy boat while they hold access to the trough of perks, are all coming to a different conclusion: If I wish to keep working I must learn to live with this never ending onslaught of lies. Bob Such and Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn both stood away from the security of the crowd.

Nearly all go along with whatever narrative is the latest pharma (pravda) ‘fad’. Will I step away from the crowd to look at the actual and observable weather to recognise there is no appreciable significant threat by rising CO<sup>2</sup> levels caused by solar variability? Will I step away from the crowd and present a factual account of our rich cultural heritage that may disenfranchise me from my career and work colleagues? Will I step away from the crowd to acknowledge and support the observable biological differences of the sexes and what historically constitutes the traditional family? Will I step away from the crowd to see that our ancient rights and freedoms are being done away with by these totalitarian governments, all based on unrelenting fear created by Pravda (our own main stream media)?

Who owns and controls this machine of propaganda?

Will I step away from the crowd and not fill my mind with all sorts of intellectual and spiritual poison?

We are so accustomed to accepting this baloney as truth.

Nearly all have come to accept this barrage of lies over

TRUTH - 'ye are of (your) father the devil...he was a murderer from the beginning and standeth not in truth'.

We as a people, as a nation, and as a civilisation are stranded and drifting on an island of never ending lies.

The Truth Will Set You Free -

Lies Will Lead To Slavery and Death

The greatest of all lies is the existing financial fraud, sufficient to confiscate the assets of the entire world unto themselves - the money changers returning to the temple.

If TRUTH cannot be accepted because of a preference for security, then any original proposal to balance the financial/economic system will never be considered, because it will take effort to unlock these spiritual chains.

Without a Vision The People Will Perish

Bob Such and Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn both had sufficient faith to stand on their own integrity. Both rose above their station in life.

I speak highly of Bob, because when I did see him in his office or elsewhere, I generally did not need an appointment, but was dealt with immediately; he spoke freely when approached; especially of the corruption within the parliamentary government. He did not need a handler to be protected from his constituency, but mingled amongst his own. He was not separate from them. We cannot expect an improvement in our political circumstances until we also stand or fall on our own personal integrity - our moral strength. Live Not By Lies

We are being herded into economic and political slavery. Does Christianity have anything to say about this?

Taxation as Confiscation

Taxation by its nature is confiscatory. Since the dawn of civilisation, government administration has always claimed the right to tax. Controllers of the Australian financial/economic system are deliberately moving us into hyper inflation. Buying a house has turned into a competition where waiting even one day (to consider the financial ramifications or anything else) may affect the selling price by as much as 100 or even $200,000. And yet, while this is occurring job prospects are going through the floor. People are not even taking a breath before possibly locking in the next 35 years of their life. Relatively young people are committing themselves to virtually irredeemable debt measured in generations, while their job prospects are measured only in days.

Our very own Pravda, (MSM) holds a deafening silence while they (in concert) attempt to nurture the coalition government across the next federal election. Independent economic commentators are in amongst those most silent masses of media, while the existing and future middle-class have their independence and self-reliance 'plans' scuttled. The current functional role of the press is one of censorship and total misinformation. They are merely different branches of the multinational medical industry's cheer squad.

Does Christianity have anything to say about this?

A Just Social Policy - Debt Redemption

It's vital to recognise that government involvement also means government interference. When our federal Labor government first argued for nationalised medicine in the form of Medibank, the argument was based around affordability of vital medical services for the poor.

Transferring the obligation from the individual to the collective has matured to the mandating of chemical injections, a digital ID that monitors everything about you, masks and social distancing, medical apartheid and in the case of Victoria nearly 263 days of lockdowns.

The affordability of vital medical services for the poor was the Trojan horse of collectivism, has now turned into the medical fascist state, enforcing medical compliance whether you need it, want it, or actively do not want anything to do with it. This social policy is a nightmare from which Germany never surfaced without metamorphosing into a major war. The same threat of war is being played out with USA and China over Taiwan. Should the money power find they are not getting their wanton rape and pillage of the world's assets, they will trigger the next world war to achieve it - unless they are overcome by an entirely new and novel awakening of spiritual and material abundance.

Does Christianity have anything to say about this?

A 'Just' social policy should be directed towards debt redemption. Further, that with continuing advancement in technology and robotics, employment, at least full employment, is no longer necessary for material sufficiency and security. The purpose of production is consumption. We have an entirely unnatural situation.

At least 20% of the population have chosen not to be injected with the experimental chemical labelled mRNA. This equates to 20% or more will be thrown onto the scrap heap of our civilisation, impoverished and ostracised until they yield to this medical tyranny. Reason has been removed from scientific and media discussion and the frenzy of misinformation continues from one issue to another. Pravda controls the crowd across one cliff and onto the next and the next and so on.

Most are not stopping to even take a breath.

Does Christianity have anything to say about this?

Election Integrity

With such an array of lies, more lies and statistics, within the News and Information services, why would we expect that we have electoral integrity?

Fraudulent-election-results have existed since before Australian Federation. Whether it's putting multiple names onto the electoral roll, deliberately taking names off the electoral roll, voting multiple times using names of those recently deceased or relocated, or simply voting multiple times under one name and risking the fine. It has always been there and never fully resolved.

In 1984, under a Federal Labor government, the Australian Electoral Commission was established. From its outset there was a direct union involvement in the decision making processes of the AEC. This bureaucracy smartly moved over to computer based systems, without closing any gap of fraud within the electoral roll. There appeared to be no political will towards this objective. A bit like illicit drugs always finding their way in.

Today electoral fraud has moved onto an industrial scale. When you consider the vested interests of an especially lucrative project with the desire to have a favourable representative covering that portfolio, election outcomes are too important to be left to the voting public. Money is no object to power over these national assets.

HS Chapman Society

The HS Chapman Society, until recently under the directorship of Dr. Amy McGrath OAM in particular, were the historical custodians towards election integrity. Since Amy McGrath's passing the society appears to have lost momentum and possibly morphed into a branch of GetUp. This has allowed the foxes into the hen house.

The Electoral Commissions have become a captured species for the good pleasure of the incumbent government in power, and associated unions involved in its management. Last year's Queensland state election saw Chinese coders writing the election software. Should China wish to exploit Queensland's plethora of natural resources, it would be in China's best interests to have a sympathetic government in power. Voilà.

Should big Pharma wish to impose a marketing strategy over the whole nation, across healthy and unhealthy alike, it would be in big Pharma's best interests to also have a sympathetic government in power. Voilà.

<https://blog.canberradeclaration.org.au/2021/06/01/could-voter-fraud-swing-australian-elections/>

Dr. Amy McGrath advocated an independent electoral Ombudsman to oversee, review and investigate the integrity of every election, to ensure a sufficiency of public confidence in the outcome. We have no such political apparatus, with the purse strings of the AEC and state based entities financially strangled for just such an outcome, to never resolve the rigging of elections.

Douglas Social Credit advocates an Open, Recorded and Responsible vote; to alleviate fraud, to ensure accountability and responsibility for policy outcomes. Policies being fully costed before the elections, and if by your vote favoured, held duly responsible.

Free, Moral and Responsible is a trilogy of inseparable virtues. We cannot bias onto one while neglecting the others. This cannot be avoided. A natural law that must be sought out, observed and obeyed - that which works best. This is what Christianity says. ***

TARGET FOR THE WEEK

Each day we are getting drawn nearer to Global or World Government and the people in positions of power realise we are more inclined to accept controls in the midst of a crisis. A good example of which has been the Covid 19 episode. It began as a China problem but soon the whole world was under threat and we were all conditioned to accept a variety of conditions imposed on us in a bid to deal with the 'pandemic'.

Riding on the coat tails of that disaster we have our Coalition Government about to deliver us into a personal global Identity scheme, the likes of which would make the President of North Korea very pleased. The three stage development as this plan progresses has already reached the final stage and yet hardly anyone has heard of it. Where has the media been?

According to the government website, 44 submissions have been received. What about the other 23 million of us who now have only less than a week to make our views known? You need not be Einstein to see how this has been deliberately kept under wraps.

You are urged to pursue further reading below. Sorry but it is now too late for a submission to the Parliamentary committee. However it is certainly a good time to let your Federal MP and Senators know just what you think of this proposal. Check the information provided and write a simple note to your representatives. Pen a few lines or phone your Federal MP or Senator asking for the whole plan to be rejected as an outright invasion of our privacy. Keep it brief - just state that the idea must be dropped because it has no place in Australia. Why do they need to know our social habits; where we shop; where we travel or where we spend our money? They have too much information now - say NO to more! Freedom is what Australia has been built on - restore it don't destroy it! -- Ken Grundy
