Thought For The Week: for I desired mercy, and not sacrifice: and the knowledge of God more than holocausts, from Hosea chapter 6:6 and is referenced again in Matthew chapter 9:13.

POWER IS ON THE MOVE, AND PALESTINE LIES IN THE ROAD

By Arnis Luks

I receive a regular news-report email from World News Daily - Information Clearing House, which is one of the very, very few News Services that legitimately report on the atrocities going on in the Middle East. In complete contrast to this reported violence, genocide and displacement of the people of Palestine is the newsletter from the Australian Christian lobby, with the headline 'Confronting anti-Semitism'. Which is more fruitful, the reporting of the displacement and destruction of the Palestinian people that has occurred across this past 106 years, or the psychological trigger words that are meant to immediately cause a halt to any legitimate investigation of the atrocities caused by the 'chosen people'?

Friends in Adelaide who recently attended the Dave Pellowe 'Church and State' forum, reported that on the first day he was all about Christian love, forgiveness and fellowship, but in complete contradiction on the second day after the latest incursion into Palestine, Dave Pellowe endorsed those atrocities and insisted all stand by Israel. We have been so psychologically conditioned by these trigger words 'anti-Semitism' that we cannot readily see the humbug in these completely contradictory points of view.

The parable of the good Samaritan Luke 10:25-37 illustrates the spiritual and moral blindness that can exist within us all. Many passed by the injured man including the Priest and the Levite, but it was only the Samaritan (a despised people) who tended the injured, took him to a place of convalescence and committed to cover any further expenditure. Who is my neighbour, I mean really, are the Palestinian Christian, Jewish and Muslim people our neighbours, or are they just goyim – cattle to be extinguished by worldly powers with no alternative voice raised?

The Controversy of Zion is the title Douglas Reed has used to present his investigation across a lifetime of foreign correspondence for some of the most noted News Services of that time. I hesitated to enter this subject-matter of the Jewish question because it was 'that hot potato'. I felt politically inadequate; however, this subject must be broached if we are to correctly assess the current state of the world and those hidden (occult) powers controlling our world. René Girard opens this topic in significantly more depth within his interviews and writings:

'The Scapegoat' and 'Things Hidden Since The Foundation of the World'.

The Jews believe themselves to be the chosen people, but are they? Some people of British descent also claim this same status. Others claim some type of dispensational status such as eschatology, predestination, election, messianic-nationalism et cetera. After reading 'The Controversy of Zion' I realise the claim of chosen is a construct and holds no legitimate standing for anyone. The Pentateuch, the first five books of a standard Bible are those manipulated texts that present the contradictory deity of blood and vengeance, in contrast to the very-nature of God as demonstrated by the life of The Christ - "he that seeth me seeth the Father also" (John 14:9)

While Jesus The Christ made special emphasis against the Pharisees, Sadducees and the tradition of the elders' teaching as doctrine the 'precepts of men', (Mark 7:7), His personal life was one of humble service towards humanity. The crowd hailed him as the Messiah on the (palm) Sunday, and yet called for his physical destruction by the Friday. His ministry was one offering a personal relationship with God-the-Father being available to all. The Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5-7) turned the teachings of the tradition of the elders on its head.

The Christian unction of service is directed to us all. This position cannot be reconciled to any chosen people of any type. Many Christian denominations also claim this same chosen-people status, I believe falsely.

He who has ears to hear, let him hear (Matt 13:9) This calling is for every person to turn to Christ, not based on race nor religious affiliation, but upon that very personal spiritual awakening to serve your brother as yourself.

Who is the greatest of all is answered here: (Luke 22:24-28)

Douglas Reed's assessment of the priestly order established around 500 BC must be studied in the light of worldly events in the modern era. No doubt this work will be considered, as its title suggests, controversial. However, if we are to make a realistic assessment of the state of the world as it is, this subject of the chosen people must be given our closest scrutiny.

Eric Butler has produced the Advanced Social Credit material which deals with the subject matter of the Jewish teachings. He has also written 'The International Jew', a study of the world-wide implementation of the 'Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion' in the light of current world events. Called out as a forgery (illegal and un-authorised copy) of the secret (occult) plan to rule the world, Eric makes an examination of the unmistakable accuracy of this document to real-events and real-policy.

Any legitimate thesaurus-study of the words Pharisee, Sadducee and teaching as doctrine the 'precepts of men', will show, they were the recipients of the Christ's most harsh criticism, none more so than Matthew Chapter 23. This is no longer surprising after reading Douglas Reed.

The Messianic-Nationalism's philosophy is based around 'the world governed with an iron fist' by this elite priesthood. The supreme deity has no real presence other than in the form of the existence of this priesthood. All others are simply goyim – cattle, even the Semitic Jews as just another group of religious peoples to dominate.

The Balfour Declaration

The US, British and Soviet foreign policy has been to support the Balfour Declaration's intent. The populating of Israel has predominantly (greater than 80%) come from the Ukraine, the homeland of the Ashkenazim people, even when the Soviet borders were closed under communist dictatorships. Very few who reside in Israel are of Semitic blood. Since the 1917 Balfour Declaration, there has been the very real prospect of this messianic nationalism's homeland-project collapsing. It is constantly being propped up by massive financial and technological aid and military protection. The 2 USA carrier strike groups, Ford and Eisenhower are currently in the middle-east waters providing military protection and supplies while the ongoing destruction and displacement of the Palestinian peoples occurs - Deut 20:16: thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth

The infrastructure and weaponry for the establishment of the 'homeland' was provided initially from the Soviet Union, indirectly sponsored by technological aid from the West. Read Anthony Sutton's many books covering this issue: <https://alor.org/Storage/navigation/Library6.htm>

Media, Pulpit and Political Silence

The obvious control and capitulation of our governmental ministers prostrating themselves before this priesthood has been on constant display.

The utter destruction and displacement of the remaining Palestinian peoples from their traditional homeland does not rate a writer's glance nor mention, nor any legitimate analysis occurring in theological colleges, mainstream media nor our many public rostrums.

Controversy of Zion

The study of this plan for the Messianic-Nationalist priesthood, together with super-capitalism and international-communism to rule the world cannot be rationally comprehended without including the fundamental subject of political and religious Zionism.

The 'precepts of men', Christ warned us about, was the manipulation of those ancient texts to suit the controllers of this legalistic order. Heresy - error you say! Read Douglas Reed's book and see again what you think of the Pentateuch, the first 5 books of the bible and what the Christ had to say against this secret priestly order.

There can be no reconciliation from the words of Christ-in-red to this Messianic-Nationalistic Priesthood.

I appreciated this work of Douglas Reed and am confident his contribution to the understanding of the nature of the political and religious world in our time is enhanced by his research on this illuminating subject.

Douglas Reed's work is worthy of examination across this holy season. It will cast off the fluff and confusion and clarify the Christian faith by uncovering its occult – hidden opposite. This is my argument against the tradition of the elders who have grafted themselves onto differing peoples to control them. Jesus spoke Truth, including the most critical examination of the Pharisees and Sadducees. He drove the moneychangers from the temple, and highlighted the root of all kinds of evil as being the love, or preference of money above all things.

We regress from these True principles at our peril. Indifference brings about our own demise. When we do not seek the Truth, but rather turn away from Truth, this ensures we shall regress into the dark ages, another era of barbarian-ism and brutality. An honest examination of the Pentateuch against the words of Christ-in-red, detail an irreconcilable theological chasm across these two philosophies - serving the individual or the chosen group.

From The Inside Covers:

“The work of Douglas Reed is from a unique individual who was placed in a position of observation of political events across a lifetime. Douglas Reed who described himself as relatively unschooled, started out in life as an office boy at the age of 13 and was a bank clerk at 19 before enlisting at the outbreak of World War I. The less promising preparation for a man destined to be one of the most brilliant political analysts and descriptive writers of the century could hardly be imagined. He was already 26 years old when he reached the London Times in 1921 as a telephonist and clerk; and he was 30 when he finally reached journalism as sub-editor. Thereafter there was no stopping this late starter. Three years later he became assistant Times correspondent in Berlin before moving on to Vienna as Chief Central European correspondent stationed at Vienna.

Reed broke with the Times in October 1938, almost simultaneously with the appearance of a book which was to win him instant world fame - Insanity Fair, a charming combination of autobiography and contemporary history. This was followed a year later another runaway best-seller, Disgrace Abounding. Other bestsellers followed in quick succession - A Prophet At Home, All Our Tomorrows, Lest We Regret, Somewhere South of the Suez, and Far and Wide.

After Far And Wide Reed was virtually banned by the establishment publishers and booksellers, but he emerged from his enforced retirement as a writer in 1966 with The Battle for Rhodesia, followed by The Siege of South Africa a year later.

The controversy of Zion was written by Douglas Reed when at the peak of his writing career. It is the product of more than three years of full-time research, much of it carried out at the New York Central library, and drawing on sources not easily accessible. He combines with information acquired in this way all the background knowledge and experience of a former London Times foreign correspondent who observed political developments in Europe at close range over a number of years.

The book is written in a tone of sympathetic understanding of the situation in which millions of Jews have found themselves down the centuries, and he explores at depth (drawing much of his material from authoritative Jewish sources) central moral issues over which the Jews themselves have frequently been deeply divided and which have always involved the possibility of dangerous alienation from the mainstream of mankind.

Many will find that the real issue which set up violent antagonism between the Founder of Christianity and the Pharisees has been made clear by Reed, with quotations from Biblical and Talmudic sources, reinforced with others supplied by Jewish scholars, both ancient and modern.

Religious information and interpretation acquire an extra dimension of interest and importance when said in proper relationship with historical developments from before the Babylonian captivity until the modern times. For Reed shows once again how news of contemporary political happenings, which many people have given up trying to understand, can be rendered instantly intelligible when presented in the total historical context to which they belong.

Much of the revisionist history to be found in modern Conservative literature, like that dealing with Alger

Hiss trial, the persecution of Sen Joseph McCarthy, the Yalta Agreement, the Nuremberg Trials, the Morgenthau Plan, et cetera has been amplified and eliminated and fitted into the grand mosaic of more than 2000 years of human striving and suffering.”

Civilising Norms

Even in war, there are acceptable civilising norms - chivalry, bravery and honour, as was demonstrated by Alfred in the ninth century against Guthrum at the Battle of Eddington in 878. Historians consider him the most perfect king of the Middle Ages for his piety, justice, and noble vision of a better future for all his people. Alfred promoted law - the Domeboc, education - setting up public schools, and also reforming the military with the building of a system of burghs or strongholds over all of a Wessex.

In considering the demise of our own culture, I must take into account the secretive political parties' system as a significant mechanism to produce a deviation from representative government - democracy. Unlike in the days of William Cobbett, whereby he opened the obscure Parliamentary discussions by faithfully recording debates and regularly publishing them, the political party-room is today off limits to the public record. All debates are held behind closed doors, and as to how each politician votes in these chambers remains a secret-mystery. The political party members exit the party room and go into Parliament to vote as a block, with little or no discussion available to the public record for further consideration.

They mask their true intentions and hide behind the party machinations. To deny conspiracy, that is people working together to bring about a predetermined outcome, is simply romantic and not accepting the truth of the situation. The political party system is founded on conspiracy and continues to this day. We must look elsewhere for resolution to this dilemma of failed representation in our government.

To Criticise, But Not Actually Influence

Similarly, monopolies controlling the media in today's modern forms, conspire to bring about a predetermined result. That the government financially supports all these various forms of media through direct subsidy or tax-relief, reinforces this biased perspective of reporting, to bring about a predetermined result suitable to the sponsor. From around the 1600s, pamphleteering was the dominant form of inflicting a biased perspective upon the crowd. I can only imagine what these pamphlets looked like considering the significant number of illiterate people of that day.

I noted the critique of party-policy by certain individuals within their political party. When I read the statement 'to criticise, but not actually influence', I realised this was just another form of sophistry - a sophisticated manipulation to bring about a desired result, namely increased membership of their own political party.

I fear for Sen Jacinta Price having been prematurely promoted to the ministry to campaign against the Voice. I am expecting that she will be betrayed by the party-machine as soon as it is in power - to implement a pseudo-Voice that will produce the same result as Labor proposed. Once in a ministerial position, the incumbent (Jacinta) is duty-bound to adhere to that party-policy regardless. Offers already coming to her from the MSM are other forms of this same poison chalice.

Pauline was doing particularly well with their own in-house media until she was beckoned towards the fox news outlets. No doubt her input and comments are significantly drawn into the 'long grass of no account'.

That political party no longer provides a genuine alternative perspective while she holds front-row billing (that endorses the political view of the owners of the outlets) - 'to criticise, but not actually influence'.

The latest PHON media release criticises Labor policy being against our farmers, but selectively ignores the 'get big or get out' trumpeting from the coalition of the communist inspired 'North-South Dialogue'; emanating from the former Chancellor of West Germany and President of the Socialist International, Willy Brandt and the Randt Commission across the 1970s and 80s under Malcolm Fraser, John Howard and Doug Anthony, until now. This is further evidence of being drawn into the quagmire of conspiracy - working together to achieve a pre-determined outcome. The next issue of OnTarget will be our final for this season, having already concluded the final Broadcast and Podcast earlier this week. I want to thank all those who opened their homes during the tours around all our Australian states. It was a privilege to attend and participate in the many kitchen-table and public meetings. The plan going forward is to consolidate from here and hold state-seminars and other training events as and when required for each state, as well as continue on with the Kitchen Table Meetings. I encourage you all to use this Christmass break to recharge your batteries and enjoy fellowship with family and friends alike.

There are many further initiatives ready to go, to open up Australia to the unique ALOR message of freedom with responsibility in a moral environment - regenerating of our limiting constituted government, and many other initiatives to restore representative government as democracy. God willing, we shall together make significant inroads into the restoration of our once bright future of the 'new times' in a world of plenty.

God Bless - Arnie Luks ND.

BASIC FUND

The Basic Fund traditionally closes at the time of the National Weekend for the League which was around October each year. I am making a call to those who planned to make a donation but maybe have over-looked doing so. The fund has not filled this year so it will be wonderful if we receive those last minute donations. As always, we appreciate the contributions, no matter how large or small. Each donation is really a vote of thanks for the work of the League and a tribute to the dedicated work of those in the 'engine room'. Please note the appropriate address and/or banking details below to send a contribution.

BEQUESTS

Apart from the Basic Fund, the League is a recipient of bequests from supporters who remember us in their Will. These extra dollars help a lot and while we are grateful, it is unfortunate that on those occasions we are unable to personally express our thanks. Best details for establishing a bequest are available from HO. - ND

OUR POLICY

To promote service to the Christian revelation of God, loyalty to the Australian Constitutional Monarchy, and maximum co-operation between subjects of the Crown Commonwealth of Nations.

To defend the free Society and its institutions -- private property, consumer control of production through genuine competitive enterprise, and limited decentralised government.

To promote financial policies which will reduce taxation, eliminate debt, and make possible material security for all with greater leisure time for cultural activities.

To oppose all forms of monopoly, either described as public or private.

To encourage all electors always to record a responsible vote in all elections.

To support all policies genuinely concerned with conserving and protecting natural resources, including the soil, and an environment reflecting natural (God's) laws, against policies of rape and waste.

To oppose all policies eroding national sovereignty, and to promote a closer relationship between the peoples of the Crown Commonwealth and those of the United States of America, who share a common heritage.
