

Constitutional Barriers To Serfdom (Eric. D. Butler)

Available for purchase at <https://veritasbooks.com.au>

The tragedy of these critical times is that the individual does not understand that the question of individual rights and independence is directly connected with the idea of a Constitution of some description.

Undoubtedly the most urgent task of all is to rally the entire community to defend the existing Federal Constitution, which stands as a barrier to the policies of the totalitarians. Persistent educational work is urgently required to make the community "Constitution conscious."

This address is primarily for Social Crediters, and those who are not familiar with the technical details of what is commonly known as Social Credit will not hear a great deal about money. But I would assure them that what I have to say tonight is interwoven with the money question.

Major Clifford Hugh Douglas,

M.I.Mech.E., M.I.E.E., consulting engineer, economist, author, and founder of the Douglas Social Credit Movement, was born in 1879 and died in 1952. Among other posts which he held in his earlier years were those of engineer with the — Canadian General Electric company; Peterborough, Canada, — Assistant Engineer, Lachine Rapids Hydraulic Construction; Deputy Chief Electrical Engineer, Buenos Aires, and Pacific Railway; Chief Engineer and Manager in India British Westinghouse Company; Assistant Superintendent, Royal Aircraft Factory Farnborough (GB).

During the First World War he was a Major in the Royal Flying Corps and later in the R.A.F. (Reserve).

After retiring from his engineering career, he and his wife ran a small yacht-building yard on Southampton Water for several years. The combination of beauty with functional efficiency in a successfully designed racing yacht had a special appeal for him. When he lived in an old water-mill in Hampshire he used the water-wheel to turn a dynamo which lit and warmed the house as well as providing power for lathes and other tools. Later, when he moved to Scotland, many of his friends and followers remember helping to build his small hydro-electric-powered house, sited on the local burn which ran through his land. Since decentralisation of economic power was of the essence of his teaching, it should be put on record that he practised what he preached.

One of his most interesting jobs, just before the 1914 War, was that of conducting preliminary experimental work and preparing plans and specifications for the electrical work on the London Post Office Railway, with later supervision of the installation of plant in what was to be one of the earliest examples of complete automation in the history of engineering.

Institutions exist to serve Individuals

Accepting this statement (systems were made for man, and not men for systems) as a basis of constructive effort, it seems clear that all forms, whether of government, industry or society must exist contingently to the furtherance of the principles contained in it. If a State system can be shown to be inimical to them it must go; if social customs hamper their continuous expansion - they must be modified; if unbridled industrialism checks their growth, then industrialism must be reined in.

That is to say, we must build up from the individual, not down from the State.
