"Restriction of Output is Sacrilge" say the Dean of Canterbury and Father Coughlin the Radio Priest

TWO SIDES OF THE NEWS

Party Leaders on Social Credit

THE Edmonton correspondent of The Times wrote on September 23:
It is said here that earnest followers of Mr. Aberhart are now in all good faith trying to pay bills and make purchases on the strength of anticipated Social Credit dividends.
The other side of this picture is provided by the following report, which shows that earnest callers of goods are offering to sell to earnest followers of Mr. Aberhart on the same basis.

Calgary Firm Takes Payment in 'Dividends'
A Calgary firm was doing business Saturday for Social Credit basic dividends and challenged other business concerns to follow suit. A newspaper advertisement offered to do any greenhouse or repair work "brought, moved or shipped," it to the customer's account Mr. Aberhart into power with an overwhelming suit, a newspaper advertisement offered payment on instalments at the State Credit House. Mr. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals in the Dominion Parliament, has delivered himself of this sweeping utterance: "No sane person can the Dominion, account to the firm's account does not need the same basis.

The Newfoundland Threat
Again
And upon Mr. Aberhart's decision on matters of policy must rest the fate of Alberta's future. Either he must operate the affairs of this province sanely and soundly, and proceed to do so by drastic retrenchments, or he mustWithin a few months, he is prepared to hand over the administration of our affairs to a commission form of management.

The latter might not be entirely a misfortune. We have too expensive governments. Our provincial legislatures, which should not function other than provincial councils, have become imbued with an exaggerated opinion of their importance and powers. It is time to get down to earth, and while any necessity for reverting to a receivership or commission course might grate upon our pride, perhaps nothing short of this can be effective in restoring sanity in our public affairs. Will Alberta get down to business, or must Alberta follow Newfoundland? - From the "Peace River Record," Alberta.

The Oil Situation in Alberta

The appointment of Mr. C. C. Ross, of Calgary, as Minister of Land and Mines has been much applauded.
"He knows the oil industry from A to Z," a said D. Austin Lane, secretary of the Oil and Gas Association of Alberta. "The oil industry will take great satisfaction in the fact that for the first time a minister has been appointed who is thoroughly familiar with conditions."

Mr. Aberhart has shown great interest in the development of Albertan oil, which is one of the means of accumulating foreign exchange, which was advocated by Major Douglas in his Interim Report.

The Federal Elections Draw Near
Some idea of the virulence which may be expected in the party political fight may be obtained from the following references to Social Credit in Mr. Aberhart's in the opening speech of the Liberal candidate for East Calgary.

He sees it as "either a frail and ill-considered variety of state socialism with the objective camouflaged or a scheme of unparalleled confiscatory taxation on a wholesale basis. . . . What we now know as political freedom will vanish."

Contempt of Democracy
In spite of the fact that democracy has put Mr. Aberhart into power with an overwhelming majority, Mr. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals in the Dominion Parliament, has delivered himself of this sweeping utterance: "No sane person can believe Aberhart will do what he has promised, or that it can be done."

The present financial system is anti-Christian, anti-American and un-British, since it does not provide social justice and individual security.

The Dean of Canterbury, who recently landed in New York on his way to Canada, immediately contended with Father Coughlin the famous radio priest of Detroit.

Father Coughlin, as readers of this paper will know, has a weekly audience of so many millions that he needs a staff of over a hundred people to deal with the correspondence. These two have issued a joint manifesto condemning the destruction of foodstuffs, and calling for a scientific money system in order to prevent war.

"We consider it the duty of every Christian openly to condemn restriction of output as one of the worst traits of sacrilege," says the manifesto, quoted by Reuters.

"The world has sufficient goods to give everyone in Western civilisation a good standard of living."

"The present financial system is anti-Christian, anti-American and un-British, since it does not provide social justice and individual security."

The Dean has been invited to attend the opening of the Alberta Legislature on the first Social Credit Government in the world will sit for the first time. He is not conducting his speaking campaign in Alberta, where victory has been won, but is making spots in the other great provinces of the Dominion.

Take Care

A PERUSAL of contemporary journalism would lead one to suppose that the sole object of man's existence is material production... For this reason it is necessary to examine any proposal for the rectification of the existing situation with at least as much care as the policy now operative. Political democracy without economic democracy is dynamite. The need to abolish poverty, not to require it."

A MONTH ago the Dean of Canterbury announced the opening of a Victory fund in honour of the first Social Credit Government in the world.
The following sums were received by Tuesday, September 24. All contributions will be acknowledged in the Canadian Forum, only under name of donors if desired:

SIR JOHN ORR has put the cat among the pigeons of Westminster. During the Great Economy Campaign towards the end of the war, when the prices of many things were being driven up the pound for the Sterling Pound declared there was no such thing as mal-nourished children among the inhabitants of these islands.

But after the battle was over, medical reports of starving mothers and under-nourished children became so frequent that at last the Ministry of Health sent out none of its servants to the highways and byways to make inquiries into their condition. What these experts had to say was so sensational that the Ministry of Health had to set up an Advisory Committee on Nutrition, with Sir John Orr as a member of it.

But the question itself, it seems, has not had a sound financial training. He actually thinks that marketing boards should try not to keep their prices too high, and that the Government should hold all the food it can. In fact he says, "The provision of food is as much an essential public service as education or the making of roads."

There is worse to come. Instead of echoing the medical experts, who have calculated that the Unemployed Stomach can be kept alive on 5s. a week, he thinks that the Unemployed Stomach can be kept alive on 5s. a week. This is a statement so startling that even a genius like Mr. Bennett can't help asking himself, "What's the use of trying to maintain the present financial system?"

The author, Mr. J. B. Candill, reports that the "economic outlook at the beginning of the year is brighter and more cheerful than it has been for a year or two, partly because of the general improvement of the balance of payments and partly and largely because of a decrease in the price level in the past six months." This is a statement so startling that even a genius like Mr. Bennett can't help asking himself, "What's the use of trying to maintain the present financial system?"

One year before the war, Mr. Orr thought that the Union would be faced with difficulties in the way of "acute and prolonged economic distress." He thought that the Union would be faced with difficulties in the way of "acute and prolonged economic distress." But the Union has been faced with difficulties in the way of "acute and prolonged economic distress." And it has been faced with difficulties in the way of "acute and prolonged economic distress."

The controversy that has arisen between the Milk Marketing Board and the distributors is not the least of the difficulties that the Union has had to face. Farmers have been getting a odd, a gallon for their milk, whereas, in some districts, they have been receiving as much as 17½d. a gallon. This is a matter that the distributors are prepared to put farmers one halfpenny a gallon more, and for this a strike is threatened.

Incomes and Prices

By R. L. NORTHBRIDGE (From the "New Hampshire," abridged)

The Milk Board have announced their more recent estimates of the amount and sales of milk in our county, and before your Entomology Committee, the importance of periodical exhibits, such as we have with us now, the success of the movement of the earth—

"Galileo (under whose protective eye) has made an important discovery, a new planet."

I have made an estimate of the loss a quid could sustain in the case of the milk crisis. The chief commodity of all is milk, and I am asked to find an amount of the same...

"Milk is the basis of our agriculture and our industries."

It would be profitable to the country to proceed with the manufacture of milk, and to make a...
A Nice Cup of Tea

Our rapid growth is already beginning to be reflected in our advertising columns, and I sometimes wish you would support the paper to benefit from their action, and can ensure this by buying from our advertiser.

You, Mr. Reader, can now feel a certain satisfaction when you shave each morning by using the razor of a supporter, and then afterwards donning a shirt made by a manufacturer who has undertaken to spend every third day so can through yet another. Or a Socialist can spend either at the cottage of an ancient Socialist, or at the hotel of another.

As every reader drinks tea from one to five times a day, and in rare cases incessantly, while all readers wish to fund the Society of the Secretariat, we make apology for calling special attention to what the Choa Hari Tea Company has to offer.

What a terrible idea, but a delightful. But the comfort goes on. And if we weren't born without a di. -

Two Suggestions

(1) Complimentary copies of Social Credit. I receive complimentary copies of periodicals of real interest, and I consider a good method of increasing circula- tion is to see if our friends will do the same. Last year I bought a copy of Social Crediters, sent to me, at my expense, for four consecutive weeks, to three clubs. They went all right from the publisher with our mentioning my name.

(2) Appeal for donations: There was a correspondence in The Times recently on plea for funds for Social Credit, and the respon- se was quite satisfactory. I might have sent a subscription to our funds, afraid experience has taught them not to accept anything, or IS h~ poor because nobody man. ... But this man is the trusted guardian of the public purse. There is no such thing as "free" thought, for, as practically every reader does, the doctor was in progress, drawing the architect's designs. What a terrible idea, but a delightful. But the comfort goes on. And if we weren't born without a di.

Watch Carefully

I have here in my hand a piece of paper, four inches long. I have ruled it into four equal parts, one of which I have shaded. Now, watch me very carefully, for I have quite a lot up my sleeve.

Social Crediters sometimes ask the rate which production bears to consumption, and it is at 1:4 to 1. Let that complete piece of paper represent the National Production, and let the 4 inch represent the dark part, is the National Consumption.

Now, from the Socialist point of view, the worker's share was but one-third of the National Consumption, the farmer's two-fifths being retained by the capitalist. Well, we'll cut off one-third from the shaded part. So here you are, comrades, here's what you get of the National Consumption.

(Loafing laughter.)

Why in the name of all that's sacred you laugh. I don't know. If a man strike his full potential, he will be that fact that as many as nine out of ten are satisfied with, and have a really adequate supply of good food, clothing, shelter, and what not. The possibility of even cultural education was noticeable in art, music, literature, and the like, evidence of education. But most fearful of all to the scientific investigator, was the impossibility of even cultural enlightenment. A philosophy of life that begins at four o'clock on a sunny day, paddling your own canoe, virtuously working with your muscles, and ends with that undulating conception of leisure, the weekly half-holiday, Later, more dating, sprouts the weekend theory of recuperation, and were there seen a #/#, who, while in a lifetime took a five-

What About It, Canada?

It is a very little use trying to prophesy the outcome of the current elections, which are to be held in less than three weeks, and the issue is still rather indefinite, and even observers on the spot have to confess themselves beaten. Not only are the opposition parties not very happy about their prospects, but the Conservatives seem to be resigned to defeat. "We are not out to win," says the Prime Minister, "we are simply going to try to hold on to the power we have," and the C.C.F. are trying to work up an election campaign which will be the boldest and most effective in Canada's history.

Alberta riders from the United Farmers Party, the U.P.A. members at Ottawa have already thrown the gauntlet down to the Social Crediters, and there are considerable more outspoken supporters of the C.C.F. than there are of the Conservative government, and a working agreement between them and the C.C.F. is not too difficult to arrive at. The Stevens Party will probably draw its main support from the Right Wing of the Conservatives, and from the Social Crediters, while the Tarasoffites will be strongly represented. Abartaher should not be too difficult to arrange. If the C.C.F. are pushing for the P.M. at Ottawa, and if the only gauges, say, a thousand dollars for each man for every dollar the C.C.F. spend in the election season, then the prairieites go for Social Credit, there would be a working majority in the House. The Conservatives opposed to orthodox financial policy to make things extremely difficult for a Liberal Government. In particular they would find it impossible to coerce the province of Alberta by force major, even assuming that a case could be made out for doing so. Let us be thankful that the money monopoly still finds it necessary to work through the forms of democratic government.

An Open Sore

I shall not waste readers' time by going into all the details of the C.C.F. campaign, but I must say that I am very glad to see the enthusiasm in the prairie provinces, where the Social Crediters are making a very strong showing. The party has a very definite programme and is able to appeal to a large number of people. The party is very much in favour of co-operation among farmers and is trying to create new industries, putting men back on the land, etc., etc., etc.

NEW ZEALAND ELECTIONS

To be more on Monetary Reform

There will be more to say about New Zealand's near-future elections, which will probably be held before the end of the year, and a lot will turn on the fortunes of the two monetary reforms. If anyone feels inclined to doubt it, I quote from The Times of September 20: "For some time the pendulum which may be violently deflected by the time for organisation, while the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (Socialist-Communist) shows little strength outside Winstanley, the Social Credit party is only now beginning to nominate candidates in this territory (Manitoba and Saskatchewan) and seems to have left itself inadequate time to establish itself. While the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (Socialist-Communist) shows little strength outside Winstanley, the Social Credit party is only now beginning to nominate candidates in this territory (Manitoba and Saskatchewan) and seems to have left itself inadequate time to establish itself.

Even of getting a working majority of federal politicians.

The Guernsey and Other Experiments

T HIS pamphlet* gives detailed accounts of the monetary experiments of Guernsey, Schwanenkirchen, and Wreg, and the authors are to be complimented for including within one short pamphlet all that is to be known or need be known of these historic attempts to break out of the control of a money monopoly.

The circumstances of each case were similar and mainly consisted of a job which was urgently required to be done and no money to do it, except by way of a loan and consequently debt. Each of the experiments was made to escape interest payment, and within that limited scope all were successful within a limited period of time.

Social Crediters, however, will note that the modern financial problem is not merely the provision of more money for producing, but the provision of increased purchasing power for consumers. The question: "Where is the Money to Come from?" is of secondary importance to "Who Should Get the Money?" In this sense it is unfortunate that many able minds, having acquired a knowledge of the anatomy of the money system, should have stopped short in a daze at the banks.

In so doing they ignore the whole social problem represented by the facts of poverty, wage issues, and the possibility of economic freedom for the individual Douglas, taking monetary technique in his
