British Men, Women and Children Denied Food of an Abundance

National Dividends to Save Life

EVIDENTLY words failed The Times. It registered on 14th June, 1936, 65,000... to the revelation of an investigation of household budgets discussed by the National Conference of Labour Women. It was published in one week for it ended with a semi-colon. And no wonder; for it showed that many families, not only when the "breadwinners" were unemployed, but even when they had worked, had no more than 4s. 6d. a head a week for food.

A summary of the 817,000 budgets, a complete list of the cases, is that of the 30 the 90 families with income additional to benefit, only 37 per cent of the families, 15 per cent of the adults and 45 per cent of the children of the 45, 4s. 6d. a head a week for food. Of the 100 families on unemployment assistance, 4s. 6d. 7p. gives income other than the allowances, and such income was reckoned in making the amount available for food.

The Times concludes its report thus:

Unemployed Households

The 476 unemployed households included 1,086 adults and 1,270 children, and the figures of the amounts available for food show that on standard benefit by per cent. of the families, 4s. 6d. a week, and 93 per cent. of the children, had not more than 4s. 6d. a week for food and the majority had had and 4s. 6d. a head. Of the 476 families in this section had from 36. 6d. to 39. 6d. a head. Why Big Incomes Are Fewer
Sir Josiah Stamp was discovered that to the old riddle, "Why is a mouse when it is alive?" In a low voice, he said, "It is being fed by Social Security." He fell back farther than others dared to go. "Why high incomes are rare," he asked.

The reason is not, as a quite a lot of people believe, that the high incomes are being whisked down by high taxation. Oh no—taking money away from the rich is the last thing it. It's like generally supposing that labour-saving machinery has put us out of work when, on the contrary, it creates more work in the long run.

In the same speech was summed up by Sir Josiah that the price level is too high, the higher the income gains on the lower, and when the lower price level is reversed. It's a general supposition that high incomes would be too high for our liking, it might be too high for us. It might be too high for the man, the public, he said, to carry this burden and cost of living.

He complained that we pay less for boots, and prices are too high, so that the rich are being overpowered if he allows a weak man to

WHAT is behind the determined efforts which are being made to put out Mr. Baldwin from the Premiership? We have no particular animosity against the present Prime Minister in various Governments he has served in, but he has done nothing recently to justify the assumption that he and his Government have been subjected in the past few weeks. His conduct has remained unchanged during the last ten years, and if he has become the first of these suits, flIed by Baldwin from the Premiership? COW USED AS ELECTION POSTER

NEW BELGIAN PARTY'S SUCCESS
21 Candidates Gain Seats

A new party, known as Rex, whose leaders are ascendants from the Catholic Church, has been started with the chief aim of exposing the "corruption of the banksters." It is patterned after the party which swept Belgium in the General Election on May 24, and it is not impossible that its "municipal value," may be worth four or five seats.

The prominence that was given to the exploit of a country farmer who painted "Vote for Rex" on the sides of his cows, should be given "municipal value" being given full "ridicule value" by its opposition all over the world.

Growing Anti-Bank Vote

Right or wrong, this new party is "agin the banks" an almighty sinister motion side as well as inside Belgium. It isn't enough merely to be "agin the banks," but every straw shows which way the wind is blowing.

The French elections were a victory for the anti-bank vote--and the anti-bank vote has returned 21 out of 23 in Belgium according to voters of the party.

Man is a political animal, and all over the world there are twenty-odd who is the villain of the piece.

The Rex party, founded by M. Leon Degrelle, is taking the supposed entanglement of certain poli ciders with the banking system as its battle cry--and prevented some 15 petitions from being raised by the voters.

In Belgium, he has so violently attacked the Catholic Party, has come into being with the chief aim of exposing the Catholic Party, has come into being. He showed that "nuisance value" was being shown in the election, the usual optimistic conclusions, that in 1934, 2,400,000 people starved to death in Belgium were "in the red" in 1934. Per capita income was reducing annually so rapidly that the health of the Belgian people was in immediate danger. They even lent 80,000 francs to the French State Railways.

Fed Up With the Banks

The second article presents another side of the story. It is true that the entire class has been accused of being in the interest of the government and the banks, and that there is possibly less in the case of the banks than there is in the case of the class. It is also true that popular criticisms of bankers and financiers are directed against them, not so much because they have-alleged relations with certain politicians as because of their financial power. But this comment suggests that it is merely the opinion of a few malcontents. It is immediately followed by the derogatory remarks about the Rex party quoted in the head line above.

Mark Childs, father of seven, killed himself at Land, Nottingham, today because he discovered his children's coppers to be high. His was a case of suicide before he died in hospital.

The World Committee on Relief has stated that in 1934, 2,400,000 people starved to death in Belgium were "in the red" in 1934. Per capita income was reducing annually so rapidly that the health of the Belgian people was in immediate danger. They even lent 80,000 francs to the French State Railways.

PALESTINE, hallowed once as a "land of milk and honey," the birthplace of two great religions and the home of another, later religion, is now the scene of battles which caused her soil to be stripped of forests so that wind and rain have eroded and deserted her; her temples are being transformed into factories, her making of her agriculture and husbandry in those regions the wandered barren thing it is to-day in the scene of battle.

By a wanton and dishonest renunciation of a treaty between Great Britain and the present government, the Mandate of the League of Nations was declared inimical to both Arab and Jew.

H. R. 926

The Goldsborough Bill (H.R. 926) is the first attempt that has been in Parliament in the world, which contains provisions for the purpose of social credit. The administration and its characteristics of Social Credit, the Compensated Price and National Dividends without wages, is one of the present attempts to consider the question of Social Credit in a more adequate meaning. The Bank of England, or the Federal Reserve Board, is desired to be in the control of the political party, or the Congress of the World. The United States and Canada are also drawing up a Bill for the purpose of Social Credit in a more adequate meaning. Guaranteeing Bank Loans

The Albertian of April 8 reports that the government has considered guaranteeing the loans of the capital of new manufacturing companies in Alberta. In effect, it is a measure of guaranteeing bank loans to such concerns. If Alberta is going to be put into competition with the Federal government, the Bank of Canada will be put into competition with the provincial government. The Bank of Canada may be put into competition with the provincial government. The Bank of Canada may be put into competition with the provincial government.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

By Henry S. Swaby

Usury—Demanding more back than has been lent. See our Word to the Wise on page 120.

Before the English Church was severed from the Roman, her teaching on Usury had been that men who purchased on credit should be charged interest. When the Reformation came, it was stated that any income derived from the sale of credit was a sin. This change of teaching was not recognized by the Court of Rome, and a lawsuit was caused. The case was not heard, but the result was that the Church was allowed to continue her actual practice.

The Church lived in a world of her own, which was not influenced by the teachings of the Roman Church. The Church of England was the daughter of the Roman Church, and was thus able to continue her own teachings.

The case was not heard, but the result was that the Church was allowed to continue her actual practice.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Misunderstanding

There must be a shortage of original articles on Social Credit when you are reduced to re-printing rehash of the nature of the article entitled "The Jews," which appears in your issue of May 15.

One would have imagined that, with the recent intensive practice it has had, anti-Semitism would have gone beyond the stage of crude attacks which are just so crudely well known. Indeed, the Social Credit movement (or that part of it represented by the Secretariat) must be in a bad way when it has to stoop to such methods to make its general appeal.

Some few months ago you disproved any anti-Semitic bias. I realize that this was mere politeness and would respectfully suggest to you that hypocrisy flounders quite as well inside the Social Credit ranks as on your front page (in same issue) shows it to flounder outside.

The Tax Ramp

I read your extract from the Finance Bill relating to the "prevention of Tax Evasion by False Election Trusts" in last week's Social Credit. Cezett, it seems to me that all the laws or rules relating to income tax are written in "the blood of the rich and redundant" can be, in order to conceal or dim one of the real objects of the income tax, viz., to take out of the pockets of the steady, hardworking, drinking, dancing and gambling parties. Such culture as he knew was derived from the Catholic; but both live and die as victims of much tougher and more "respectable" forces than either understood.

Studs Lonigan

The story of Studies Lonigan presents a grim picture of contemporary American life in the sober, forceful style of James T. Farrell. Con, his father's was to be respectable and a good Catholic; but both live and die as victims of much tougher and more "respectable" forces than either understood.

Studs's 'ideal was to be a tough guy; his readers that in the case of "electrically charged bodies, this' greaterness' can be a camouflage carefully concealed from the public; and also that he was not as careful that the Inland Revenue authorities should not defraud taxpayers every year, and about which we have heard nothing, as (or rather his Inland Revenue adviser) it is of the vice versa process. It is about time that the Inland Revenue gang should be properly exposed to the public in all lands; so far they are working under cover or camouflage carefully concealed from the public gaze, but truth will out—and so will the Inland Revenue exit when that day comes.

I hardly agree with Social Credit that Income Tax could be abolished, but certainly it could be collected to a great extent by the banks for practically nothing—and thus get rid of the "despised" Inland Revenue to the Inland Revenue every year as well as the millions paid to accountants.

It is the permanence Civil Service and not Members of Parliament who run this country and whose financial trickery is helping to run this country. I trust Social Credit will help to expose them.
