The Truth About Spain

Spain has gone mad, just as, at almost any moment, the world may go mad. And to what end? That a policy of compulsory work for all may be imposed.

This is the truth behind the struggle: that whichever side wins, the people of Spain will lose such vestiges of freedom as they enjoyed before, for the policy of Fascism, like that of Socialism and Communism, is—Work For All.

Only the personnel of the dictatorship and, to some extent, the methods will differ; the results will be much the same for the majority of the Spanish people.

What Do The People Want?

If it were possible to make each individual Spaniard forget the struggle for one moment, and ask him or her—'What is it that you want more than anything? Is it not individual freedom and security?'—who can doubt that the overwhelming majority would answer: 'Yes, that is what I want.'

But they have been too long to believe that they can obtain their desires only at the expense of some at least of their fellows, and by some particular mechanism which few, if any, understand.

The lie at the heart of the party system of government—that one side can benefit only at the expense of another, when really there is plenty for all—that lie has precipitated civil war in Spain.

Doomed to Dictatorship

The false democracy which requires people to vote for programmes they do not understand, instead of demanding results which they do, has made it quite certain that, whatever else happens, Spain is doomed to dictatorship.

Sharing an Insufficiency

How long will it be before similar things happen here? How long will people consent to live half-starved?

Or will history repeat itself, and the question of who should govern Spain lead to a European war for yet a third time?

These are questions time alone can answer; but should war come between the Fascist and the so-called democratic states, let us be sure of one thing: it will be a war over who should have the larger share of an insufficiency, although there is plenty for all.

Atrocities

Since the outbreak of the civil war the people of all countries have been subjected to a flood of propaganda, the like of which has hardly been seen since the lie factories of the opposing nations in the great war closed down.

All the old atrocity stories of the last war have been dug up, and to them have been added new ones. These atrocities, one paper tells us, are being committed by the Fascist rebels, and those—often strikingly similar—another paper says, are the work of the red supporters of the Republican Government.

The truth is that war itself is an atrocity, and 'atrocities' are an integral part of it.

Rumours

We are told that if the rebels win, Spain will become a Fascist state, and, by agreement with Italy and Germany, will close the Mediterranean to us, thus cutting off our ships from Iraq oil, Egypt and the short route to India—the Suez Canal.

Again, other papers tell us that the success of the Republican Government in suppressing the rebellion means the spread of Bolshevism infection through Europe. Yet other papers warn us that, at all costs, Great Britain must take no part in the dispute, that a policy of splendid isolation is the only one to pursue in a world in which isolation becomes increasingly difficult.

Facts

In this welter of latrine rumours, propaganda stories, and inspired suggestions as to the policy that should be adopted, certain facts stand out clear and undeniable.

Towns which are famous for their artistic treasures are, or may be at any time, in ruins. In town and country, north and south, the bodies of those who a few days ago were men and women and children lie about—dead.

Attack and counter-attack, and a town changes hands, a victory is acclaimed or bewailed—but always bewailed, whichever side wins, by fatherless children and the widows.

Above all, the warring factions and suffering civilians, the constant threat of air bombardment, and the dread that, sooner or later, one side or the other will sink to using that most tempting of all weapons, because most deadly—poison gas.

Such is the state of Spain today, and such may be the state of this country tomorrow if we do not act, for 15 million people will not be content to suffer slow starvation in silence—indefatibly.

When people have nothing to lose except a degraded existence they are ripe for any madness; and every man and woman in that 15 million, and many more besides, are in that condition today.

A Message of Hope

We can bring to these people, and, by doing so, to the world, a message of hope.

We can show them how to make their will—that these conditions be abolished—prevail.

Not by bloody revolution, nor by voting for a party label, but by uniting in demanding through their representatives in Parliament—irrespective of party—the results they want.

This is our opportunity to bring harmony to a distracted world. This is our responsibility as intelligent men and women.

Should we fail to act and act now, we must accept a share of responsibility for the catastrophe we thus make inevitable.

The Barnley Mine Disaster

The answer—the final, clinching human argument, and in the Barnley mine disaster, the final, clinching note, is provided by the heroic miners who volunteered to go through the fire and smoke there to introduce Social Credit.

At least 160 men were trapped by fire and smoke, and among them were those who were trapped by fire and smoke. They were all called upon, all those who were trapped by fire and smoke.

WHY DON’T WE SUPPLY THE TOOLS?

(A) Because our Supplement will not sincerely interest those who are not fighting under the direction of Major Douglas—they being nearly always an army of women who usually take it for

(B) Because we cannot give increased service to those who do not support us at the expense of those who do.

(C) Because we cannot send unlimited Confidential Supplement through newsagents, and we cannot add to our costs by posting the Supplement separately.

A LITTLE DIFFICULTY

Those who have written in pointing out that they have been taking the paper regularly from a newsagent are requested to pass it on to their订阅ers or to a New Reader.

The immediate object is to increase the sales of Social Credit over the newsagents’ counters, and any Cadet can, for the offering, obtain from “Publicity” this office suitable forms for transacting orders and placing new ones.

The newsagents are our friends, and no existing order ought to be cancelled because a subscription has been made to conform to the requirements of Cadet qualifications: transfer it instead.

In the House of Commons, on July 30, Sir Kingsley Wood, Minister of Health, was asked whether he had seen a report of the medical officer, showing that 93 mothers in every thousand in South-East Lancashire, are suffering from under-nourishment, and what he was going to do about it.

Sir Kingsley Wood replied: “I am considering the possibility of extending the health service in shops, and in particular, the supply of milk to mothers and young children.

He might as well throw a glass of water on a blazing house, while the firemen are awaiting his orders to get on with the Electoral Campaign, which is explained on our back page. If it was not there at once, it will be there always. It will be there always.

The officials of the Social Credit Secretariat Limited, published this additional Supplement for Douglas Cadets only, referred to in the above.

The address by Major Douglas at the Social Credit study course for Conservatives held a few months ago in the Convent Ashfield Park, on July 26—an address which was of interest to the students.

The address contains a review by Edward Hewlett of the purpose and achievements of the Social Credit Secretariat; the first instalment of M.W.’s review of Social Credit progress overseas; a commentary on the Douglas-Alberta correspondence; articles by B. THE BIG ISSUE

FRUIT SYRUP
Another Addition to Abundance

It used to be: "Eat more fruit!" Remember the slogan that went round the world? Now it's: "Drink more fruit!" Not a slogan yet, but it may easily come about shortly.

They're why! After years of research work methods have been discovered of using up those over-ripe fruits—naively squabbly stuff, you know, that never appears palatable but is just the same good fruit—(...) which has been kept too long.

Fruit juice is being made into "liquid fruit products." Whereas it used to be that the cider was the only big sale drink made from fruit, now, juices, syrups, squashes, wines, liqueurs and even fruit milk shakes are available.

A new industry has been established, and fruit which would otherwise have floated out to sea, is now in demand as liquid refreshments.

A New Version of Old Hymn
We plough the fields and scatter the good seed on high;
But it is fed and watered by God's almighty power.
And when the harvest ripens, Thine, and Thine alone,
We count it nothing strange that the very crumbs of the loaf are with us.

Labour Saving or Making?
A girl with a machine can make 6,000 roses a day. Unemployed barbers can make more work when they get started in a chain store.

MISERY FROM DEBT Slavery
"It is possible that there is more human misery resulting from the price of one thing than there is anywhere as the result of domestic slavery."

But Experts Disagree
"In the less fortunate areas the children who are dependent upon the scale ratios will be inadequately nourished... some farmers are being forced to sell for cash rather than barter." But others say that the additional flavouring needed by loganberry syrup and in the other by strawberry syrup. The specific gravity of each is slightly lower than that of Chartreuse and Benedictine.

UNFAIR
At the circus the strong man dipped a young woman in water and then squeezed until every drop of water was squeezed out of it. He invited any one who wished to be so squeezed to operate another drop of the sponge. Several men tried it without any result.

A Member of the audience recognised the man, and shouted: "What is your secret? This man is an income tax collector."

A National Dividend is money to buy the right to live. It is now desired and the production that is restricted.
WASTED LIVES

By R. L. Duck

very few people at the present time are really assured of anything. They are like平方 in square rounds, living beings that do not know to themselves but to the community as a whole.

How much more could be accomplished if all people were given a chance to show how much better the work would be done? For too many people are made to work by compulsion, and we all apply ourselves best to that which we enjoy.

There are, of course, jobs that one would think no one could want to do, but humanity is too great for even the few unpleasant tasks when inventors have found mechanical ways of supplying food and harvesting fresh sources of power to take the place of those which, like coal, are dangerous and polluting.

As present so few have the time to consider work, for most of our waking hours is so meagre that on receiving it we are lucky if we can settle outstanding debts. A world where there is no money would be so much better, and harnessing fresh sources of energy would make it possible for us to fight a war and obtain fresh sources of nourishment obtained, by 50 per cent. of the people.

Instead we have a world of business; for the necessities of life, we look forward continually to feed the press with soothing other things. The are allowed 8. h

THE POWER AGE

We Now Live in an Economy of Abundance

The The Result of Technological Development

TECHNOLOGY means the study of ways to do things and especially the systematic knowledge or science of the industrial arts, the more diverse and complex of which is machinery or equipment.

Technology made the movies talk. It has made possible a road-making machine which, in sixty seconds lays as much hard surface road as formerly took a crew of men many hours. It is responsible for a brick-making machine which will cut 400,000 bricks per man per day whereas the former rate of production was around 1,000. It has created in the United States machine power equal to the combined output of the world's steel mills in 1750. It produces the steel and glass and machines and the various unions of the skilled workers who have been dependent on them for their living, for more than 100 years, are now feeling the cutbacks in some manner as allowing them to starve, or, more humbly, placing them all in a large leathal chamber and turning on the gas.

The last measure as unthinkable as certain savages, we are faced with the alternative of a technologically dispositioned, thinly disguised as government employees, of changing our economic system in some manner so that these people can work, live comfortably and in security, and pursue happiness to the extent of their capabilities for capturing that elusive blue bird.

We Have Left the Machine Age

Why has our present system, which has worked after a fashion for 150 years, broken down? Why has the purchasing power of the consumer decreased to the place where it is in trouble? How has the material base for the consumer's economic security been eroded? The problem is no longer one of production but distribution. That is an extremely thorny problem which is yet to be solved is evidenced by the efforts of the New Englanders to restore mass purchasing power by regulation of business, new taxation, work projects.

Shall We Retregress?

If we do not keep pace with our technological development, our new economists have warned us, and establish a real economy of abundance, we shall choose to live in a world of scarcity, pain and blundering. It is not possible for us not to regress. Fascism is a cloud on the horizon of the political development.

The Premier of Portugal is reported by the Daily Telegraph to have said: "We know that in Great Britain Parliament does not govern."

Dr. Salazar, who is Finance Minister as well as Premier, should know what he is talking about, since he also represents the Central Bank. But he did not say who does govern. Perhaps the government of the United Kingdom, the Governor of the Bank of England, for Mr. Norman himself has defined the relationship.

If expos the on the silly pretence that a Parliament, as it at present manipulated, has the power or influence or social power over a Government whose the rabidly denounces the loss of the political power of the old conservative class thinly disguised as government employees, as a nation becomes pretty thoroughly industrialised, one might and be "perhaps the most successful of the political institutions was liquidated in some manner such as allowing them to starve, or, more humbly, placing them all in a large leathal chamber and turning on the gas."

CORRESPONDENCE

A Means of Recruiting

I live in a new district, and, as it is rather difficult to get to know people, I sent my copy of Social Credit to my sister, Chester each week by post to the next consecutive number. I intend to do so indefinitely of the road twice. This hope means with your approval, as I have no time for canvassing.

Harold D. M.E.

[In the circumstances this is an excellent way of recruiting. It is in at least ACTION—Ed.]

A Suggestion

I am looking forward with great interest to the first meeting, the first number of the new Supplement to Social Credit. Chester next Friday. Wonder why it seems to me so much a good move is that there is bound to be more room essential for teaching in the public interest.

BOOK REVIEW

Summer Time Ends

The author of this long novel of nearly go years ago has made a well-known protagonist against the crumbling tragedy of poverty in the mid-Victorian society, and by taking a cross-section of society he has given an accurate picture of the lives, loves, hates, frustrations, bewildermens, despair and hope of a multitude of characters, all real and recognisable as types of the scene in England to-day.

A review cannot do justice to this book, it’s far too big in its scope, for there are in it half a dozen stories—sequences intertwined, whilst the book is packed with vignettes of amusing, charming, pungent, picturesque and other characters. It is a wonderful story of how the little people are held in the back street, the farmyard, the parson’s mothers’ meeting, the industrialist’s breakfast table, the heart and mind under the stars with a lady and lust. Meanwhile throughout, Mr. Hargrave is ruthless in his parson’s mothers’ meeting, the industrialist’s breakfast table, the heart and mind under the stars, with lust.

A Suggestion

It is an excellent idea to have the following subjects for discussion will provide the basis of the main sessions of the Conference:

- The mechanism, the mechanism, the mechanism.
- The middle-class successful shopkeeper, the middle-class successful shopkeeper, the middle-class successful shopkeeper.
- The great novel, the great novel, the great novel.

For all these reasons and more, the new Social Credit Artistes are needed, and Mr. Hargrave is ruthless in his parson’s mothers’ meeting, the industrialist’s breakfast table, the heart and mind under the stars, with lust.

I am sure that you will find it interesting to read this book.

YOU, like the rest of us, have hopes and ambitions. You want to live a full life and your efforts are all directed not towards protecting yourself and your family, and then to be free to live the life you want to live. To protect yourself and your family from the grinding, exhausting, debilitating disease you think you live. You know that your efforts, although we are not being allowed to enjoy it, we live in an age of plenty. For science, applied power and organization have produced more than can be produced for every person's wants. Political parties are of course still in existence and are therefore physically possible for you and everybody else in Britain. But, you want to solve this problem, and thereby remove the chief cause of war. Greater and more urgent than this, of course, is the abolition of poverty. But a few Social Crediters persistently hold the idea expressed in the above quotation, "The meaning of democracy is to get by the experts of the country for the abolition of poverty and the issue of National Dividends and to vote consistently against any party trying to put any other law-making before this." For to assume that a political campaign is to be a battle with the在一个...
Douglas a Conserver

THERE are at least two reasons for the special pleasure I am afforded by the opportunity to address you. Perhaps the lesser of these is that, to the extremely small extent that I can be said to have any party politics, I am convinced of my opinion that this is a conservative country, although it has been for many years, and is, governed by Whig policies. If I can do even a little to awaken you to a consciousness of what I mean by that, I shall be very happy.

ENGLAND'S Best Prime Minister a Catholic

And the second reason is that this institution is a memorial to probably the only Prime Minister we had in this country for many years who gave any public evidence of competence or understanding of the problems with which Great Britain at the world are faced. It was a misfortune of the extent of which is difficult to estimate that he was so long precluded from service to us. We might be in a very different situation to-day if Mr. Bonar Law had been Prime Minister during the past 15 years.

You will gather from what I have just said that so far from coming to you as a propagandist of subversive doctrine (an idea which financially on the one hand, and politically and morally on the other hand, I am, in my opinion at least, the last person to advocate), it is a conservative opinion in this country has been opposed and is opposed by support of policies which are traditionally alien to it and to the vast majority of the political opinion. This conservative opinion would repudi- ate, and I am sure of its reasonableness.

Whig Policies Hypocritical

Nothing would be more misleading, in my opinion, than the picture of the policy of this country was and is a Whig policy. Now I should like you to do two things, Hon. and I am sure you have done and would have been Prime Minister during the past 15 years.

those things that we call civilization - the actual making of these things is being done. But there is no expert system that can make me pay for it, the making of money, by which alone these things can be transferred from hands to others. The two things that we call civilization, the making of knowledge, and the making of money, involve no real concretion of that knowledge or of that money, at all, not even as an illusion.

It is exactly the same position as you may see in the case of a group of people being provided with trains, rolling stock, and railway stations - everything in fact, including both men and materials, fuel and everything to go on the railway - and you had a totally separate system of development, interdependently connected with the railway system at all, which had got control of the ticket office and was making its own terms in regard to the tickers, and was saying: "We don't care how many seats in the train there may be; we don't care how many people want to travel on the train; we don't care how many tickets, restrict them, increase, destroy them, destine, or do anything that we can do, because we have the discretion of the best policy from the point of view of everyone who populates wants to travel on these trains, even if we choose to unaccommodate these trains, well, that's just their bad luck. They may or may not travel, and that is the best policy."

That is not an exaggeration of what is happening in many parts of the world, and in many parts of the world, there is a condemnation of any organisation in particular. It is just a plain statement of the conditions that we obtain at the present time. I am certainly not a member of the public, as an engineer I have an appreciation of the economic conditions. I find it incredible that a stable society can persist founded on a system that cannot even be preserved so that it has been perpetuated on society.

Bankers' Hypnosis

It is one of the tragedies of this fixed society upon which we have put the system of credit and the control of information in all its forms - education, public affairs, books, newspapers, all interdependent, and it is obvious that in the process of its development and increase the financial hierarchy of this control of the public opinion, the public opinion into channels which will buttress the unpopular and maintain the popular, and I am going into asking for what they do not want to be asked, or they do not want to think of. That is of the re-pro, we who think the matter into technical detail there is no a large bibliography available, and the case can only be better pursued in this way. The case for the proposition that (a) provision shall be made for the purchase of all consumable goods without the expenditure of money, or (b) that the debt created by the public and the private debtors (which Mr. Hawtrey calls "money"") is not secured on a predatory banking system, thus providing the inroads that the security they have earned, and in which the public business as a whole, we are scaling the depths of this civilization.

may safely say that there is no completely satisfactory way of doing it, in which we are not satisfied with thought and personality of Major Douglass.

Douglas: "Students Fit to Hand TORCH"

Some of you may be more thoughtful in the sense, the kind of shock that I experienced when I heard Major Douglass. I am wondering whether what Major Douglass was saying to me is going to say."

I did not understand it at all, after the best way of seeing the objective that was in the case of Major Douglass. I was talking to a person with me, and agree that it is always the common means of which we should demand money.

It is a piece of rehabilitation and the release of imprisoned sardines, and the bringing of natural strength. It may be that to some it is a piece of rehabilitation and the release of directing activity as new life itself.

Why a Secretariat? (Continued from page 5) the interest groups have been created through the manipulation of all concerned. It is important to control the creation of "blocked marks." Neither those who reject action, not and those who do not wish to be included, in which case they do not wish to be included, to be included in a policy with which they disagree. Despite what you may. I intend to do. What you want is a new order of things, that we should not fight against.

Making it More Difficult

So complicated has the financial situation in Germany that no expert seems ready to attempt a description of it. The Index to the "blocked marks" which are still Agreement.

The major Douglass would have operated to assist the foreign trade. This exchange-oriented bloc, which is in the process of being described, for its inhibition to selected exporters by allowing "blocked dollars" in Alberta only.

It may be that to some it is a piece of rehabilitation and the release of directing activity as new life itself.

The different kinds of "blocked marks", "blocked dollar marks", "blocked marks", and "blocked dollars" for the exchange-oriented bloc, which is in the process of being described, is the different kind of blocking of foreign trade by country or bloc, any country or bloc, for example, Russia, China, Sweden, Germany, France, and other countries.

The practical for the people, it is when the bloc is effective, which includes having money all over Canada, for example, for the drinkers who are free to give to others to spend their money, and to be paid, and to fall in with the terms of the proposed Albertian A of a Stand-

Secondly, there are those who would be inclined to take some further step, the only reason for the existence of a committee is to help us in bringing Social Credit into being, and to do so we are responsible for the selection of the proper person to carry on the work, and it would be more suitable to another executive chief. Should this person be the chairman, of course, resign the Chairmanship in order to work to several purposes.

But a realistic view of the facts would be a challenge to any who are emboldened to secure the end by any means, to be achieved. The chairman has to be regarded as out of place, in the situation. The "New Era"

Any report on Australia would be incomplete without a mention of the action of Mr. Barcley-Smith in connexion with the dismissal of Major Douglas, as reported in Social Credit for June 14th and 28th. As reported in The London Times (July 14th), Mr. Barcley-Smith was reported as saying that Sir Frank Pakenham is prepared to support the dismissal of Major Douglas, and that the action of Mr. Barcley-Smith in connexion with the dismissal of Mr. Aberhart is a step in the right direction.
