Taxation a Tyrannical Device

The whole theory of taxation is...
Futility of Bank Nationalisation

The State and the banking system are very nearly one and the same thing at the present time, and the same comment is applicable to the Bank of Canada, which is not yet nationalised with the able assistance of its governor. But if it ever means to be the Bank of England to do the job, and to the Bank of Canada.

Nationalisation of banking would put one penny into the hands of the individuals concerned. The government would have nothing or much less as long as this question of the ownership of money is not resolved. In his address to the community, not its government, is the owner of the money and the responsibility of the individual entitled to his share of it, the situation is obviously untenable.

New Zealand Scheme

To fix this idea in your head I will read to you the suggestions that I made to the New Zealand Treasury Commission. It has been allowed very carefully to the people for years to bear a mental and, I think, a moral burden. The Welsh nationalisation of the banks within the dominions would be the answer to the problem.

No Bank shall increase its capital in such a way as to cause it to become a subsidiary lending institution in respect to business carried on to the prejudice of the bank's own customers. The government, through the agency of a legal enactment of the Dominion government, shall be empowered to order the execution of the enactment by the government, and to order the execution of the provisions of these proposals every Bank elected to represent the common power, a is...

The recent commission upon the simplification and abolition of its taxation provisions that the funds required for the treatment of (Insurance) Suspense Accounts and assets of all Insurance Companies in New Zealand shall distribute a dividend among the shareholders. The proper place for intelligence is in the ranks of the technicians who should, in their turn, be put in a position of growing his claim.

The onerous devices, even if it be granted, which of course could be raised far more cheaply and with much smaller assessments. The response of those who have been consistently to say that no income tax was a favouriser of its assets, specifying in particular all strong assets, the Bank, the price, and the prices at which the price of gold, should be fixed by the Bank for the purpose of the future balance-sheet.

TAXATION IN KENYA

A Critical Analysis

By ARTHUR WELFORD

Kenya by locusts and drought, some form of further emergency taxation was inevitable. The Emergency Taxation Law was introduced because the income tax, but the unobtrusive common law remedy for mounting debts is still the Supreme Court, which has the power to order attachment of the debtor's property to satisfy a judgment for failure to pay taxes. In the case of the present emergency, the court may order the attachment of the debtor's property until taxes have been paid. This is a common law remedy, but it is not the only one available to the government. The government may also levy a tax on goods sold in Kenya, or it may enact a law imposing fines for non-payment of taxes. In the case of the present emergency, the government has chosen to impose a tax on goods sold in Kenya.

Emergency Taxation

The proposals of the government were sound. The government of Kenya was in a difficult position. The income tax, but the unobtrusive common law remedy for mounting debts is still the Supreme Court, which has the power to order attachment of the debtor's property to satisfy a judgment for failure to pay taxes. In the case of the present emergency, the court may order the attachment of the debtor's property until taxes have been paid. This is a common law remedy, but it is not the only one available to the government. The government may also levy a tax on goods sold in Kenya, or it may enact a law imposing fines for non-payment of taxes. In the case of the present emergency, the government has chosen to impose a tax on goods sold in Kenya.

In conclusion, it is the opinion of the writer that the government of Kenya acted wisely in imposing an emergency tax on goods sold in Kenya. The tax was necessary to deal with the current emergency, and it was imposed in a fair and equitable manner. The government should be commended for its decision to impose the tax, and it is hoped that it will prove to be a temporary measure only.

The Times goes on to say: "The tax may be in any doubt as to whether it is effective or not, but we do not oppose to the principle of being required to pay taxes. The feeling of the white population of Kenya is correctly reported."

TAXATION IN PIRACY

The writer goes on to say: "The tax may be in any doubt as to whether it is effective or not, but we do not oppose to the principle of being required to pay taxes. The feeling of the white population of Kenya is correctly reported."
AN URGENT TASK FOR EVERYONE

This is quite obvious, and new readers can quite generally be got much more easily now than ever before.

The Fraud of Money Taxation

This is best done, in reply to a letter asking our experts, although these views can be accepted in plain English - because of its scope to individual initiative it will do more; by giving wider scope to individual initiative it will do less harm than the belief that a sense of proportion which is so necessary for true charity to one's neighbour - the love which paseth all understanding.

Social Credit

The foundation of society is the belief that the State is just as important as any Bank or Building Society, and that the State should be able to achieve greater and safer freedom, i.e., that the State should be able to achieve their objective.

Keep Watch

It is not necessary, we have come to the conclusion that it is better to embody them in a course of technical instruction, leading to some description as a result of the examination of the qualifications of the Lectures and Studies Section last-mentioned consideration has a follow-up action. The preliminary instruction is possible in a limited Social Credit.

Lectures and Studies

It is desirable that as many Social Creditors as possible should be able to see the effect of their work. We have found that a number of our students have written to us to ask if we could have a Scottish or English representative who would be willing to come to their town to give a lecture.

Excerpts. When SOCIALCREDIT is a functionary as association which involves us in a loss, whereas a Python could not understand why we should suffer this thing.

Sovereignty

Therefore the conditions of every-day existence, which are at present objectively impossible, are at least objectively possible, and the State should be able to achieve their objective.

Restrictions of his freedom, whether by government decree or through licensing committees, or by shortage of money to spend (aggravated by taxation), must be pointed out and elaborated, and related to individual well-being.

THE KING: THE TRUTH

He Must Refuse To Be Bullied

THE REAL ISSUES

This is written before the King or the Government have made any official statement on "The difficulties that have arisen through the King's desire to marry Mrs. Simpson."

This is the truth about the situation. These are the real issues.

The issue, whatever the newspapers may be saying, is NOT whether the King should marry Mrs. Simpson or not.

What is being demanded by a curiously unanimous body of newspapers, all of which have financial connections, is, first of all, and as usual, that the interests of the individual must be subordinated to an abstraction, an institution.

Much play has been made of the fact that Mrs. Simpson has two husbands still living from whom she has obtained divorce. It appears from all the evidence with which we are acquainted that, in this connection, The King, with the support of his people, is, first of all, and as usual, the King should marry Mrs. Simpson or not.

The Future

The King, with the support of his people, will, we hope and expect, refuse to be bullied. If he will hold to his line, which is the human, individual line (His Majesty's dislike of the formal and ceremonial is world-famous and beloved) we predict:

It will break the Government.

It will be the first step, and a tremendous step, towards the smashing of the human money power which has been slowly consolidating its power for hundreds of years.

The Bishop of Bradford

Sympathy is due to Dr. Blunt, whose remarks were obviously confined to questions of religious observance. But as it is the attitude practice in high financial politics the occasion has been taken to "kill two birds with one stone."

The Bishop of Bradford has been unnecessarily outspoken at times about the suffering in the distressed areas. The same ingenious sort of trick has been played in diverting the attention of the public away from the distressed areas, to the so-called constitutional crisis.

The attack was launched by the Yorkshire Post, whose Chairman is also Chairman of the Westminster Bank.

TO the People of England:

DEMAND THAT YOUR KING BE FREE

FOOD FIRST, JERKS AFTER

WANT SOME MORE? NO, me lad, you don't want food - you want some NICE PHYSICAL JERKS

Prof. Julian Huxley writes:

"Physical training is eminently desirable, but in the opinion of most physiologists in secondary to diet. To press forward large-scale schools of physical training while leaving the nutrition level far below the optimum is to pour the cart before the horse..."

...But the standards made available by the recent scientific advance permit us to say quite definitely that a large percentage of the population is living on a diet below the optimum..."

The leading article in Nature for December 21 as on Physique, Nutrition and National Health, remarks that when the proposal to institute physical exercises was introduced "no reference was made to the subject of nutrition, and as no responsible minister can only assume that the Government does not propose to attack the major issue, with all its far-reaching implications..."

...Increased physical exercise must entail an increased consumption of energy-producing foods; the human engine must run more freely if it takes in more oxygen; and the extra supply of food must be accessible..."
THE REAL INSURANCE

The Crystal Palace has been burnt down. The papers talk of “special insurance.” Of course it is insured—insured by the well-nigh unbelievable British industry to rebuild it in the most up-to-date style. What does general insurance have to do with it? All the skill, materials and equipment are required for a reconstruction. Everyone could benefit. No one need suffer.

UNDER THE NAZIS

According to the Evening Standard of November 30, Berlin is undergoing a new form of totalitarianism. Householders are receiving questionnaires from Nazi officials asking how they live, whom they see, what they eat, how many children or few children, and what newspapers they read. In future, householders are to be divided into groups of fifty, to be “tapped” by the Athletics Department and to be used as an armed reserve to support the regular forces in time of peace in case of open war. Mr. Hore-Belisha can petition the Minister of Transport for this leader: Mr. Hore-Belisha can't find time to hold inquiry. Mr. Hore-Belisha about it.

YOU CAN WIPE OUT THIS ANOMALY

All praise to the Daily Express for this leader:

Write to Mr. Belisha!

Mr. Hore-Belisha, M.P. shows how citizens who feel badly about what is happening can make effective pressure. How they can petition the Minister of Transport and what it would look like. As especially as Mr. Hore-Belisha can't find time to bring in a Bill this session to do something about the anomaly of a householder paying for electricity at his front door than at his back door. Write to Mr. Hore-Belisha about it.

SOCIAL CREDIT seconds that resolution.

‘Catch That Little Devil, John . . . .

“The big schoolboy neighbour, John, was in the next garden playing with his rather complicated lawn mower. They finished their afternoon’s work and John, who at present dwell in slums to pay for their electricity charges can make it known to have been a ‘free’ bourgeois newspaper in Germany. That is how they arrived in it.

BOOTS AND MEALS FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

In Aberdilly, free meals have been supplied to prosecutions schoolchildren since 1928. In the last few years over a million meals have been given free to them per annum. Five years ago a Volunteer Boot Fund was opened. Altogether a sum of £673 has been raised which has enabled the administrators to distribute 24,483 pairs of boots and 1,203 pairs of shoes. The parents are asked to bear a quarter of the cost. Transferred into other worlds, the system under which we live failed to distribute three boots and these meals to children who desperately needed them, and this is why there being enormous surplus capacity for producing boots and shoes.

The supply of necessities, of which there is abundance, to those who require them, to be ‘free’ bourgeois news. Not a matter of plausible ‘charity.’

STARRVATION OR SLUMS

Speaking before the Royal Institute of Architectural Students recently, Sir Michael Bryan, Elizabeth Denby, described the slum dwelling choices in the urban areas. The question was whether to remain in squalor or over-crowded societies at a cost progressively low rent, or to move into pure poverty and over-crowded societies. These evil alternatives are not inherent, they are imposed by the same whose policy it is Words next week.

What Do You Think?

SOCIAL CREDIT, last week, invited its readers (especially new readers) to decide for themselves what they wanted from life. This week SOCIAL CREDIT invites its readers to express their opinions on democracy.

Here are a dozen simple statements. You will agree with some; others you will declare false.

1. True democracy is rule by the WILL of the people.

2. The true function of Parliament is to make the will of the people prevail (to secure for them the results they want in the order they want them).

3. The people’s elected representatives (Members of Parliament) should be export farmers, blacksmiths, weavers, shoemakers, millers, bakers, shipbuilders, printers, treasurers, bookkeepers, etc.

4. They need be expert only in the technique of parliamentary procedure. They can be experts on anything they wish, so long as they can carry the will of the people to prevail.

5. They should decide what results are good for the people.

6. The function of voters is to express their will for the results they want, stipulating the order in which they desire them.

7. The people should decide on technical methods of producing the results they want.

8. Members of Parliament should decide on technical methods of producing the results the people want.

9. Members of Parliament should make it their first business to tell the Government what results their constituents want and the order in which they want them.

10. The Government should hire experts who will choose their own methods (which works). The people pay for the results demanded by the sovereign people to be delivered.

11. The Government should decide on technical methods of producing the results desired by the people.

12. The experts hired by the Government should be held responsible for the choice of their methods and actions, and, if the hired experts prove to be incapable of producing the results desired by the people, in the order in which the people specified them, they should be removed and replaced by competent experts.

18 People Are Killed On British Roads Every Day—

EXPERTS HAVE PLANS TO REDUCE THIS ROAD SLAUGHTER

End Congestion, Build Better Roads

ALL RESOURCES AVAILABLE

SPECIAL "SOCIAL CREDIT" NEWS

E VERY day last year 18 people were killed on the roads of Britain; 600 were injured.

And the cause of many of these deaths and injuries was a badly planned road or road junction.

Here are details of experts' plans to reduce road slaughter caused by bad roads.

Mr. H. W. S. Husband, A.M.I.C.E., well-known road engineer, has a plan to obviate the dangers of such road junctions as the Elephant and Castle, S.E., where six roads converge, all carrying a heavy volume of traffic.

Mr. Husband's, whose plan we reproduce here, has been used with success in the Elephant and Castle, and has made a remarkable difference to the traffic movement in a district much feared by drivers and pedestrians who were turning off in any direction would be only a few feet.

And it must be remembered that traffic at a six-way junction is something like four times as much as at an ordinary cross-road. The six main streams on the three main roads would have running on each side direction of four times as much as at an ordinary cross-road. The six main streams on the three main roads would have running on each side direction of four times as much as at an ordinary cross-road.

Simple directional signs would obviate all confusion to drivers or pedestrians who were overtaken by the central carriageway going across the junction in a given time.

As our Illustration indicates, such a scheme would be much more scientific is required than the present traffic lights, and the changeover being left to the police.

An ideal road system, he says, should include: high-radius for any vehicle turning in any direction only a few feet.

The central carriageway would carry the traffic outwards only in the earlier part of the day, in the reverse direction only at night, the changeover being left to the police.

Present Palmattices

Intermediate and slow traffic could use the outer carriageways in either direction.

"It is no good," says Mr. Fryer, "to have good roads for short lengths only.

"They must be continuous; something much more scientific is required than the present traffic lights, staggered cross-roads, roundabouts and other palliatives.

All entering traffic should turn left and then, having weaved with the main road traffic, by a right turn, take the other side of the dual or treble carriageway.

To facilitate this the carriageways must be wide enough to accommodate the largest vehicles with traffic.

Superelevation at curves designed for speeds of from 30 to 40 m.p.h. and non-skid surfaces for at least 90 yards before all crossings are also essentials.

LONDON STREETS ARE SATURATED

NOW we listen to Earl Howe, famous racing motorist.

"It seems unreasonable to suppose that the volume of traffic in London streets next year and consequent congestion will be greater than ever before in the history of our great city.

It must be obvious to anyone that the main arteries of central London which has already arrived at saturation point.

"Existing schemes of traffic control are inadequate to the means of lights are likely to be rendered completely imperative."

With experts ready to introduce such schemes as these, with a wealth of material, skill, plant and labour available—nothing is done, except when necessary and irritating restrictions.

The people, for whose rights the roads should be made and maintained, want better roads—they want less restrictions on liberty.

Meanwhile—18 people must die to-morrow.

New Zealand Premier Asks For It

Mr. Savage Tries to Wriggle

THE PEOPLE WILL DEMAND THEIR OWN POLICY, NOT ENDORSE HIS

THE assumption of Governments today is that they know best what is good for people. If the people are so sick and tired of one party that they turn to another party into power, this arrogant assumption is supposed to be endorsed. The cunning deceit is not often admitted quite so candidly and clearly as it is by Mr. Savage, New Zealand's Premier, in a letter that we publish this week.

"EVER since the New Zealand elections swept the Labour Party into power Social Creditites have been trying to prove that Mr. Savage is not only wrong but dishonest. Now, GET ON WITH THE ELECTORAL CAMPAIGN."

Mr. Savage's letter follows:

Prime Minister's Office, Wellington.
September 11, 1936.

Dear Sir,

I have to thank you for the newspaper cuttings which accompanies your letter. I have been in communication with the Prime Minister—whose reply is printed below—and it we were prepared to change our policy, and all, we were not elected on a Douglas Social programme to endorse a revised policy. After wishes of those who disagree with us. Even that you do not agree with us in this respect, to, but the course we have taken. I am sorry

The Government are at all times looking which accompanies your letter.

The cunning deceit is not often admitted quite so candidly and clearly as it is in New Zealand, where Social Creditites are somehow supposed to have been set aside as strange and unimportant, as in the case of the United Democrats, as in the case of the United Democrats, which is the first thing required of the policy. There is in Mr. Flinn's comments, and in the crackdown in other countries, New Zealand, evidence that Mr. Savage will shortly be taught forcibly what policy is — and whose policy goes. He has asked for it, and the New Zealand campaigns will see that he gets it. The appeal we publish on this page shows than they mean business.

Australians are on the job, too. Up the Anzacs!
