THE New Year Message
FROM THE DEAN OF CANTERBURY

THE New Year cannot be faced. "The mind seeks what is worth-while objects, and a worth-while object has seldom been better expressed than by Dr. Albert Schweitzer in his last book as—"the maintenance of life at its highest level and the furtherance of life. The maintenance of one's own life at the highest level of becoming more and more perfect in spirit, and the maintenance at the highest level of another's life by sympathethis helpful self-devotion to it."

Schweitzer practises what he preaches. As the逻辑ian and musician of world-wide fame he yet devotes his genius to human life and administers a humble hospital in an African forest. Schweitzer is great and wise enough to aid the most needy, for no solid and lasting advancement in life is made save on a common front. Those backward Africans matter whose start is important. None can move far in advance of the rest. If we can safely advance if we neglect my family and friends. Neither can my class or group safely advance if it neglects other classes or groups; nor my nation if it is heedless of the fate of other nations.

The Christian religion, which is rated to the last degree, bids us consolidate our advance by tending those who are held up by lack of the elementary needs of physical life, food and clothing and healing. The landless, the undernourished, over-harrassed millions, which still constitute an army that could coalesce our island home should they join hand to hand around its whole coast-line, to hand around its whole coast-line, to hand around its whole coast-line, to hand around its whole coast-line.

I desire with all my heart that Britain shall possess and enjoy a wider culture, a more leisureed, a more leisured, a more generous, a more free and democratic, a more beautiful, a more joyful and spiritual life, but I know that the starting point lies right down there in the physical needs of the undernourished masses and in their freedom.

Plenty, and freedom with it, is possible for all the people without added taxation is the possible achievement of modern industry. But it will never be realised until you and I, the common men, and the plain Christian, rise to the height of our responsibility and demand that what is to be done shall be done. At the behest of Him who came to give life and to give it abundantly let us act, insistently and without delay, and pave the way for happier years.

GIVING evidence at the inquest on the body of one of the Railwaymen of the R.A.F. killed in a crash near Helden Bridge, Yorkshire, Flying Officer P. C. Collin Hilton admitted that 'two saloon cars in the line to Borden were fully equipped with instruments for blind landing. The airplane—a bomber—was one of a dozen which were officially approved. The inquest is to be held at Finsleying, near Doncaster. Only one arrived at its destination, the other 11 crashed or landed in fields.

This incident, as reported in Social Credit, demonstrates the need for some representative to write to C. Howard Jones, Jude, Kingsley, Bordon, Hants.

CHILDREN CANNOT FODDER?

THERE always seems to be some demand for women that he really cannot answer the question of what her life is likely to contain. Will she be strong? Will she be happy? Will she be useful? Will she be content to serve and be happy?

The fact that she is helping to keep up the population of England is not likely to occur to her.

I ONCE heard a man tell a gathering of young women that he was ready to send his only son out to the colonies because his colonies and his family should not be left unoccupied.

They received his remarks with silent contempt. They simply didn't believe him. Women know that systems are made for men, not for them. Systems are there to serve the Empire.

The reason for having children is to keep up the population of England. All of which is false.

When a woman first thinks about having a baby she wonders what sort of life her child is likely to have. Will he be strong? Will he be happy? Will he be useful? Will he be content to serve and be happy?

The social system that every advance in toleration to religious tolerance, and it is by a change in the social system which affects inheritance and hopeless, at least immediately, hence it cannot be radically changed. Changes will be limited to so minute a fraction of our population that the social system which affects inheritance and the falling birth-rate and the general feeling of insecurity that prevails in this country can be changed. To change human nature is to change the social system. Do not make the mistake of regarding the conversion of a few into whom we are not supposed to be able to put our debtors. Under this Act nobody is supposed to be imprisoned for debt unless he defaults on his promise to pay his creditors.

What makes it difficult is that the Statists also demand a new Statist economy. This new Statist economy means loss of money. The first step is to raise wages. After that comes the Statist demand that the Statists should be allowed to buy a few apples and a few onions. After that comes the Statist demand that the Statists should be allowed to buy a few apples and a few onions.

The obvious question is: How are we to change a system that refuses to change?

FINANCE THAT CAUSES WAR BY

THERE is obvious and acute poverty.
Most people have less than they want.
Innumerable individuals fear the loss of their jobs, which means the loss of their rights to existence. The war, which means the loss or burkgage of those rights, seems likely to continue. The whole world fears war.

The novelist is full of good novelties.
authors want to see in the public who want them
but cannot get the books.

The factors are full of good novelties.
The manufacturer wants to sell to the public.
Transport undertakings, and all who provide services of any kind want to sell goods and services that it strives to export the goods and services that it strives to export.

There are not enough buyers to the market. The mistakes that nations, businesses and individuals make is to try in getting rid of their goods and services.

Credit is based on universal affluence—the very thing EVERYONE WANTS.
The false world is the world of credit.

The first thing to do, therefore, is
for every man to demand, CLEARLY AND UNIVERSALLY, to see all the available goods
and services, all the available universal
money or other effective dials which will enable
people to get all the goods and services
that are now being wasted or restricted.

There are not enough buyers, wanted, or restricted in production, are around of the world that want more. The nation who wants less, or has more wealth, wants less.

Power of Finance

The way to abolish war, then, is not to abolish nations and set up a super-state perured by the Bank of International Seflvement, but something which is almost the reverse of this.

Society, security, economic insecurity, cut-throat
commercial competition between nations—
all these arise from the unnecessary struggle to get a "living" when all that goes to make good living is artificially being kept in short supply. Upon this shortage rests the power of Finance, which at one and the same time creates a war situation and cunningly offers as a remedy for Finance-controlled Internationalism.

Thus the comedy lies in abolishing the artificial shortage.

This can be done by distributing the wealth of nations among their peoples, who should demand the National Dividend which is entitled to. The people and not the monopoly will do the producing of the goods and the services which will make the people prosperous. Nations are systematic and the terrific unnatural strains which now exist would at once be eased.

Britain watches uneasily. More than once last year we shivered on the edge of the precipice. Can we get through another year without toppling over it?

Meanwhile British professional politicians prate in this manner:
"War can be averted if the Powers in the League of Nations are prepared to go to the war.

Winston Churchill, Mr. Attlee, Mr. Lloyd George, Sir Archibald Sinclair and others sign a petition.

"War can be averted and a stable peace permanently maintained if the nations which are members of the League of Nations shall make plain their determination to fulfill their obligations under the Covenant and to take any measures required for the prevention or repression of aggression, including, if necessary, military force.

"Only so will the peaceful settlement of international disputes become possible."

ONLY REVOLUTION, A BLOODLESS
REVOLUTION, CAN SAVE US

The L.P.T.B. of their monopoly.

In the United States, where they specialize in this artificial shortage, the figures are more fantastic than in Europe and, there is no reason why capital stock shouldn't be increased.

Everyone knows how production is based on artificial scarcity—or it is a mere figment of the brain.

Restriction schemes, sabotage of national markets is all the time contracting.

One of the propositions on which Social Credit is based is that we have passed from an age of production by hand labour to one of production by slave labour.

(Machines are driven by energy from the sun stored in coal, oil and so on.)

It is fatal to argue about causes, remedies, facts. This is the simple means of securing an end to this war.

Everyone has a living. Each nation has so much goods and services that are now being wasted or restricted.

The true remedy lies in abolishing the nation, and substituting for it a super-state called the world

The first thing to do, therefore, is
for every man to demand, CLEARLY AND
UNIVERSALLY, to see all the available goods
and services, all the available universal
money or other effective dials which will enable
people to get all the goods and services

When New Parliament Meets

PROHAMED LEGISLATION IS SHELD FOR EVFR

The Official Opposition Amendment must be taken first. On the course, upon some subject agreed upon between the two Front Benches, and not within a particular part of the King's Speech, Mr. Brown and Mr. Jenks have attempted to express the spirit of the other amendments. Are they taken by let in the order of time in which they are introduced or are they taken in the order in which the Chair decides, and the Chair is of course one with the two Front Benches in such matters.

I mean where the matter is of real and substantial moment, and where the subject of the proposal is one which is least open to criticism, and among the defective functions of Parliament that which preserves the old and free conditions of the House, is the Chair.
FROTTI, for services rendered to MISTER BALHEAD the First, is elevated to the PIERAGE

HIS FIRST DAY IN THE HOUSE

For services rendered during recent aggression of Mister Baldhead the First, I have just been eliminated from the Pierage. In consequence I can truthfully say that by my own efforts I have it to be a member of the Ledger Classes of this fare and sniggering land.

On December 17 I have taken my seat under the title of Lord Frott, or Lorenzo Spagnoletti, as they call him, to be a member of the Ledger Classes of this street, and having received the Oaf, as per Frott, for services rendered under the title of Lord From of Lombard, on the subjects of saving money.

The poor, he said, were investing nary attitude that there was no danger yet! Nineteen-twentieths of the questions asked were useless. The action is, by the custom of Parliament, to discuss the practices concern administrative points to which the question may be asked; arising out of the permanent official for whom the Minister speaks does not suit the private interests of the professional politicians, can take place; and, so far as the representative power is truly, literally, and affectively here appealed for more paper and more action, no methods of action all three are useless.

The hack, therefore, will 'put down a motion, covering the point which Brown and Churchman a motion to discuss the practices concerned, the House of Commons is dead. Such a point has the degradation of Parliament, and a great war or other calamity, he foresaw a period of ever-increasing prosperity.

This is truly horrid, Sir, and reminds me of old-time hysterical romances about ascetic flight of Lady Mosnowata, in which fellow-chap says, imperious-like, 'Put it away. Mr. So-and-So is not going to get rich, and I, Mr. So-and-So, am going to be a rich fellow.' Yes, yes, and the poor fellow whose purse he gets at, is 'a well-filled purse.'

This, however, Sir, I am afraid I must dispute. It is the sort of thing that Mr. Frott would do, and he would see to it that I did not get rich. But though questions are thus valuable as a means of action, they are quite useless as a means of information, they are quite useless as a means of action.

With these methods—ills, motions, and questions—these methods of Brown and Jenks is exhausted. We have seen that as methods of action, these are unsuitable. In other words, no representative action on the chief matter of a general election, if that matter has proceeded from the electorate and does not suit the private interests of the professional politicians, can take place; and, so far as the representative power of members is concerned, the death of Commons is dead.

NEW MOVE IN ALBERTA
Cabinet Reported Preparing 100 per cent. Douglas Social Credit Plan with Help of Mr. John Hargrave

WHAT IT MEANS TO SOCIAL CREDITORS

At the outset it must again be emphasised that a distinction should be drawn between any particular plan for the utilisation of the public credit when control of it has been acquired and a strategy for acquiring the power to deal with the public credit.

If this distinction be understood it will be realised that plans for dealing with the public credit are wholly premature while the public credit is in the hands of others.

The Times of January 2 said: "A hundred per cent. Douglas Theory plan," prepared by a number of members of the Alberta Legislature on the advice of Mr. John Hargrave is ready for submission to Mr. Aberhart and the Party Caucus. The Times has previously made inaccurate statements in regard to Social Credit matters in Alberta, and, although taxed with these inaccuracies, has not corrected them, and it is therefore possible that the statement in question is equally inaccurate.

Takings at its face value, however, it is one of the items of which evidently calls for comment.

The Hope of Millions

Let us for emphasis that there is one wish on the part of all of us. May the hopes, not merely of the people of Alberta but of millions of Social Creditors in all quarters of the world, raised as they were by Mr. Aberhart's electoral victory of 1935, be justified at an early date.

Fundamentally, it is a matter of small importance through whose agency a satisfactory outcome is attained. And nothing is more certain than that victory over International Finance is, of all the tasks in the world, impossible of accomplishment by one man, as, no doubt, Mr. Aberhart himself has now come to realise.

Further, since Mr. Aberhart refused the advice of Major Douglas, and the assistance of a thoroughly qualified mediaevalist, to take the action to be based on their advice through its preliminary difficulties, it is completely reasonable both for Mr. Aberhart to take other advice and for anyone who feels that, in these circumstances, they can be useful to offer it.

The Factor of Responsibility

But we are compelled to point out that Mr. Hargrave has no authority to pledge the credit of the Social Credit Movement, in general, and, most particularly, not that of Major Douglas, to any plan or course of action.

Mr. Hargrave is the head of the self-styled Social Credit Party of Great Britain, which we understand to be the new name for the Green Shirts, a party itself quite insignificantly in numbers and directly opposed from its very name to the known policy of the Movement in general.

For the activities and organisation of the small band of Green Shirts apart from their policy of self-advertisement, we had the greatest respect. For the Social Credit Party of Great Britain as such, we have none.

It is beyond any possibility of discussion that the difficulties which have arisen in Alberta are directly traceable to a wrong understanding of the Social Credit Movement, in general, and the inclusion in it of measures which is at fault and not any particular condition of economics.

This matter cannot be too clearly recognised at this stage.
