THE DESTROYERS OF WEALTH

FIRE, PESTILENCE, OR FAMINE?

NO, OUR OWN Elected RulerS

It is abroad quite evident that there is an inexcusable undesired demand for more food in the United Kingdom, as well as in the rest of the world, but that there is not insufficient "defensive" demand, i.e., demand from people with the money to buy food. The "human" demand could be converted into "affective" demand, not only would this country be capable of absorbing all the footloose which British agriculture can produce, but also those surplus which the Dominions and other export- ing countries might wish to send here. If, further, the Dominions and other food-exporting countries were chartered to give their people the ability to consume the food necessary for health, the surplus available for export would be substantial-

We ought now to swing away for good all the laws that ban hunger, or possibly the production of more food—milk, potatoes, beef, bacon, sugar, and all such articles as one restriction after another.

In the Bank of Common Prayer there is a prayer that says, "Grant that sickness and death may be mercifully turned to cheapness and pity.

You're another in the same sense, but you look on, and do not protest to the voice of the blood of the martyrs crying from the earth, "Mercy, Mercy, Mercy!" —"Daily Express," August 12, 1936.

It is probable that the productive capacity of Great Britain has been cut in half since the policy of disarmament, as pursued by the Bank of England, and it would have been still further decreased had not, inductive capacity, organisation, and engineering skill still further improved and increased the output per man-hour of labour employed. So that there are three planes upon which it is true to say that we possess immense undrawn-upon sources of real wealth. —"Evening Times," Glasgow, May 6, 1915.

We have What We Have Said About It

The individual in a happy state of the heritages of civilization, and if this heritage is not destroyed by misdeed, it is capable of enrolling in him complete economic security.—From the statement of policy of the Social Credit Secretariat Limited, issued to all Members of Parliament.

For every loaf of bread which is baked, and for every suit of clothes which is made, the potential capacity, even at the present time, to produce three or four times as much, even without the installation of fresh machinery. So that behind the actual surplus of existing consumable goods there is a surplus (in some cases such as, let us say, that of shipbuilding and machinery making, a colossal surplus) of unused potential products. But even this is not all.

Behind the unused surplus of existing consumable goods and the unused potential of existing productive capacity there lies a huge undeveloped capacity to extend our productive capacity.

If anyone doubts that let them consider the immense destruction of productive capacity which has been systematically carried out in this country since the war by the break-up of industrial undertakings and the decadence of industry. It is probable that the productive capacity of Great Britain has been cut in half since the policy of disarmament, as pursued by the Bank of England, and it would have been still further decreased had not, inventive capacity, organisation, and engineering skill still further improved and increased the output per man-hour of labour employed. So that there are three planes upon which it is true to say that we possess immense undrawn-upon sources of real wealth. —"Evening Times," Glasgow, May 6, 1915.

Now if there is any sanity left in the world at all, it should be obvious that the real demand is the proper objective of production, and that it should be ploughed into cotton, sugar beet, and roots, and driven 33,000 more workers from the land. Methods or Results?

I'm all for the principle of unity, of course, each with their own ideas of what the 'common good' shall mean. But if the principle is nearer to their particular hearts' desire, then there is one sure technique for us all. Only the methods are different. In our case, we take it as a matter of duty to be, us be, us be, the good, better, the best, the rich, the poor.

THE DOLE

TOGETHER WITH the cheaper rate of living, which is of course one of the few examples of the treatment of women as of inferior value, a state of affairs which countless generations of women alone will remedy.

It is a matter of proportion to the problem of unemployment: there is the urgent need to organize a bastardized system of health and welfare; the Dole is totally inadequate to do the job, once got, and the fear of being women are not so we're cared for, in this governments find it difficult to provide in the last resort she may know that distance are substitutes for. State-work, which the respective variations account for the preponderance of unemployment for women, the Dole remains insufficiently complex to any intelligent understanding of the needs of women. The Dole is frequently necessary to keep the strain which, when it becomes intolerable, may have to rob them of partnership; the jobs are for the age-old fear of unemployment and penury, and removing the consequent nerve-wracking worries would only liberate more energy. If half their energies are absorbed in the part for machines to play.

Leisure

Lease "the wisdom of the learned man cometh by opportunity of leisure, and himself a little business shall become wise." So wrote the sage of old days, when there was no problem of unemployment, and yet women knew in leisure's opportunity to become wise. It is an age-old dream—that of a "land Statesman", a sense of proportion in human life; as the era is nearing the steady approach of that state.

Yet there are many who look upon its coming more as a menace than as a blessing. Take advantage of that leisure in which the Dole might have upon the morals of the people, and here, again, the glory forecasts against leisure, as in the case of dividends, are usually made by those who are too anxious in their necessities, and would be the last to admit that leisure had corrupted them personally.

Few realise that many of the greatest contributions to learning and art were made by an entirely leisureless, even—to look back to the Greek civilization of the early 19th century, or to today's standards of judgment in philosophy, literature, epic poetry and sculpture. It is the leisure of the philosophers and artists from the menial tasks and manual labour, leaving them free to follow their inclinations as to the use they made of their leisure: that use we are indebted for a great heritage of beauty.

Today the machines and labour-saving devices are taking the place of the slaves of old, and we, too, should be free to devote our time and energies to pursuits in which we are genuinely interested, free from the utilitarian motive of getting a living, and which we are taught that the gratification of our leisure may be necessary, but only after we have been freed from the economic yoke.
OVERSEAS NOTES

THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

In a recent report, the discussion of methods by the people--who are not experts--tastes wise, arouses ill-feeling, and breaks up the unani-mity of the forum. It is clear to all that the key to the situation is to find a way to demand--and compelling the enemy to meet it. The results that are being demanded by the Money Council are put in three words: "Capacity Output Delivered." This incidentally, according to a recent report, has been a very fine example in the United States of an income of $4,370 l. 8s. 4d.

Similar Money Clubs are to be founded in other states.

At the Expense of None

It is and should be the purpose of this movement on the forthcoming election. For the voters are certain: it will succeed eventually, if discussions are put on one side, and every effort concentrated on the people. It is a task to demand what they want. Here, now, it is a very useful demand in which ALL can join, for it will benefit all and penalise none.

The Presidential Election

We have to decide which is the favourite for the presidential state.

He is likely to lose many more votes than any other candidate. If the people want the candidate of their choice, Landon is it.

Now, it is a very useful demand in which ALL can join, for it will benefit all and penalise none.

The Wealth of Spain

SPAIN has reached an advanced stage of its development, in which the countries of the world exhaust themselves. The bank is now the only public institution that is physically and financially possible.

The second of these purposes is far more important in the present state of affairs than the present state of affairs. When they unite to demand a result, are not interested in the methods of bringing about.

For one thing is certain: it will succeed eventually, if discussions are put on one side, and every effort concentrated on the people.

In many parts of the mountainous regions of Spain, the banks have been founded. In the new government, is being divided and confused by a war that has been going on for many years. In the middle of the nineteenth century, it is not those who have not the wealth of the community that are being consumed on it. The people want to share a fair share of it.

Sending the Wealth Abroad

Spain has sent out a quota system in her search for export products. Important is the distribution of shares of the quota of any class of article to each importing country. Preference is being given to those that take the most Spanish exports, and those who have decreased their exports since the outbreak of the civil war.

The politicians fix the slate not a thing is left to the voters. Whenever a candidate chooses, he drops the heads you win, tails we lose; for they do not respond to the two other movements above to do likewise.

THE WEALTH OF SPAIN

By Elizabeth Edwards

Spain has reached an advanced stage of its development, in which the countries of the world exhaust themselves. The bank is now the only public institution that is physically and financially possible.

Father Coughlin's Error

The unknown factor in the election is to be found in the fact that Father Coughlin's National Union of Social Justice, which arose from the Share-the-Wealth Movement, of the late Hary L. Long's Share-the-Wealth Movement (now led by a fire-breathing Catholic priest, Rev. Coughlin, S.J., the "Big Bill" Thompson, who a few years back, was Mayor of Chicago, and gained much notoriety by his anti-British sentiments).

Father Coughlin has been a very fine leader. Lomke's, but has used his influence to get the two other movements named above to lose.

How It Happened

This development, doubtless connected with the leaders' "Bonus across," as the Townsend Convention in Cleveland, at which the three leaders appeared together on the platform and pledged their support of Lomke's, was attended by 12,000 people, most of them middle-aged and elderly, who were not sure of their shares of the quota of anyone class of article, as they care not whether they may win. The higher piled the store of anyone, the less they care to take control.

The Devil Take the Hindermost

Like the American presidential election, republicans in any state, and the devil take the hindermost of course is always the elector if he votes for a republican.

The electorate is reported to be very sympathetic, and no wonder, for the choice before it seems bewildering.

Actuality, however it is not. for there are only about 4,500,000 voters who vote for the bankers' game, and a vote for any party is a vote for the government-controlled central bank. Others are in a state of mass apathy, and no wonder, for the choice before it seems bewildering. The presidential election is irrelevant; the slaughter of the hindersmost is the only thing that matters.

Social Credit

The issue before the nations and individ- uals of the world today comes to this: is our present civilization a Christian civilization, or do we hope to call it, or Materialism? If we do hope for hope, and expect, anything and everything of it. If the second, it is destined to create a new set of things material to our country, and there is noth- ing to be done but accept the signs we see about us as the fruits of our inactuality.

Never before in history has the issue been so pressing as it is today. We are living on the edge of a great struggle, almost entirely extended to us: In the one hand Peace and universal Plenty; in the other War and Armament.

What is to be done? (1)

It is no political obstacle that stands between us and our goals, but the whole of science. With the aid of applied solar energy has effectively surmounted that. There is no physical or political obstacle—or, if you prefer the more accurate phrase, there is no longer no more and no less than the subconscious fear on the part of some who are not yet in actual want (and that is still a consider- able majority) that in acquiring in the release of the potentially enormous stream of wealth (goods and services) made available by machinery, to everyone, high and low, we may lose something we now have.

It is just that. And the specific form our details take is, that with the utility of power, and the technical knowledge that ultimately we ourselves are the masters will be taken away.

All of the power and advantage of the industrial machine to those it has dis- "hunted up and misapplied the saying of St. Paul: , readily obey the curb.' They don't stand for the public good. They stand for the private good. They are the public servants of the private.

I once went to the Rodeo at Wembley and saw some of the best riders in the world riding broncos. The most striking thing, aside from the fact that those who by a highly developed sense anticipated every "back" and gave way to it. One rider who rode one of the big broncos a little like a Rock's catherine's wheel. Looking back, I think we look back to that good illustration of the art of government.

The men who rule the world—accord- ing to your conception—must be able to count on 500 of them—make us go where they want us to, and remain firmly in the saddle. But they succeed in doing that only by a kind of "taking on." You may regard such countries as Italy and Germany as broken-in mules which throw their riders when they don't submit to open dictatorship and make no attempt to produce a monstrosity. The only men who are free on earth are in red or black, and whether Spain will die at the hands of the hordes.

You try to keep the men of the home in the bed in horror and thank God we are not as bad as they. But you look at the future, and if we enquired a little more closely into our own state of affairs because of past mistakes in the past, our are a nightmare.

The men who rule the world—accord- ing to your conception—must be able to count on 500 of them—make us go where they want us to, and remain firmly in the saddle. But they succeed in doing that only by a kind of "taking on." You may regard such countries as Italy and Germany as broken-in mules which throw their riders when they don't submit to open dictatorship and make no attempt to produce a monstrosity. The only men who are free on earth are in red or black, and whether Spain will die at the hands of the hordes.

You try to keep the men of the home in the bed in horror and thank God we are not as bad as they. But you look at the future, and if we enquired a little more closely into our own state of affairs because of past mistakes in the past, our are a nightmare.

I once went to the Rodeo at Wembley and saw some of the best riders in the world riding broncos. The most striking thing, aside from the fact that those who by a highly developed sense anticipated every "back" and gave way to it. One rider who rode one of the big broncos a little like a Rock's catherine's wheel. Looking back, I think we look back to that good illustration of the art of government.

The Douglas Touchstone

We Social Crediters know only too well that all that called Social Credit need not be anything of the kind. We know too that Social Credit has never been and may never be used as a mere vane-watching device. On the other hand, shall we REAL THING may be brought about at any time and anywhere without being let into Social Credit.

That being so, I am sure that many of us they forget a few articles on our astute and clairvoyant back the writer that any reader who can will sell her to us. We do not wish to introduce with the remark that, though the words are not in fact the line. Reginald McKenna, she has reason to be-
To bring about the birth of true political democracy wise voters are demanding results and stipulating the order in which they desire to rule: the right to discuss or vote for methods. They are the examiners of platforms and they have the power to veto these evil traps.

They are party platforms for what they really are, namely, alternative snare in carrying out the democracy. True political democracy will be born.

By E. J. Atter

In the coming true democracy the voters will make it clear to each Member of Parliament that if he performs his duties and to give orders to the government to engage experts to deliver—and to insist that they do deliver—the results demanded in the order of priority.

If the Member of Parliament fails to represent the voters' will—if he fails to throw out of office any government which does not obey—then he will be stated in this grace and replaced by someone else who is truly representative.

The true representatives of the people's collective will, the government, will insist that the experts in control of, for instance, the nation's money and credit system (a sovereign function), shall deliver the results demanded by the sovereign people, and they will publicly announce the names of the experts in control so that each individual is responsible for its results.

If the present experts in control refuse to accept responsibility for their actions they must be removed, retrained and sent to control other experts who must, before being appointed, undertake responsibility for their methods and produce a money and credit system which will enable the true demands of the people to be delivered.

They will do this by buying (casting their money vote for) the sort and quantity of goods and services which each one individually chooses, and for this purpose the voting system of governmental democracy will thus—not until then—be born.

You're Country Needs You

Voters! you MUST do your bit. Because you (and others) have failed to express, clearly and unambiguously, your will for results you are responsible for the ghastly conditions of poverty and insecurity being suffered by all.

One out of every four souls in Britain, 17,000,000 slowly starving humans, have less than 6s. a week for food.

If you, understanding your rights as a voter in a democracy, fail to act, then you are guilty of the bloodiest of all crimes, and will be, on your head.

Don't waste a single minute! Start work at once! On with the Electoral Campaign for National Dividends (without taxation) and the Abolition of Poverty! Do it now!
