DHIMMITUDE IN GERMANY By Richard Miller

The term "dhimmitude" refers to the existence of non-Muslims living under an Islamic system, as Germany and much of Europe is fast becoming: https://wikiislam.net/wiki/Dhimmitude_\(definition\))

Part of the alleged dhimmitude social contract, that the Left think exists, is that if they defend Islam, they will get cool positions in the new regime. Hence the following;

"German radio broadcaster Deutschlandfunk Kultur has claimed that the Islamic holy month of Ramadan is not only an "old German custom" but that it had been celebrated in the country longer than Oktoberfest. In an article, journalist Eren Güvercin claims that Ramadan is a thoroughly German holiday and that there is no question that Islam belongs to Germany. Güvercin maintains that the practice is older than Oktoberfest, also known in Bavaria as Wiesn. While he provides no evidence for his assertion, the earliest Wiesn celebrations are thought to have been held on 12 October 1810 to celebrate the marriage of Prince Ludwig, later King Ludwig I, and Princess Therese of Saxony-Hildburghausen. The oldest mosque in Germany, by contrast, was built in Berlin in 1915 and was discovered by an archaeological team in 2015. The mosque, which was made of wood, was thought to have been intended for Muslim prisoners of war as it was built inside a WW I-era prison camp." <http://www.breitbart.com/london/2018/05/18/german-broadcaster-ramadan-an-old-german-custom/>

Ok, the numbers do not add up. Bad error there. As the West is disassembled, deconstructed and dismantled, one can expect to see more of this sort of historical revisionism. When laws prevent any criticism of anything of any politically correct ethnic or cool group, expect the process of change to accelerate beyond recognition. What a pity that we always leave it so late to do anything. I don't like the drunk Churchill, but he made sense when he said:

"If you will not fight for right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory is sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival. There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than to live as slaves."

The real question for Western man, is whether Joe Sixpack and Ms Sue Womyns Study, will fight even then? If they are at all influenced by the Left they will regard perishing as an improvement to the universe. Old Winnie did not anticipate that one. ***

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Age Doug Shapiro claims (22/5) that phrases I used to defend the monarchy ('spiritual truths' and 'sacred ties to eternity') are meaningless. More accurately, he should have said that he can find no meaning in them. They cannot be appraised by the logical mind, but can be validated by a different part of our nature for which many words exist: 'prophecy', 'intuition', 'inspiration', 'second sight', 'the sixth sense' and so on.

Daniel Verberne (22/5) has a different argument against monarchy - that it is 'undemocratic' and an 'anachronism' in an 'egalitarian society.' Healthy human societies are by nature hierarchical and a constitutional monarchy seems to be the best way to treat inevitable human differences equitably. The pursuit of egalitarianism leads to tyranny, as the history of communism abundantly shows.

CHINESE MASS INDOCTRINATION CAMPS: COMING TO A QUIET SUBURB NEAR YOU? By James Reed

This item tells of the creation of Chinese mass indoctrination camps in the US. First, one needs to know what an “indoctrination camp” actually is. Here is the good old New York Post to enlighten us:
<https://nypost.com/2018/05/17/inside-chinas-new-mass-indoctrination-camps/>

“Hour upon hour, day upon day, Omir Bekali and other detainees in far western China’s new indoctrination camps had to disavow their Islamic beliefs, criticize themselves and their loved ones and give thanks to the ruling Communist Party. When Bekali, a Kazakh Muslim, refused to follow orders each day, he was forced to stand at a wall for five hours at a time. A week later, he was sent to solitary confinement, where he was deprived of food for 24 hours. After 20 days in the heavily guarded camp, he wanted to kill himself. “The psychological pressure is enormous, when you have to criticize yourself, denounce your thinking — your own ethnic group,” said Bekali, who broke down in tears as he described the camp. “I still think about it every night, until the sun rises. I can’t sleep. The thoughts are with me all the time.”

Since last spring, Chinese authorities in the heavily Muslim region of Xinjiang have ensnared tens, possibly hundreds of thousands of Muslim Chinese — and even foreign citizens — in mass internment camps. This detention campaign has swept across Xinjiang, a territory half the area of India, leading to what a U.S. commission on China last month said is “the largest mass incarceration of a minority population in the world today.”

Chinese officials have largely avoided comment on the camps, but some are quoted in state media as saying that ideological changes are needed to fight separatism and Islamic extremism. Radical Muslim Uighurs have killed hundreds in recent years, and China considers the region a threat to peace in a country where the majority is Han Chinese.”

One may wonder what the problem is here, for in the West there exists no people more deracinated than whites, with centuries of universalistic brainwashing, so denouncing their race will be as easy as falling off a slimy log. However:

“As a justification to the fears being raised by the US House Intelligence Committee, who just declared that communist China now poses “a pre-eminent threat to American security and values”, a new Foreign Intelligence Service (SVR) report circulating in the Kremlin today is further questioning why the Chinese have begun building mass indoctrination camps throughout the United States modeled on those used in their own country to “culturally cleanse” those not adhering to approved state thought. According to this report, communist China, home to 20 percent of the world’s population but only 8 percent of the world’s arable land, has gone abroad in search of farmland to feed its over 1.4 billion population—and whose main focus has been on the United States where, by 2014, foreign nations had acquired a staggering 27.3 million acres of American land—and that equals the entire size of the US State of Tennessee.

China’s main focus in land acquisition in the United States, this report details, has been their acquiring massive farms and farmlands that they first began to acquire in the States of California and New York, where they had built up large population centers—and from there have spread out across the United States gobbling up land in Texas, Virginia, Florida, and Indiana—with their further acquiring nearly 80,000 housing units to which they are flooding into some of their top military, intelligence, police and population control experts.

As to what the American people sent to these communist Chinese indoctrination camps can expect, this report explains, can be seen in what is happening to the millions of people in China who are, also, being forced into these places—and whose daily lives are described as “Hour upon hour, day upon day, detainees in far western China’s new indoctrination camps have to disavow their religious beliefs, criticize themselves and their loved ones and give thanks to the ruling Communist Party”.

The types of Americans slated to undergo indoctrination in these new communist Chinese indoctrination camps springing up all over the United States, this report says, are daily being identified by the US mainstream propaganda media—with Americans supporting President Trump now being referred to as “deplorables”, any of them wanting their nation’s borders to be secured being called “racist bigots”, while the illegals rampaging through their country are referred to as “dreamers”, gun owners supporting their rights now being called “terrorists”—with these people even being warned that they are no long able to call the deadly MS13 gang “animals” anymore.

I would imagine that the colonisation of Australia will be much easier, and over rather quickly, as our elites openly support Asianisation, and would see the creation of Australia as part of communist China as a virtue. Pity that these Judah’s will not have the jobs and privileged positions that they are hoping to get as their 30 pieces of silver.

Life is as tough as it is ironic.

ITALY RULES! By James Reed

It is good to see a wee bit of good news in this time of the dark days of the rule of Mordor. Thus, in Italy:

“Coalition partner party leaders will go to the Quirinal Palace Monday evening to meet with Sergio Mattarella, the Italian President, to officially form a populist, Eurosceptic government which has prompted panicked headlines across the continent. The emergence of the League (‘La Lega’, northern Italy, tax-reforming, anti-mass migration) and Five Star (southern Italy, anti-establishment) coalition follows months of hard-fought negotiations since the national elections in early March.

League leader Matteo Salvini is also to take a ministry representing an area of key interest for his voters as he is tipped to take the Immigration office. Before the election, his party promised to deport some 500,000 illegal and irregular migrants from the country, a move which will almost certainly bring Italy into serious conflict with the European Union. Another campaign promise which the League made before the election was exploring the possibility of Italy leaving the Euro single currency, what the Italian media called an ‘Italiaexit’. While this did not make the final governing contract, the league’s economics spokesman Claudio Borghi will continue to push for it in government, reports il Giornale, which states the possibility of it happening remains “concrete”.

Hopefully, the new party will succeed in raising a middle finger to the tyrannical EU technocrats, and begin restoring a degree of sanity to Italy’s immigration program before the entire country splits open and dies, then rots like an Italian pizza meat that has been left out in the sun. And, let’s hope it catches on, and one day Australians will get some lead in their pencils instead of being passive bearers of ethnic displacement. ***

CHINA SET TO RULE THE WAVES By James Reed

Hands up who can see how the West will end? It could be by ethnic explosion, immigration implosion, or China will just rise and crush all before it:

“China’s navy is on track to be double the size of the United States’ by 2030, which puts U.S. interests at risk in the Asia Pacific and around the world”, a U.S. military expert testified at a recent congressional hearing. “The future size of the [People’s Liberation Army] Navy will be about 550 warships and submarines by 2030. That is twice the size of today’s U.S. Navy,” said Retired U.S. Navy Capt. James Fanell at a House Intelligence Committee hearing on Thursday. “As such, it’s clear the U.S. Navy is at great risk. We simply are not adequately sized or outfitted to meet our national security commitments in the Indo-Asia Pacific, let alone around the globe,” said

Fanell, former director of intelligence and information operations for the U.S. Navy’s Pacific Fleet.

Fanell said the Chinese navy, or PLAN, currently consists of about 400 warships — at least 330 surface ships and 66 submarines. Meanwhile, he said the U.S. Navy has 283 warships — 211 surface ships and 72 submarines.” <http://www.breitbart.com/big-government/2018/05/21/expert-china-navy-double-us-2030/>

So, China is set to rule the waves. All of this will be good news for the “Australia is Asia” crowd who dominate our new class, in the universities and media. But, I wonder whether these white ants, after they have served their purpose will have a starring role in the New Chinese World Order? Or, will China consider them as fellow communist Lenin did, as “useful idiots,” and ultimately disposable? ***

NO MORE ‘BOYS’ AND ‘GIRLS’ - By Ken Grundy

Victorian Councils promote the global push for gender denial as they expect schools and libraries to delete reference to the terms ‘boys’ and ‘girls’. Presumably they will become ‘students’ or ‘kids’ or some other partially accurate description. Meanwhile 12 year old girls were asked in a South Australian school survey; their proclivities towards sex and which ‘lube’ they may use. In both of these examples, we must know who or which organisation drafted the policy and furthermore, which person or group permitted it to proceed in the school. Someone has given approval and must be held accountable. It is not a true reflection of community expectations. Maybe the origin can be found in Agenda 2030? (continued below)

Subsequent Letter Sent to Cory Bernardi (cory@corybernardi.com)

Dear Cory Bernardi,

You mentioned in the latest “Dose of Common Sense” that 12 year old school girls in SA were surveyed with questions including, their proclivities to sex and which ‘lube’ they may use. This is staggering! What we must do, is detect who and which organisation prepared such a survey for school girls and then detect who permitted such a survey to be operated within the school or schools. Somewhere, someone has to accept responsibility for these matters! A parallel exists with Victorian Councils wanting all library books and general terminology in schools to omit reference to ‘boys’ and ‘girls’. Presumably they become ‘kids’ or ‘students’ or some other partially accurate description. Again, we need to know where this agenda arose and in any case why a Council would proceed with the plan, knowing full-well that it does not fit with community expectations. I reckon much of this fits with “Agenda 21”, now known as “Agenda 2030”. Whatever the source, it needs exposure.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR 21/05/2018

To The Australian Jennifer Oriell's spirited defence of religious freedom ('Christianity empowers our Western tradition', 21/5) is vitiated a little by her forgetfulness of past violence carried out by Christian religious fanatics and by her misinterpretation of extracts from the Qu'ran. Surah 8:12 does not, as she claims, 'prescribe violent monotheism.' It is a symbolic (not literal) reference to the battle of Badr (a single historical event). As for Surah 5:51, this gives a valid warning (for Muslims) against a danger in befriending Christians or Jews because each group, naturally enough, is NOW, CAN I REMEMBER WHERE I PUT THE DARK CHOCOLATE?

By Mrs Vera West

Continuing our health and fitness series, with a focus on the older citizen, chocolate has been reported to have numerous cardio-vascular benefits, but now it has been found that chocolate actually helps relieve stress and improves memory:

"New research shows there might be health benefits to eating certain types of dark chocolate. Findings from two studies being presented today at the Experimental Biology 2018 annual meeting in San Diego show that consuming dark chocolate that has a high concentration of cacao (minimally 70% cacao, 30% organic cane sugar) has positive effects on stress levels, inflammation, mood, memory and immunity. While it is well known that cacao is a major source of flavonoids, this is the first time the effect has been studied in human subjects to determine how it can support cognitive, endocrine and cardiovascular health. Lee S. Berk, DrPH, associate dean of research affairs, School of Allied Health Professions and a researcher in psychoneuroimmunology and food science from Loma Linda University, served as principal investigator on both studies. "For years, we have looked at the influence of dark chocolate on neurological functions from the standpoint of sugar content -- the more sugar, the happier we are," Berk said. "This is the first time that we have looked at the impact of large amounts of cacao in doses as small as a regular-sized chocolate bar in humans over short or long periods of time, and are encouraged by the findings. These studies show us that the higher the concentration of cacao, the more positive the impact on cognition, memory, mood, immunity and other beneficial effects."

I do not want to plug for any brand of chocolate, but I notice that both Coles and Woolies, almost every week, have a special on a number of brands of dark chocolate, right up to the grand one of 90 percent cocoa. The sugar content of one brand is about 1.3 grams per serving, which is not too bad at all compared to other foods like bread.

characteristically biased in favour of its own members - something that can be seen in many contexts today. There is a long and profound tradition of friendship and mutual understanding between enlightened individuals within all three of the Abrahamic faiths, and between such individuals and corresponding persons in the Eastern sacred traditions. In recent times this has been apparent, especially, in the writings of the 'perennialists' - Rene Guenon, Ananda Coomaraswamy and their associates. In this context anti-Muslim prejudice looks small and mean.

Nigel Jackson, Belgrave, Vic

And, have you ever looked at the sodium content of most commercial breads? It's sky high. Thus, for a snack, I will have a square of dark chocolate, slowing sucking it. Suddenly the world seems to be a better place, at least until the chocolate is gone. And, then ...
